D.A.R. Urged To Lead Way To Racial Co-operation

Rep. Rogers Asks Unity to Save U. S.; Sen. Caraway, Lippmann Speak

Indestructible Defense

IF AMERICAN DEFENSES are to be indestructible, they must be made so by a public versed in the truths upon which our independence was founded, Walter Lippmann told the D.A.R. yesterday. Text of his address appears on Page 13.

The D. A. R. Sessions

By Christine Sadler

If America is to survive, its component races and groups must unite, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers told Daughters of the American Revolution as she joined with Senator Hattie W. Caraway in extending Congressional greetings to the society.

In what some considered a slap at the D. A. R. stand during the recent Marian Anderson controversy, the Congresswoman from Massachusetts—herself a member of the organization—declared: "In the United States race cooperation must replace race hatred . . . class division must be abolished."

Since the D. A. R. "is primarily and fundamentally an American institution," she declared to approximately 4,500 women who are attending the forty-eighth Continental Congress in Constitution Hall, it is the duty of the society "to lead the way."

"Just Plain Americans"

"The time has arrived when all Americans should be merged into just plain Americans," she asserted.

In the meantime, Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., president general, yesterday informed the Marian Anderson citizens committee that a D. A. R. committee will meet with four representatives from the citizens' group as soon as the congress is over to discuss the Constitution Hall ban against Negro artists.

Accompanying the representatives, according to an announcement last night, will be Representative Caroline O'Day, Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, Representative H. Jerry Voorhis, and Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune.

Tea at White House

With Cabinet wives serving as hostesses in the absence of Mrs. Roosevelt, the D. A. R. delegates will go to the White House at 3 p. m. today for their annual tea there.

The forty-eighth congress will adjourn tonight after a five-day meeting.

Seven vice presidents general were elected yesterday to places on the board and announced last night as follows: Mrs. John Logan Marshall, of South Carolina; Mrs. Carl Hoskins, of New Hampshire; Mrs. Henry Clay Chiles, of Missouri; Mrs. Arthur John Rahn, of Montana; Mrs. Frederick Palmer Latimer, of Connecticut; Mrs. Robert J. Johnston, of Iowa, and Mrs. Homer Fergus Sloan, of Arkansas.

"Leave It to Hull"

Both Representative Rogers and Senator Caraway expressed belief that America can and should stay out of a European conflict. Senator Caraway, who declared she is not a D. A. R. and never intends to become one, asserted she was "very much in favor of keeping our mouths shut and leaving the State Department to deal with the foreign situation."

Mrs. Rogers, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, declared she doubted the arguments of all who thought the United States had any duty to "any country in Europe."

"But we do have a duty to consider," she said, "and that is to the countries of the Western Hemisphere. We will protect these

Showdown Is Due Today On Money Bill

Plan Faces Barrage Of Amendments From House G. O. P.

Republicans directed a heavy fire at Administration monetary policy in five hours of debate yesterday as the House prepared for a showdown today on the bill to continue beyond June 30 the power to devalue the dollar and the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.

Other major developments in the monetary situation were:

Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board told the Senate Banking Committee that purchases by the Treasury of foreign silver should be discontinued. He described purchases as "wholly and totally unnecessary."

The Federal Reserve Board, in its Reserve Bank condition statement for the week ended Wednesday, estimated that excess reserves or idle funds of member banks had soared to $4,000,000,000, a new all-time high.

Amendments in Barrage

The Administration monetary bill, sponsored by Representative Somers (Democrat), New York, of the House Coinage Committee, will face a barrage of amendments from Republicans.

Representatives Dirksen (Republican), Illinois, and Andresen (Republican), Minnesota, yesterday attacked the bill as inflationary. Democrats insisted that the Administration must be ready to meet unexpected international monetary developments.

The bill would continue until

Court Fines Tardy Attorney $13 for Contempt

Attorney John J. McGinnis was held in contempt of court yesterday by Police Court Judge Hobart Newman when he appeared 13 minutes late at a trial. His tardiness cost him $1 per minute.

He appeared as counsel for Edgar Gibbs, 30, of 1201 Thirteenth street northwest, charged with turning in four false fire alarms.

Mrs. Hazel Duffey testified the defendant sent to her home fire engines, flowers, taxicabs, whisky and even an undertaker. The merchandise was sent collect, she added.

D. C. Jobless Pay Asked for 20,000 More

Domestics Would Receive Benefits Under Randolph Bill

Amendment of the District unemployment compensation act to include some 20,000 domestic servants in Washington and to increase maximum and minimum benefits to unemployed was proposed yesterday in a bill introduced by Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee.

The measure, which is opposed to the McGehee bill, would continue the present relationship between the local administration and the Social Security Administration.

Instead of a reduction in the pay roll tax to 1 per cent, as proposed in the McGehee bill, Randolph suggests a cut to 2.7 per cent for the employer and elimination of the District payment when it is not needed in disbursement of benefits.

District Law Assailed

Randolph pointed out that the District law, when enacted in 1935, was considered a model law.

"But so rapid have been the changes in the last two and a half years," he said, "so meager have been the benefit provisions of the so-called model law that most of the States have long since amended their laws, and the District law is today one of the clumsiest and least liberal of the country."

While the McGehee bill has the backing of the District Unemployment Compensation Commission, the Randolph measure is understood to have the support of the Social Security Administration.

The provision which would bring domestic servants into the unemployment compensation benefits would give the board authority to establish a separate, simplified system for collecting contributions from their employers through the sale of stamps.

Randolph pointed out that Idaho recently has amended its law to include this class of workers.

He said that under the present District act the average weekly benefit paid for last December was $8.64 or $2.67 less than the average paid throughout the country.

His bill would fix a minimum benefit of $7 a week and would raise the maximum from $15 to $18. The proposed formula would set the benefit at one-twentieth the wages earned in the calendar quarter in which the worker's earnings were highest in the previous year.

Pedestrian Needs Seeing Eye, Mirror at 13th and Avenue

With the aid of a compass, rear-view mirror and "seeing-eye" dog, the pedestrian who wants to cross downtown Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue in safety might have a little luck, but it might be bad.

Here, truly, is a "suicide" spot.

To abide by Washington's new pedestrian control laws at this corner would require the combined powers of a Houdini, Einstein and a Paavo Nurmi.

"Pedestrian protection — huh!" said one of the passersby. "I'd just as soon take my chances in a lions' cage."

Confusion is a mild word for troubles which beset the walker when he trys to cross, let us say, from the southwest to the northwest corners of Pennsylvania avenue.

Thirteenth street comes to a dead-end on the south side of the Avenue. As a consequence, there is no signal light—not even a pole—on the northeast corner.

The walker looks to the northwest corner—his point of destination—but the signal is facing the wrong way for him to see. At this point, he must become psychic. At the corner to his right—across the dead-end of Thirteenth street on the southeast side—is a sign. He can't see it from where he is standing, so he changes his course. Instead of walking north (the way he wanted to), he walks east and finds the sign reads: "Pedestrians cross Pennsylvania avenue on this red light."

Thus, the pedestrian finds, in order to cross the Avenue northbound, he must look over his shoulder to the east and read a sign which he couldn't read from where he was standing, anyway.

Let's say he is a superior type of

William Allen White, editor of the Emporia Gazette, advised American newspaper editors yesterday not to get "hot and bothered" and not to "emote too heavily" when the press in this country is attacked.

"We can reserve our excess steam heat for Stalin, Mussolini and Hitler," the Sage of Emporia said.

White spoke at the opening of the seventeenth annual convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, of which he is president. Basically, he said, attacks on the American press are accounted for by the newspapers' bias in favor of property rights.

"Let us not lower our flag," he said. "The American press is an honest press compared with the press in any other land. It is an enterprising press. It is an intelligent press. It is a brave press and free, freer than any other press upon the globe."

Conference With Roosevelt

Last night 131 members of the society went to the White House for an off-the-record talk with President Roosevelt.

For two hours earlier in the day the editors engaged in a lively controversy over the merits and demerits of syndicated columnists. The columnists, most of whom use Washington as a watchtower, were said by some to have taken over the obligations of editorial writers. They were defended by others on the ground that, through competition, they had forced the writing of better editorials. A third view was that the columnist and the editorial writer work in different spheres, and that there is no real conflict.

Mencken Warns Editors

Henry L. Mencken, sulphurous editorial writer of the Baltimore Evening Sun, broke away from this controversy to warn the editors that, in a little while, their problems might become merely academic. He was talking about the possibility of war.

"If the Administration succeeds in promoting a general war in Europe, and the United States, as seems inevitable, is accommodated in the forefront of the fray," he said, "then the newspapers of the country will suffer a series of headaches beside which those of the moment will seem to be only friendly tickles.

"There are some of you, I suppose, who are old enough to recall what went on the last time democracy was saved. It will undoubtedly be a great deal worse the next time. In 1917 the statesmen put up to inspire and police us, to wit, A. Mitchell Palmer, Albert Sidney Burleson and George Creel. They were relatively mild fellows and

Jesse H. Jones Talked of Here as Commerce Chief

Capitol speculation on a proposed reorganization order transferring Jesse H. Jones' RFC and other lending agencies to the Commerce Department, was followed yesterday by reports that Jones himself is under consideration for the post of Secretary of Commerce to succeed Harry Hopkins in a new Cabinet shift. The reports could not be confirmed.

Hopkins, said one Democratic Senator, is being considered as a successor to Secretary of the Navy Swanson, who has long been ill. It was pointed out that elevation of Jones to the Commerce portfolio might give tremendous impetus to business appeasement efforts begun under Hopkins.

Garner and Dewey Lead, Says Hurja

Dallas, Tex., April 20 (U.P.).—Emil Hurja, Washington political analysts, said tonight that Vice President Garner and Thomas Dewey, of New York, were the most popular Presidential prospects in the Nation.

Hurja said an extensive poll of voters in all sections of the Nation showed Garner the more popular in rural areas and Dewey in larger cities.

"In the city polls, the Vice President appears able to swing a majority in 14 States, while in the rural and small town groups, he achieves a majority in 29 States," Hurja said. "Dewey, on the other hand, get a majority of the big city vote in 19 States, as against a majority of small town votes in only 12 States."

Duce Derides U.S. Peace Bid As 'Absurd'

Mussolini Points To Rome Fair as Sign Of Pacific Intent

By the Associated Press.

Rome, April 20.—Premier Mussolini today cited plans for a world exposition in Rome in 1942 as proof that Italy expected at least three years of peace but declared President Roosevelt's proposal for ten-year nonaggression guarantees was "absurd."

Nowhere in the speech, broadcast from Julius Caesar Hall of the Capitol, did he mention President Roosevelt by name though he referred to "the well-known message" and, at another point, to "Messiah-like messages."

Despite Mussolini's references to the Roosevelt proposals, the speech was widely accepted as reassuring by both Italian and foreign quarters.

Diplomats said the Roosevelt message apparently had the effect in the totalitarian camp of a warning to slow down.

Gayda Asks "Justice"

Virginio Gayda, writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, said the address demonstrated that Italy desired only the opportunity to work in peace and asked only "the international justice which will guarantee that."

Articles concerning the possibility of war in the near future, however, continued to appear in the Fascist press.

Il Tevere said British, French and possibly Soviet Russian warship movements in the Mediterranean

Yugoslav Soldiers, Students Riot Over Axis at Sarajevo

Sarajevo, Jugoslavia, April 20 (U.P.).—Thirty persons were arrested tonight after disorders in this birthplace of the World War in which demonstrators shouted "Down with Hitler! Down with Mussolini!"

The disorders, which police reserves finally suppressed, broke out during a reception to visiting Bulgarian students.

"We want a union with Bulgaria!" the demonstrators shouted.

Meanwhile, thousands of Jugoslav military reservists called to the colors as a defense measure, marched through the countryside shouting contempt of Hitler and Mussolini.

It was estimated that at least 300,000 reservists had been called to the colors, although an Italian radio station put the figure at 600,000.

25 Ships of Fleet Pass the Capes

Norfolk, Va., April 20 (AP).—Twenty-five warships steamed past the Virginia capes this morning shortly after sunrise, en route to their stations on the West Coast.

The ships, most of which arrived in Hampton Roads on Wednesday, April 12, had a prospective six weeks' visit to Atlantic ports, including New York and the World's Fair, cut short last Saturday by Navy Department orders for their return to the Pacific as soon as they could load ammunition, fuel and general supplies.

The fleet's first destination is Panama, which should be reached in about five days. Off Guantanamo, Cuba, the warcraft will be joined by other cruisers and destroyers which have been visiting South Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Advises President

By J. Gilbert Norris.

America's best known airman, temporarily an active Army officer, reported to his commander-in-chief yesterday.

Quality, regardless of quantity, was stressed in a report made to President Roosevelt and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, just returned from a four year stay in Europe.

Closeted for 25 minutes with the President, the flier later met with Government air officials and reported on his knowledge of the German air force, and emphasized the vital importance of aeronautical research to supremacy in the air.

While there was no official announcement regarding Lindbergh's reports, it was learned that he declared that it is more important in an emergency to have an air force of superior quality than one of the greatest quantity.

Assigned by the Army to survey aeronautical research facilities in the United States, Lindbergh is expected to lead the drive to augment those facilities by dramatizing the problem before Congress and the public.

Leaving the office assigned him at the Munitions Building shortly before noon, the Army's youngest colonel rode to the White House in an official Army car. Sightseers and attaches at the Executive Offices crowded forward as the airman, in a gray business suit and gray felt hat, hurried through the reception room.

After waiting for more than a half-hour, the colonel was ushered into President Roosevelt's private office for their conference, arranged by Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission and a cousin of the flier.

Chiefs of the Army and Navy air forces and the leading scientists who make up the N. A. C. A. listened to Lindbergh and Dr. G. W. Lewis, its director of research, for nearly three hours. The latter reported on prog-

15 Speak Mind

By Robert C. Albright.

A poll of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday showed variations of the Pittman "cash and carry" plan leading six other proposals for neutrality act change, with sentiment for complete repeal of the act a close second.

Five members of the committee favored the Pittman measure either in its present form or with suggested amendments, while four said they were inclined toward repeal of the present law. Three preferred the Thomas bill to designate an aggressor, either in its original form or in combination with other plans.

Of the remaining proposals for amending the law, two Senators supported a complete ban on all trade with belligerents; one indorsed the Nye-Clark-Bone bill of "cash and carry" with a strict arms embargo, and one favored the present neutrality act.

More than two-thirds of the 22-man committee expressed a choice among the many conflicting plans, but all made clear this reflected only present inclinations and reserved the right to change their views after

Americans who served with either side in the Spanish Civil War will be barred from any branch of the Army, the War Department has ruled.

The decision declared that it was based on the fact that such service was "in violation of the policy of the United States as announced by the State Department." It affects appointments in the National Guard, Reserves and advanced course of the R. O. T. C. as well as recruits in the Regular Army and appointments to West Point and the Air Corps flying school, it was said.

Pope Calls Upon Catholics To Pray for Peace During May

By the Associated Press.

Vatican City, April 20.—Pope Pius XII called on Catholics of all the world today to join through the month of May in a "crusade of prayer" for peace, urging especially participation by children, "who radiate innocence, gentleness and grace."

In the midst of reproaches, rejoinders and bitterness among nations, all insisting they are for peace, the Pontiff asked that Catholics pray to the Virgin Mary, and expressed confidence that "the heavenly mother will intercede, obtaining from her Divine Son liberation from present anxieties, the peace of hearts and fraternal concord among peoples."

A Vatican news service announced the Pontiff probably would call a consistory for the end of May or the first of June for the naming of new cardinals, probably including one and perhaps two Americans.

The Pontiff received Premier Count Paul Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Stephen Csaky of Hungary today, and foreign observers assumed they discussed conditions in Central Europe.

The exhortation to pray for peace was made in a letter the Pope wrote his Secretary of State, Luigi Cardinal Maglione, who was instructed to make it public.

The Pontiff recalled that after his election March 2 and in his Easter homily he had exhorted "all nations and their governments o sentiments of justice and charity" in the interests of "greatly longed for Christian peace."

Russia and the Allies

By the Associated Press.

London, April 20.—Soviet Russia was reported reliably tonight to have sent the British foreign office proposals which indicated Soviet willingness to participate in the British-French coalition.

A source usually well informed said that the "entire forces" of the three nations would be pledged to resist any aggression in Europe if the proposals were accepted.

The Soviet proposals, which countered those put forward in Moscow by the British Ambassador, Sir William Seeds, to Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff, were being considered by the British foreign office.

It was reported also that talks with Turkey were progressing.

Thus some quarters believed that if agreement could be reached with Moscow, Britain would be able to announce shortly the inclusion of two new allies—one with great reserves of man power and raw materials, and the other of prime strategic importance—in the front she is building to check the Rome-Berlin axis.

Poland, Greece and Rumania already have received promises of French-British aid if their independence is threatened.

Allies Offer Guarantee

By International News Service.

London, April 20.—Great Britain and France tonight offered to guarantee Russia's independence in exchange for Soviet participation in a triple alliance to combat aggression in Europe.

The Anglo-French proposal to Russia, it was learned, embraces the following salient features:

An Anglo-French pledge to help defend Russian independence if threatened.

A Soviet promise to grant the Anglo-French entente full support in the event of a European war, including Russian co-operation with England and France in the Far East under certain circumstances.

A Soviet undertaking to provide aviation aid and naval support in the Mediterranean and Black Seas.

An agreement stating that, should the European peace structure be threatened by an invasion of Poland or Rumania, or both, Russia would place at the disposal of the Anglo-French entente and the entente allies a striking force of Red army troops.

Use of Troops Restricted

Soviet troops—use of which has been the stumbling block toward persuading Poland and Rumania to accept Russian pledges—would be employed in the event of invasion against Poland and Rumania only

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

AMONG OUR HEROES

I stood in a group the other day in which the two leading Presidential aspirants—Dewey and Garner—were standing back to back, chatting with their dewy-eyed admirers . . . Both are small, chunky men, under 5 feet 6, I should say. Dewey is vivacious almost to the point of forcefulness, and Garner, 33 years older, is equally vivacious.

U.&U.

Mrs. Davis . . . adieu art

It must be cheering to men under medium height that among all the 6-footers reaching for the job, the spotlight is for the moment on two men who are physical peewees, though mentally, of course, they are giants . . . And to Dewey and Garner it is obviously exhilarating to be the sampled-survey, weighted-poll and straw-vote future Presidents—almost as exciting as being elected.

* * * *

Most American Presidents have been what we fondly call 6-footers—that is, above 5 feet 10. In modern times only Coolidge has been cast in sparser dimensions; most people thought him tall, too, because he didn't like to be photographed beside 6-footers . . . Any man, of course, is as tall as a microphone . . . To be elected President, naturally, automatically adds 6 inches to a man's stature.

News that Baedeker, the German guidebook man, wants to translate the WPA State guides into German has alarmed some of our more apprehensive patriots.

I have several letters and a telegram, informing me that German troops used their Baedekers when they invaded Belgium, to find their way around, and warning me that they might do the same thing in Massachusetts or Ohio.

Maybe I should pass this warning on to the anti-espionage section of WPA.

ONE of those tense little family episodes occurred when Justice Douglas was inducted to office in the Supreme Court chamber last week. At the most dramatic moment, when pretty Mrs. Douglas had her eyes glued on her husband up there behind the bench, young Bumble Douglas, their 3-year-old heir, whispered in her ear . . . She had to lead him from the chamber by hand.

PAJAMA PORTRAIT

CACTUS JACK

Fortune is a fickle hussy so far as politicians are concerned, but never more so than in the case of Roosevelt and Garner . . .

In 1932 thousands of patriots pretended to be aghast when Cactus Jack was nominated for the Vice Presidency . . .

"What if something (!) should happen to Roosevelt!" they said.

"It's unthinkable that Garner should become President!"

Now the same men think it's unthinkable that Roosevelt should be President, even though he is; and their Garner-love is boundless.

"—transfiguration of Garner"

The bandy-shanked, pot-bellied little man who sits swapping yarns in the Vice President's suite off the Senate chamber, down the hall behind the giant Joffre vases, has done little to cause this miraculous reversal of sentiment.

He just sits there like a political boss in a back room, poking Senators in the ribs, slapping them on the back and preaching the gospel that a tumbler of branch water doesn't do a man any harm at 11:30 in the morning.

While Roosevelt's prestige has gone down, Garner's has gone up. His planks: Economy, normalcy, good-fellowship.

He is a nostalgic symbol of the good old days; maybe if those roly-poly cheeks, bright blue eyes, white eyebrows and ruff of hair were in the White House we might turn back the calendar.

CAPITAL CAVIAR: A Government official tells me there's less interoffice spying going on in the Capital now than in any recent regime . . . After dropping $23,000 in two years on their modern art gallery, two of the town's handsomest matrons—Mrs. Dwight Davis (she was the Mrs. Sabin who nursed repeal) and Mrs. George Garrett are ready to call it quits. Both are conservatives, but the art shown in their galleries was more radical than a New Deal reform . . . After hearing Senator Taft talk at the Gridiron dinner an eminent publisher congratulated Tom Dewey (his GOP rival) on the speech.

Miss Perkins Calls Housing Key to Jobs

67 Industries Depend On Building Activities, She Tells Interviewers

If housing construction could be restored to the 1929 level of activity, 2,800,000 men could be put back to work directly and indirectly, Secretary of Labor Perkins declared last night in a press conference broadcast over a Nation-wide hookup.

"Housing can provide more indirect employment than any other American industry," Miss Perkins said. "Sixty-seven other industries depend on it for their existence, but 800,000 fewer workers are employed today in building than in 1929.

"If we could put these men back to work they would automatically carry back 2,000,000 other workers in railroads, factories, mines and forests."

600,000 Dwellings Needed

Simultaneously, the Commerce Department announced a survey had revealed that the country will need to build almost 600,000 new dwelling units a year for the next five years to keep pace with the probable increases in family population. The survey was prepared for the National Resources Committee by Lowell J. Chawner, chief of the economic research division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

There are estimated to be about 33,000,000 families in the Nation now.

An increase of 400,000 families annually for the next decade is anticipated, and nearly the same annual increase for the ten years ending in 1960, Chawner said. He estimated there will have to be constructed 550,000 new urban dwellings and 40,000 new rural housing units in each of the next five years.

Eleven newspaper correspondents and special writers asked the Labor Secretary questions regarding employment and unemployment problems in her interview broadcast by N. B. C.

Miss Perkins said she felt that all employers should recognize the responsibility for providing stable employment for their workers the year round, so far as this could be done.

Wagner Act Held Blameless

The administration by the National Labor Relations Board of the Wagner labor act, she declared, has had no effect on unemployment.

She felt, however, that peace between the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the American Federation of Labor "would increase the confidence of certain employes to plan new activities and expansions—and ultimately lead to increased employment."

"One thing that would hasten the solution of the unemployment problem," she declared, "would be to eliminate the fear of war that pervades the world today by acceptance by the world powers of the President's suggestion last Saturday."

Aid to Railroads Advocated

Expansion of public health services and further development of recreational facilities would help to stimulate more industrial activity, she said, while employment could be aided by helping the railroads "renew badly needed equipment, locomotives and track"—a thing which she thought could be done without putting additional burden on the Federal budget.

Those participating in the conference were: Ernest K. Lindley, special writer for The Post; Louis Stark, of the New York Times; Ludwell Denny, Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance; Jack Franklin, columnist; Bruce Catton, of the Newspaper Enterprise Association; Felix Cotten, of The Post; John O'Brien, of the New York Herald Tribune; Marquis Childs, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Blair Moody, of the Detroit News; Mary Hornaday, of the Christian Science Monitor, and Blaine Stubblefield, of the McGraw-Hill Publications.

The Gallup Poll

Cut in Spending for Relief, Public Works, Operating Costs Favored by Public

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

New York, April 20.—The present public attitude toward the issue of Federal spending—an issue which Congress is now wrestling with and which may be the dominant factor in the next political campaign—is shown in a national survey conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

GEORGE GALLUP

For over three years Institute surveys have found that the public favored decreases in Government spending. Advocates of spending have wondered what specific items the public wanted cut. Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi has suggested a blanket reduction of 10 per cent in all expenditures. The current study shows that the voters would not approve such a reduction in all items, but would favor a 10 per cent cut in three important branches of spending.

First, a large majority favors reduction in the ordinary operating expenses of the Government—an item which totals more than a billion dollars. Second, a 10 per cent cut in relief expenditures is approved, and third, a 10 per cent cut in the spending for public works.

The Institute survey listed six large items of Government spending—national defense, farm benefits, relief, old-age pensions, public works and ordinary operating expenses—and asked voters throughout the country whether they favored a 10 per cent cut in each item.

The majority wanted no reduction in national defense, farm benefits or social security grants, but favored cuts in the other three, as follows:

"Do you think Federal spending should be reduced by 10 per cent on:

	Yes	No
The Army and Navy ..	19%	81%
Farm Benefits	38	62
Relief	57	43
Public Works	53	47
Ordinary Operating Expenses	69	31
Old-Age Pensions	14	86

The spending question is one which has agitated statesmen and business leaders for many years. Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, recently declared that although he himself favored continued spending, he felt that public opinion was in favor of retrenchment and that the public's wishes should be carried out. Senator Harrison's view is that while complete balancing of the Federal budget is out of the question for the present, a "start" or "approach" should be made.

The Institute survey reveals for the first time where the public wants such a start to be made. It also shows that not all items in the government's spending program are disapproved at this time.

The mixed attitude toward spending extends into the rank and file of both parties. Not all of the New Deal spending program is disapproved by Republicans, and, on the other hand, not all of its is approved by Democrats. A majority of Republicans (77 per cent) want reduction in relief, whereas Democrats are about evenly divided. Democrats oppose reduction in farm benefits, but Republicans favor it. There is also a sharp difference of opinion by parties on public works spending, with Republicans overwhelmingly (80 per cent) in favor of a cut and Democrats opposed to a cut.

But the rank of file of the two parties unite in approving two forms of spending referred to in the survey—national defense and old age pensions. In view of this uniform sentiment, it seems unlikely that any concerted drive will come from the public for reduction in those items.

The survey results likewise emphasize one fact which earlier Institute studies have many times revealed. The drive for reduction in Government spending comes chiefly from the upper and middle income voters, while spending in all form—and especially for relief—is approved by the lower income voters. The only two items on which there is no substantial difference of opinion among income groups are national defense and pensions.

ICC Claims Authority to Protect Labor

Rules It Can Order Safeguards in Passing On Rail Mergers

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday ruled it has authority to impose conditions for the protection of labor in authorizing railroad leases and consolidations.

By a 6-to-4 vote, the commission upheld a decision by its three-member division No. 4 last October in this regard.

The commisson's ruling was in a decision authorizing the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway to lease the properties of the Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf Railway. The Gulf Railway operates only in Texas.

Saving of $100,000

Trustees of the Rock Island estimated the leasing of the Gulf would result in an annual saving of $100,000. The plan involves the transfer of 20 employes from Fort Worth to the Rock Island accounting offices at Chicago, and the dismissal of 40 other workers at Fort Worth unless business increases sufficiently to warrant the retention of some of them.

Conditions imposed by the commission in approving the lease are designed to protect employes who would be required to accept reduced compensation, those who would be dismissed, and those who would be required to change their places of residence to other points on the Rock Island system.

The Rock Island contended that the commission had no authority to impose labor conditions.

"We are not attempting to exercise jurisdiction to regulate employment, nor the compensation of employes, nor their expenses," the commission said. "We are simply attempting in the public interest reasonably to protect those employes of the applicant who may be adversely affected economically by the grant of authority herein against unavoidable but unreasonable and unjust burdens which are not in the public interest."

Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman said in a concurring opinion that he thought "there is reasonable doubt whether in approving this lease we have power, as the law now stands, to attach a condition for the protection of the railroad employes who may be adversely affected thereby," but added:

"Such protection is desirable and in the public interest and I believe the commission is justified in resolving the doubt in favor of the condition."

Chairman Caskie Dissents

Chairman Marion M. Caskie dissented.

"I am fully sympathetic with the humanitarian efforts of the majority," Caskie said, adding that he did not believe the Interstate Commerce act gave the commission jurisdiction to prescribe labor conditions "notwithstanding that they are inherently just and reasonable."

"I am unable to agree that we have been given jurisdiction to regulate carrier employment or the compensation and expenses of carrier employes," Commissioner Charles D. Mahaffie said.

Commissioners William E. Lee and Carroll Miller joined in Mahaffie's dissent.

Commissioners who joined in the majority were E. H. Meyer, John L. Rogers, Claude R. Porter, Frank McManamy, Walter M. W. Splawn and Eastman.

Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison did not participate in the case.

In another decision upholding division No. 4, the commission authorized the Louisiana & Arkansas Railway to acquire control of the Louisiana, Arkansas & Texas Railway.

On Capitol Hill

Senator Donahey Says 'He Will Not Choose To Run' for Re-election in Ohio in 1940

By International News Service.

Senator Vic Donahey (Democrat), of Ohio, said yesterday he will not choose to run for re-election when his present term expires in 1940.

DONAHEY

The Senator known as "Honest Vic" in numerous political campaigns in the Buckeye State was elected in 1934 after previously serving three consecutive terms as governor. Prior to that service he was State auditor for eight years. He is a bank director and president of an insurance company, in addition to being a member of the International Typographical Union.

Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, claims the inside track on the question whether President Roosevelt will seek a third term.

Recently Tobey took a number of books from the Congressional Library. One which was marked "by transfer White House," was entitled:

"How to Get a Position or How to Answer a Want Ad."

Chairman Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois, of the House Rules Committee, said yesterday, after a visit to the White House, that President Roosevelt will approve the Merritt bill which appropriates an additional $1,048,000 for construction on the New York World's Fair.

Congress was asked today by Postmaster General Farley to enact legislation to bar from the United States mails any letters soliciting procurement of divorces from foreign countries.

His defense of "innocent victims of such alleged divorces" was contained in a letter to Speaker Bankhead of the House.

The House unanimously and without debate, approved a change in its rules to provide for the admission of radio news gatherers to the press gallery of the chamber.

A separate gallery and facilities from those of the newspaper correspondents will be established for the radio-reporters.

The Senate approved and sent to the White House a bill authorizing the President to assign Federal scientific and technical experts for temporary duty with Latin-American governments.

A joint resolution permitting the Government to accept as a gift the State papers, library and a portion of the Hyde Park estate of President Roosevelt as a permanent Federal institution was passed by the Senate and sent to the House. The President had announced intention of making the donation. Majority Leader Barkley sponsored the legislation to permit it.

Luhring to Pass On Stinson Trust

Justice Luhring yesterday added one more to the questions he will decide in the Stinson case after reviewing the testimony of the last six weeks.

Before him is Mrs. Pepita Crouse Stinson's suit to void her marriage to Joseph Stinson. She has a separate suit pending to cancel a $230,000 trust fund which he was to get after her death.

The justice said that since the trust fund had been brought into the annulment case he did not see how he could refrain from passing on it.

Got a "Nose for News"?

One sniff and there's no if about it!

For Signet is light as Scotch! Delicate in bouquet and flavor. Gloriously rich and ripe, yes—but not heavy. The first bonded whiskey to meet the taste of the time.

Why the amazing difference? Here's the Signet secret:

This American bonded whiskey is aged like the best Canadian and Scotch whiskies—like the royal brandies of France and sherries of Spain—in aged wood.

For Signet spends four years in oaken casks which have been pre-mellowed by prior use in aging other fine Hiram Walker whiskies. No other bottled-in-bond whiskey has ever been aged this way.

Say "Signet" today—for a glorious new taste-thrill!

1. "Say!" exclaimed the guest, "this is different . . . deliciously light. What is it?"
2. "Signet is different. It's aged like fine Scotch and Canadian whiskies...in aged wood.
3. "Signet is the first American bonded whiskey aged that way, but it costs no more."

Judge Frees 28 M.P.H. Driver; 3 Over Limit 'Not Enough'

Washington's first "test" case under the new 25-mile-an-hour speed limit was dismissed in Traffic Court yesterday when Judge Walter J. Casey ruled there was not enough "leeway" between 28 miles an hour and the 25-mile limit.

Yesterday's case was presented in Traffic Court by Traffic Policeman Craig Smith. The defendant was Speros G. Mantalvmos, a taxi driver. Smith said he paced the defendant three blocks along Constitution avenue at 28 miles an hour.

Judge Casey asked the officer if Mantalvmos was driving recklessly and was told he was not. After learning the offense occurred about 12:30 p. m., Judge Casey said:

"I'm afraid there is not enough leeway between 28 and 25 miles for me to uphold the prosecution. I'll dismiss the case."

During agitation for the increased speed limit, it was pointed out that arrests under the 22-mile limit were seldom made for speeds less than 30 miles an hour. One of the stipulations made by the Commissioners in adopting the increased limit was "rigid enforcement."

"The law remains on the books," said Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent yesterday, "and we will continue to see that it is strictly enforced. It was my understanding that the Police Department was expected to enforce this 25-mile law when it was established."

Mrs. Randle Says She Was 'Railroaded'

So Explains Two Previous Convictions in Healer Racket Trial

Rosalyn Randle yesterday told a jury, trying her on charges she conducted a healing racket, that she was "railroaded" in Massachusetts and "forced" to plead guilty in North Carolina when tried in those States for practicing medicine without a license.

Assistant District Attorney Caldwell cross-examined Mrs. Randle on her past life, her education and the training which she claims made reasonable the $500 she charged to treat Rufus Reed, University of Pennsylvania graduate, for a suicide complex he testified he never had.

Mrs. Randle said some of her degrees came from institutions now out of business and admitted that others were conferred without the formality of her attending classes. Caldwell showed her the book, "Proper Diet for Every Case of Impaired Health," which listed Dr. Helen Randle as a contributor.

And was Mrs. Randle a doctor of medicine? Caldwell asked.

"Oh, no," she replied. "I am a doctor of divinity."

Dr. Roy Wilson Beale, of Bethelhem, Pa., testified that Mrs. Randle was a diet expert, but admitted he went J. P. Foley, assistant secretary of the District Licensure Commission and asked, "Who is this Randle woman?"

Dean F. H. A. Calhoun, of Clemson University, took the stand and denied Mrs. Randle's story that she once taught dietetics and hygiene there. She did teach public speaking, Calhoun said.

Arguments will be heard today and the case will go to the jury Monday.

Navy Testing New Alloy for Gun Linings

Development Adds to Armament's Life, Committee Told

The Navy is testing a new alloy for the lining of big guns which officials believe may enable warships to continue firing five times as long as is possible at present.

Considered of the greatest importance to the fighting power of the fleet, which now must retire to bases for reboring of their guns after only about a hundred rounds of ammunition have been fired, its development will be advanced by special funds to be included in the naval appropriation act, a Congressional leader revealed.

Chairman Scrugham, of the House Naval Appropriations Sub-committee, said members of the group plan to include a special research fund in the bill, to be reported in about a week, for testing the new alloy and other promising developments in naval equipment.

Other Tests Planned

Another research project scheduled under the special appropriation is the development of instruments for testing metals for "fatigue," Chairman Scrugham said. Scientists hold that metals become "tired" after repeated use—just as do humans, he declared, and if they can be periodically examined for such "fatigue," accidents can be greatly avoided in many cases. The numerous reports of airplane crashes in which material failure is given as the cause, indicates the possibilities in this field he pointed out.

Scrugham said the Bureau of Ordnance already is working on the gun lining alloy. The tests will be conducted at the Naval Research Laboratory here, he said.

Meanwhile, yesterday, the House completed action on a $66,800,000 naval air base bill and sent it to the President for signature. It would establish a chain of strategically located bases in Alaska, Puerto Rico, the mid-Pacific and the United States proper.

Without a voice raised in opposition, the measure was called up, approval given to two Senate amendments and final passage ordered. As the bill went through the House some weeks ago it provided bases at Kodiak and Sitka, Alaska; Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, Midway, Wake, Johnston and Palmyra Islands in the mid-Pacific, San Juan, Puerto Rico, and Tongue Point, Oreg., and expansion of facilities at Pensacola, Fla.; Philadelphia, Norfolk, Va., and Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. The Senate amended the measure to provide a $17,000,000 air base at Jacksonville, Fla., and $1,000,000 for purchase of land for a similar base at Quonset Point, R. I.

Several Measures Approved

Funds for starting work on the air bases, viewed as of the greatest importance to the defense of Hawaii, the West Coast and the Panama Canal, may be included in the regular naval appropriation bill, it is said.

While the House was acting on this measure, the Senate passed several national defense measures. Among them were three bills designed to stream-line the Coast Guard for war and peace service. Three large cutters, built to Navy design, 15 large seaplanes and a cutter and air base in Alaska are provided under one of them, while the others expand the officer strength by 20 per cent and institute procedure for weeding out older and less efficient men.

Also approved by the Senate was a bill to permit the Army to buy secret aircraft instruments and parts without public advertising. All of the measures now go to the House for action.

Bishops Assail Bigotry at Conference

Prelates Attending Welfare Parley Cite Pius XI's Teachings

Bigotry in all forms was condemned by the bishops composing the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference during their semiannual meeting here.

The bishops warned against racial prejudices and cited the opinion of the late Pope Pius XI that it is impossible for Christians to practice anti-Semitism. They expressed regret at prevalence of propaganda "in the interest of systems and theories antagonistic to the principles of democracy and the teachings of Christianity."

Praise was sounded for the educational movement inaugurated by the Catholic University of America "for a better understanding of loyalties and civic virtues in a Christian democracy." A statement authorized by the board and issued by the National Catholic Welfare Conference, said:

"We wish to call attention to the laudable educational movement sponsored and directed by the Catholic University of America for a better understanding of loyalties and civic virtues in a Christian democracy. We regret and deplore the widespread propaganda in the interests of systems and theories antagonistic to the principles of democracy and the teachings of Christianity. A Christian people will oppose these dangerous aberrations with all the might of Christian charity. For that very reason our people will be on their guard against all forms of racial bigotry, of which Pope Pius XI, speaking of a pertinent instance, said: 'It is not possible for Christians to take part in anti-Semitism.'"

Helen Hayes Pleads Here for Bill to Admit 20,000 Child Refugees From Reich to U. S.

Actress Appears Before Lawmakers As 'American Mother'

A plea to admit 20,000 German refugee children to the United States in the next two years was made before a Congressional committee yesterday by a trim, soft-spoken woman who gave as her "credentials" the simple fact that she was "an American mother."

The witness, Mrs. Charles MacArthur—more familiar to millions of theatergoers as Helen Hayes—declared she wanted the refugee bill passed "as an example to my children."

"I want very much that they grow up without race prejudice," she said. "I want to be able to say: 'Your country proved its repudiation of race prejudice and brutality by passage of this bill.'"

Cites Mothers' Anguish

Miss Hayes said it was "brutalizing" to read that shiploads of refugees, including many children, had been "turned away from port after port."

"The anguish of German mothers who send their children away to strange lands and people," she said, "is the most poignant evidence of their need."

"I beg you to let them in," pleaded Miss Hayes, mother of one child and foster-mother of another.

In answer to a question of Representative Kramer (Democrat), of California, she said she "would gladly adopt a child I had never seen if there were safeguards against its being mentally deficient."

Bill Is Wagner's

Introduced in the Senate by Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, the resolution on which hearings were held yesterday provides that 10,000 German children, 14 years old or less may be admitted to this country over and above quota limitations for each of the years 1939 and 1940. The resolution stipulates that the children be privately sponsored and "consequently not become public charges." A companion measure has been introduced in the House by Representative Rogers (Republican), of Massachusetts.

Heading a long list of witnesses supporting the resolution, Senator Wagner asserted that admission of the children can be accomplished "without any danger of dislocating American industry or displacing American labor."

In this plan, he said, "lies the most immediate and practical contribution which could be made by our liberty-loving people to the cause of human freedom."

A. F. L. and C. I. O. Approve

Representatives of both A. F. L. and C. I. O. testified to labor's approval of the proposal. John Brophy, director of the C. I. O., said "America should be true to its great tradition," while Joseph A. Padway, A. F. L. counsel, declared he favored the resolution "wholeheartedly."

Admission of the refugee children "will not affect labor in the least," Padway said.

Sole witness to appear against the plan was Mrs. Edward B. Huling, of Larchmont, N. Y., who said she represented 42 allied patriotic societies.

Fears Hardship

Asserting that it is "against the best interests of the United States to accept these children," Mrs. Huling said it "would be working a hardship on the children" to break up their homes by inviting them to America. When Representative O'Day (Democrat), of New York, asked if that objection applied to children whose homes have already been broken up, whose parents have been killed or jailed, Mrs. Huling responded that "there are too many excuses."

"We ought to put our own 12,000,000 unemployed to work first," she said. She maintained that once the children arrived, their parents would want to join them in the United States.

Mrs. Huling was immediately followed to the witness stand by Mrs. Paul Sifton, wife of the deputy administrator of the Wage and Hour Division, Department of Labor. Mrs. Sifton, favoring the resolution, said she was "one of the younger group of members of the D. A. R. who remember that the American Revolution was fought to give minority groups a chance to be free."

Dr. Rasmussen Testifies

The Rev. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, pastor of the Luther Place Memorial Church, of Washington, and president of the Maryland Synod of the United Lutheran Church, told the committee that "the Christian religion is utterly irreconcilable with the totalitarian philosophy of the Nazis."

Clarence E. Pickett and Robert Balderston, of the American Friends Service Committee, described from first-hand knowledge the plight of the estimated 130,000 children of Jews, "non-Aryans," and anti-Nazi "Aryans" who lead a "nightmarish" existence in Germany today.

Others who appeared before the committee, which will continue its hearings today, included Wilbur LaRoe, Washington attorney; Representative Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan; Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Soffe, of Detroit; Sidney Hollander, of Baltimore; Read Lewis and Mrs. Gertrude F. Zimand.

A statement issued after the meeting said that "the progress made in this country was discussed fully in the light of the progress known to have been made in European research centers."

The necessity of greatly expanding the committee's research facilities was discussed at the meeting, it was stated, with action being deferred to the near future. The discussion, it was said, "emphasized that the quality of the research in the United States is second to none, but that, in view of the expanded aviation program, it is necessary to have more research facilities to investigate the many pressing problems, and to have newer types of facilities for the scientific study of new problems incident to larger size and higher speed of aircraft."

Members attending the meeting of the committee, which is the Government's principal air research agency, included Orville Wright, pioneer inventor of airplanes; Dr. C. G. Abbott, of the Smithsonian Institution, who presided, and high officials of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and Army and Navy aviation.

Axis Reported Ready to Offer Balkan Pacts

Border Guarantees For Balkan Nations Said to Be Studied

Budapest, April 20.—British-French guarantees of independence to certain Balkan states may be matched by the Rome-Berlin axis with guarantees to other states in this region, diplomatic sources said today.

"The west has played one card in the Balkans and the axis is about to play the next," one observer asserted.

Thus, while the western powers have assured Rumania and Greece of assistance if they be menaced, observers said the feasibility of similar guarantees by the axis to Hungary and Yugoslavia would be considered by the Italian foreign minister, Count Ciano, and the Yugoslav foreign minister, Alexander Cincar-Markovich, in their discussions at Venice Saturday.

Would Freeze Frontiers

The effect of such a line-up would be that the Balkan frontiers would be "frozen" by external guarantees and any effort to change the borders would immediately involve the danger of conflict among distant guarantor powers.

Diplomatic quarters held that the Rome-Berlin guarantees to Hungary and Yugoslavia would not be feasible if these two little states created discord by presenting claims against each other.

Consequently, it was asserted, Italy placed great importance on establishing harmonious relations between Yugoslavia and Hungary.

Hungary May Drop Claims

Marked progress in eliminating differences between Budapest and Belgrade has been made lately. There was evidence that Hungary might be persuaded to drop comparatively trifling revisionist claims against Yugoslavia and that a friendship or nonaggression pact between the countries might be one consequence of the Venice conference.

Still unprovided for in the guarantee system was Bulgaria, which was listening to offers from both sides in the diplomatic struggle for military and economic prizes in the Balkans.

Duce Rejects U. S. Peace Bid As Absurd seemed to indicate "a program of concentration" was in course.

"Concentration is an act of war because it is a prelude to war," the newspaper said.

Further delay in withdrawing Italian legionnaires from Spain was indicated in an announcement that the victory parade of the Spanish nationalists in Madrid probably would be postponed to May 30.

(It originally was believed the parade, in which the Italians are to take part, would be held about May 2. Subsequently the date was shifted to May 15.)

Although 2,000 Italians recently were brought home and some other units were reported ready to return from Spain, Italy has asserted the formal withdrawal of troops would not take place until after the parade.

Busy in Balkans

Italy meanwhile vigorously continued her diplomatic activities in the Balkans, and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's conference this week-end in Venice with Alexander Cinca-Markovich, Yugoslavia's foreign minister, was expected here to bring reassurances of Yugoslav friendliness.

Informed sources said Ciano at Venice also would be a go-between for a rapprochement between Hungary and Yugoslavia.

It was pointed out that this would improve Italy's military situation in event of possible war by eliminating the Adriatic as a war front.

Duce's Broadcast Text

By the Associated Press.

Rome, April 20.—The text of Premier Mussolini's broadcast speech today before a committee on organization of the 1942 Rome Universal Exposition, in which he replied to President Roosevelt's peace proposals, follows:

This solemn meeting of ours on Capitoline Hills is the first act of a great mobilization. Let not the few, the many, the too many who beyond the frontier abandon themselves to hysteria of comment be alarmed at the sound of this word. It refers to a civil, pacific mobilization without arms outside of those used in the labor of 15,000 workers. It refers to the beginning of systematic effort and to co-ordination of all national energies in order that the world exposition of 1942 may be worthy of Rome of Fascist Italy, and of the title of "The Olympiad of Civilization," with which it has been announced to the world.

If we had any intention of lighting the fuse, if we were cherishing obscure, aggressive designs we would not be dedicating ourselves as we are doing, to work of such vast proportions—that of organizing a world exposition. Nor would we have invited other nations to take part in it. Many of these, in accepting our invitation, have shown that they share our ideas concerning the development of events.

If, in spite of the storm clouds which pile up on the horizon, we have dared to work, and are continuing to work with alacrity, this should be considered a promising indication that we do not intend to attack anyone, and that we want, instead, to continue our work. It is, therefore, absolutely unjust and unjustifiable from any point of view to attempt to place nations of the axis on the seat of the accused.

Declared Absurd

No less absurd is the proposal of reciprocal guarantees lasting ten years which do not take into account the pyramidal errors of geography into which individuals have fallen who have not even the most rudimentary knowledge of European affairs.

As for the proposed expansive conference in which the United States would limit itself effectively to its customary role of distant spectator, experience gives us some bitter lessons on this score; namely that the greater the number of conferees the more certainty there is of failure.

Whether or not any reply is sent to the well known message I cannot pass up this occasion to reaffirm that the policy of Rome and of the axis is a policy inspired by the criterions of peace and of collaboration, of which German and Italy have given many concrete proofs.

It is therefore time to reduce to silence the sowers of panic, anticipators of catastrophes, professional fatalists who often cover with a great banner their fear, their insensate hatred, or defense of their more or less inadmissible interests.

We however do not allow ourselves to be impressed by press campaigns or convivial vociferations, or by messiah-like messages, because we have a tranquil conscience and we have both men and means to defend the peace of all, along with our own.

Stresses Roman Arch

The universal exposition of Rome is to be a consecration of all efforts which all civilized people make along the path of progress, and not only material progress.

Every Italian must feel himself personally engaged from today onward. The Italian part in 1942 exposition is destined to remain throughout the centuries in buildings which will have proportions of St. Peter's and the coliseum.

You who will today visit the area of the three fountains (exposition grounds) will have an idea of the vastness of the work which has been undertaken, which, thanks to the constructive fervor of the contractors and workers, will be completed even before three years have elapsed.

I am certain that you will derive from your visit an absolutely enthusiastic impression. Everything will be dominated by a gigantic Roman arch which we like to think of as a symbol of human will extended in its effort to realize peace on a great and truly indestructible basis of justice which reconciles its iron laws with those of light.

4½-Hr. Parade Marks Hitler's 50th Birthday

Million Line March; Fuehrer Is Made Citizen of Danzig

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 20.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler, in a display of armed might obviously intended to impress a nervous world with the vastness of Nazi preparedness, today celebrated his fiftieth birthday with the greatest military parade in Berlin's history.

For 4½ hours the clatter of grim engines of destruction, the tramp of 40,000 soldiers and the roar of squadrons of warplanes dinned into the ears of several hundred thousand spectators.

Enthusiastic Nazis said the throngs that lined the 3-mile route along the "Avenue of Splendor," Berlin's new boulevard from the old imperial castle to the Technology School, exceeded 1,000,000.

The Fuehrer was visibly stirred by the acclamation of the crowds as he stood with arm upraised in Nazi salute to review the great parade.

With him in the reviewing stand in front of the Technology School were his staff, headed by Field Marshal Goering and Grand Admiral Raeder, chief of staff of the navy; foreign military attaches stationed in Berlin, including the attache of the United States Embassy, and official delegations from 20 nations.

One of the host of gifts that arrived in tribute to the World War corporal who became "Augmentor of the Reich"—builder of greater Germany—was an honorary citizenship in the Free City of Danzig.

(Hitler has increased Germany's area and population by about one-fourth in the past 14 months—from 67,000,000 inhabitants to 87,000,000 and from 208,000 square miles to 260,000.)

Hitler received the Danzig honorary citizenship from Albert Foerster, Nazi district leader of the once-German free city, shortly before the parade began.

Rumors for days had said the Fuehrer would receive not only citizenship but Danzig itself as a birthday tribute but he celebrated his milestone without adding more territory to his empire.

With the honorary citizenship, however, Foerster made an allusion that might be interpreted as expressing what Danzig Nazis have in mind. He brought Hitler tidings of the Baltic seaport in which Poland has a vital interest and said:

"In the last few years, from all points of view, you have done isolated Danzig Germans so much good that it long has been our most fervent desire to give you outward expression of our thankfulness.

"Today the time has arrived, my Fuehrer, when we are able to give you this thanks before the entire world."

Hitler Expresses Gratitude

Hitler, in reply, so far as was made public, merely thanked Foerster and asked him to transmit expressions of his gratitude and greetings to the people of Danzig.

As widely remarked as was the display of several new antiaircraft guns was the presence for the first tiem at a Hitler birthday celebration of the Papal Nuncio, Mgr. Cesare Orsenigo. As dean of the diplomatic corps, Mgr. Arsenigo was assigned to the front row of the diplomatic tribune, where he stood hatless throughout the long parade and was seen to use his binoculars interestedly.

Nazi newspapers mentioned conspicuously the fact that the representative of the Holy See had participated. The question asked among diplomats was whether this did not presage an effort by Pope Pius XII to regulate the Vatican's relations with Nazi Germany as his predecessor, Pope Pius XI, had done with Fascist Italy a decade ago through the Lateran accord.

Although gigantic in scope, the parade divulged few new military weapons.

Most discussed were the heavy antiaircraft guns which were so long they and their mounts had to be carried on four trucks. Germany was known previously to have developed an excellent antiaircraft gun, but it was, by comparison, small and innocent looking.

"Little Bertha" Paraded

To wind up the parade on an enthusiastic note for those who had stood for hours, Hitler showed several pieces of "Little Bertha" artillery—heavy long-range cannon that were carried on six trucks.

These were first shown last autumn in a parade honoring the visit to Berlin of Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary.

Displayed for the first time was a regiment of parachute jumpers. For most of the passing troops Hitler looked straight ahead, but his eyes followed the parachute jumpers approvingly even after they had long passed the stand.

The Fuehrer, who is also commander-in-chief of Germany's military forces, rode the length of the parade route to open and close the demonstration.

At 11 a. m. (5 a. m., E. S. T.), while 162 warplanes of the training school roared overhead, he left the army camp at Luftgarten, slowly riding to his reviewing tribune. He repeated this as far as the chancellery amidst wild acclam at the end of the show at 3:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m., E. S. T.).

Most of the thousands of onlookers had had little or no lunch. Wives of guests in the diplomatic tribune munched sandwiches while their husbands took notes.

Hitler Goes Foodless

Hitler himself took no nourishment, waiting until he returned to the chancellery where he gave a tea for foreign guests.

During breaks in the parade he had sat in a gilded imperial chair with arm rests—a new departure for the Fuehrer.

Crowds jammed Wilhelmplatz from dawn, chorusing "Wir Gratulieren! Wir Gratulieren!"—"We congratulate you! We congratulate you!"—a shout they repeated later during pauses in the parade.

The final tribute came from representatives of German minorities from all parts of Europe, most of them dressed in the colorful costumes of their regions.

The 20 nations having special delegations were Italy, Japan, Hungary, Turkey, Spain, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Denmark, Finland, Greece, Yugoslavia, Lithuania, the Netherlands, Norway, Rumania, Sweden, Siam and Slovakia.

The United States was represented at the review by Charge d'Affaires Raymond H. Geist. The United States Embassy flew the Stars and Stripes, in keeping with the custom for such events.

Hull Answers Attack on Kennedy

Secretary of State Hull yesterday defended Joseph P. Kennedy, American Ambassador to London, from two recent attacks.

Philip F. LaFollette, former Governor of Wisconsin, had charged that Kennedy was sympathetic to the undemocratic elements in Great Britain. Dr. Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda chief, had said the Ambassador was a master conspirator in a plot to add the United States to an iron ring around Germany.

Hull told reporters:

"I certainly do not think there is anything serious about being attacked from a so-called progressive liberal or similar angle one day and in the next day from the opposite angle of reactionaryism.

"I do not think it is much reflection on our Ambasador. At least it did not make an impression on us and I doubt if it makes any on the country."

Text of Pope's Peace Prayer Plea to Faith

By the Associated Press.

Vatican City, April 20.—Following is a translation of the text as published in L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, of a letter from Pope Pius XII to his secretary of state, Luigi Cardinal Maglione, urging a "world crusade of prayer" during the month of May:

You who so closely assist us in the government of the Catholic Church know very well how ardently we desire and invoke God that ultimately minds may change to sentiments of justice and charity so that the so greatly longed for Christian peace among all nations and peoples, now so agitated and preoccupied, may be consolidated profoundly and permanently.

Since we were elevated to the supreme pontificate it was precisely concerning this peace—the sublime gift of God—that we, with the heart of a father, exhorted not only our individual sons in Christ scattered everywhere throughout the world, but also all nations and their governments.

And on the solemn day of Easter in the basilica of St. Peter, where among a numberless multitude of people we offered pontifically the divine sacrifice, we repeated the same invitation and same exhortation, begging concord and transquility for all of Jesus Christ, conqueror of death and giver of celestial peace.

Asks Public Prayers

Now, then, as the month of May approaches, when the faithful are accustomed to raise special prayers to the Holy Virgin, it is close to our hearts to express the very earnest desire that in this very period public prayers in the cause herein indicated be offered in various dioceses and parishes.

But in this crusade of prayer we like to incite especially those we lie to incite especially those whom we, following the example of the Divine Redeemer of whom we are vicar on earth, love with especially tender affection: We mean children who, in the first flower of life, radiate innocence, gentleness and grace. May fathers and mothers with pious custom accompany their children, even to the littlest ones, every day to the altar of the virgin, presenting them to her along with flowers from their gardens and fields and together with their prayers and those of their children. And how could the heavenly mother fail to heed so many supplicant voices imploring peace for citizens, for peoples, for nations?

How could she fail to heed them if with the prayers of the angels of heaven there should be intertwined those of children whom one may call angels of this earth? Certainly the virgin mother of God, invoked by such prayers, will offer her aid and her intercession in this moment of universal trepidation and, by inviting the favor of her divine son offended by so many sins, will obtain from Him liberation from present anxieties, the peace of hearts and fraternal concord among peoples.

Enjoy the Fruits

And will the same blessed Jesus who, during his mortal life, loved the age of innocence with particular affection and who, with the words "let little children come unto me because theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven," rebuked the apostles because they desired to remove children from his embrace; will the same blessed Jesus, we say, hear any other prayers more readily than those of children who raise to Him and to His celestial mother their white supplicant hands?

Since, therefore, everywhere, in cities, in towns and even in the most remote villages illuminated by the light of the gospel, children will troop to the churches during the coming month of May to offer up their supplications, it may be hoped that once mutual rancors are appeased, minds pacified and dissension among peoples controlled, better times may arrive for humanity under the auspices of the Virgin.

For this reason, with this letter we commission you, beloved sons, to make public in the manner you may consider best these fraternal wishes and earnest exhortations of ours to the end that with the guidance of the holy pastors they may be happily translated into action.

And, meanwhile, comforted by joyful hopes and enjoying in advance the fruits we are promising ourselves from this crusade of prayer, we impart from a full heart on you, beloved sons, and on all those very dear children who will respond with emotion to this appeal of ours, the apostolic blessing, auspice of the celestial grace and token of our paternal benevolence.

Canada Sets Net For Mysterious Submarine

Halifax, Nova Scotia, April 20 (INS).—The Royal Canadian navy late today began stretching a submarine net across the entrance of Halifax Harbor, following numerous reports by marines that a mysterious undersea craft had been sighted cruising off the Nova Scotia coast.

The net, it was stated in official quarters, was being laid from Purcells Cove to McNabs Island, and will prevent any undersea craft from entering the harbor.

Meanwhile, two mine sweepers headed for the open sea on a scouting expedition for the reported submarine, and two destroyers, the Skeena and Saguenay, were provisioned and refuled to head for sea to try to find the submersible.

Britain Acts To Put Industry On War Footing

Chamberlain Forms Ministry of Supply; Burgin Is Head

By Frank B. Kelley

Special Cable to The Post.

London, April 20.—Yielding to strong pressure from Parliament, the press and the members of his own cabinet, Prime Minister Chamberlain today took a major step toward placing British industry on a war-time footing, by announcing a ministry of supply would be established, with power to conscript factories for military production at the expense of ordinary trade.

The minister of supply, Britain's first industrial dictator since the World War, will be Leslie Burgin, 51-year-old minister of transport. Chamberlain passed over the claims of Winston Churchill and Anthony Eden to this new cabinet office. Burgin is a lawyer with a gift for languages. During the war he served as an intelligence officer.

Burgin's selection for the ministry of supply does not bar Churchhill from the cabinet, however. An opening might be found for him if Viscount Runciman, as expected, resigned his post as lord president of the council on the ground of illness. Under this title, it was believed, Churchill might be given wider powers to act as the cabinet's "trouble shooter."

Laborite Surprised

Burgin never has been an outstanding member of the cabinet, and when Chamberlain announced his appointment in the House of Commons this afternoon, a Laborite shouted, "Oh, my God," voicing the widespread opinion Churchill was the only man for the job.

The new ministry will be given wide power to obtain complete priority of production of equipment for the British army, which finds itself sadly in arrears in machine-guns, anti-tank guns, anti-aircraft guns, and tanks. Expansion of the British expeditionary force from 19 to 32 divisions has put a severe strain on production.

Until now the government has been reluctant to compel its wealthy and powerful industrialist supporters to devote their plants to national requirements, rather than more lucrative ones of private business.

For the time being the government is satisfied that the navy and the royal air force are obtaining ships, weapons and planes with the minimum of difficulty. After Burgin has tackled the army's problem, however, he is expected to centralize the output of materials for the other services as well.

Purposes Outlined

One of the immediate functions of the supply ministry, Chamberlain told the Commons, would be to take over certain stores of general use which the war ministry already supplies to other government departments. The ministry will also be reshponsible for the acquisition and maintenance of reserves of essential metals, and other materials required for the defense program.

As an example of Burgin's powers, it was said that in special circumstances he might compel automobile manufacturers to stotp work and begin making tanks. He also will be able to impose a time limit for selling government contracts.

It was believed American imports of British manufacture may be affected through Burgin's additional power to force firms to delay foreign contracts and abandon domestic orders completely.

Chamberlain did not announce Burgin's successor at the transport ministry, and political observers believed Chamberlain might drop the post from cabinet rank. Euan Wallace, financial secretary to the Treasury, might get the job in any case, it was thought.

Tour Arranged For Nicaraguan President, Wife

The State Department announced yesterday the program for the visit here of President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua.

It said Somoza and his party, including his wife and Foreign Minister Cordero Reyes, would be met here by President and Mrs. Roosevelt on May 5.

The two chief executives will head an automobile procession to the White House, where a reception will be given for foreign envoys in Somoza's honor. Somoza is to visit Mount Vernon and Arlington Cemetery, then return to the White House for a state dinner and musical.

After spending the night at the White House, President and Mrs. Somoza are to be guests at the Nicaraguan Legation for the rest of their stay here.

Somoza will visit Congress May 8, the University of Maryland May 9, and on May 10 the Marine Barracks at Quantico.

Winston Churchill Says:

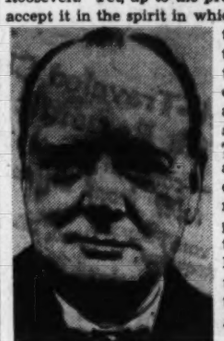
'No' to Roosevelt Puts War Blame on Axis

Rejection of Peace Appeal Will Indicate Friendly Gestures Are Unavailing, World Must Face Conflict

By Winston Churchill.

By Wireless and Special Wire to The Post.

London, April 20.—It seems difficult to believe that the two dictators will reject the fair and friendly offer extended to them by President Roosevelt. Yet, up to the present moment, there is no sign that they will accept it in the spirit in which it was made. Should we eventually have to recognize that it has been thrust back in the teeth of the United States it will be clear that the larger hopes of the world have received a very heavy blow. The two dictators and their associates will have placed themselves and their associates in a class apart. They will have shown that their intentions are dark and malignant, that friendly processes are of no avail and that civilization must shortly withstand the onslaught of desperate men. Such rejection will prove, even to the most doubting, that the Nazi and Fascist dictatorships have no confidence that their alleged grievances and evident ambitions could stand the test of faithful investigation.



CHURCHILL

If this should unhappily prove true we must nonetheless regard the President's peace message as a weighty contribution to the cause of collective security. All the 31 states for whom he appealed, except those gripped by the Nazi terror, will be inclined to range themselves upon the side of peace and law. The recalcitrants will place themselves, to a large extent, in the dock. The process of building up a strong alliance of peace-seeking states against further aggression must receive a notable stimulus in Europe.

U. S. Developing Opinion

The growing convictions of the people of the United States will be proportionately fortified. We may be certain that the United States will not intervene in any European quarrels. But they seem to be developing a very definite opinion of their own. At the time of writing we can but hope that Hitler and Mussolini will not allow this new ray of light to die without realizing that it may not shine again. (Premier Mussolini's speech rejecting President Roosevelt's plea was made in Rome after Mr. Churchill's article was transmitted.)

Meanwhile our minds turn naturally upon the position of Franco. There is no doubt it is very different from that adopted by him in the September crisis. He then, much to the displeasure of Hitler, declared himself resolved to be neutral. But at that time he had on his mind a life and death struggle with republican Spain and all his armies extended on the long fronts of the civil war. Now that all Republican resistance has been crushed he may feel himself less held by local necessities and at the same time more gripped in Nazi and Fascist hands. The British Conservative right wing who have given him such passionate support must now be given to many misgivings. There is no doubt that all kinds of potentially hostile preparations are being made opposite to Gibraltar.

More Italians in Spain

We are certainly being fooled about the departure of the Italian troops. They were all to go, at the latest, when the war was over. Then they were to go by the middle of April, then instead of going large additional numbers of Italian troops were landed. But this, we were assured, was only for the victory parade and the triumphal entry into Madrid. Here again there are postponements. This event cannot apparently be hastened. It was fixed for May 2. It has now been postponed till May 15. Much may happen before May 15. Meanwhile, the Italian government are prodigal in their assurances that they will keep the word that they have passed to Chamberlain and the British government. These assurances are, of course, not in themselves worth the breath that uttered them.

There is another respect in which the British relations with Franco are worse than in September. At that time Spanish Morocco was virtually undefended and it would not have been difficult for a French or British-French force to take possession of the heavy batteries erected on the African side. But now a large Spanish army of seasoned troops is available for their defense. We are told the Moorish troops are being repatriated to Morocco. This very natural operation does not touch the fact of the part these troops would play when they have reached their homeland.

Fleet Movement Puzzling

In September last, or indeed as late as February, British and French naval, military and air forces could have occupied the island of Minorca at the invitation of a friendly Spanish republican government. But such an act would be justifiable only if some overt aggression had been committed by the Franco government, and by that time the operation would have become more difficult.

It is upon this foundation that the proposed movement of a portion of the German fleet for exercises on the coast of Spain must be studied. On the other hand, the movement is capable of a sinister interpretation. The arrival of a German fleet at Cadiz or at Cartagena might well be intended to put the final screw on Franco and drag the Spanish people into the cauldron of a world struggle. Alternatively, these battleships would be well placed at Cadiz to strike at all the trade reaching the British Isles from the Atlantic.

Spain Profited in Last War

It would be a pity not to dwell upon the opposite factors which may determine Franco's choice if indeed he is allowed to choose. Spain has just emerged from a civil war which has torn the whole nation in twain.

One side has triumphed by foreign aid, and the vanquished are, for the moment, crushed and impotent. The only plan for the Spanish people is to unite in rebuilding their shattered cities and devastated social life. This hope can only be realized by neutrality. In the great war neutrality was very profitable to Spain.

The possibilities remain either that Gen. Franco is intoxicated by his success or that he is no longer a free agent to act in the true interests of his country.

At a moment like this every one must sympathize with Mr. Chamberlain in his grievous responsibilities. No prime minister in modern times has had so much personal power to guide affairs.

Everything that he has asked of the nation has been granted, and when he has not asked what many thought necessary no steps have been taken to persuade him. There never has been in England such a one-man government as that under which we have dwelt for the last year. He has purged his cabinet of every dissentinent or questioning voice. He has taken the whole burden upon himself and we can only trust that he will not be found unequal to it, for otherwise we may be drawn into the worst of wars in the worst of ways.

George Felicitates Hitler Without Wishing 'Returns'

Special Cable to The Post.

London, April 20.—King George VI met the requirements of protocol today by telegraphing birthday congratulations to Reichsfuehrer Hitler from Windsor Castle. Though the text of the King's message was not issued, it was learned he did not wish the fuehrer "many happy returns of the day."

Officials insisted there was no practical significance to the King's wire which, they said, was a customary act of courtesy to the head of a "friendly state." Failure to send a telegram, it was said, would have constituted an unwarranted snub to Hitler.

G.O.P. to Drive For State Rule of Relief

Drafts Amendments For Floor Battle on Byrnes Bill Monday

Indisposition of Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, preventing consideration yesterday of his bill to consolidate Federal public works and relief agencies, gave both Democratic and Republican forces a week-end in which to prepare their battle-lines for the debate now scheduled to open Monday in the Senate.

The Republicans, headed by Minority Leader McNary, decided yesterday that instead of offering a complete substitute for the Byrnes bill, they would propose amendments designed to restore control of relief projects to the States, but leaving public works in the hands of the National Government.

Taft to Draft Amendment

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, has been appointed to draw up the "return to the States" amendment, which is expected to represent a composite of the views of Senators Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan; Barbour (Republican, of New Jersey, and himself. Another amendment, proposed by Senator Lodge (Republican), of Massachusetts, which would base the amount of Federal funds distributed among the States on the number of jobs those funds would provide, also will be advanced next week.

Meanwhile Senator Byrnes, who refrained from appearing in the Senate chamber all day, worked in his private office in the Capitol. It was understood he was preparing further arguments in support of his bill, which has been subjected to criticism from contractors and some labor groups.

Characterizing the public works bill as "unnecessary," Davis Lasser, president of the Workers Alliance, yesterday said President Roosevelt has full power under the reorganization act to consolidate the various public works agencies.

Alliance Seeks 2,700 Millions

The head of the WPA Workers Union added that the bill is so worded as to virtually do away with arts projects. The Byrnes formula for allocating relief among the States on a basis of population and number of unemployed, unfairly favors the South, Lasser said.

The Workers Alliance yesterday demanded a $2,700,000,000 WPA appropriation for 1940, to provide 3,000,000 jobs at a 20 per cent increase in pay.

where the general staffs of all the countries concerned would decide to send them.

This formula, it was believed, will now enable Britain and France to persuade Poland and Rumania to accept the help of Soviet troops if their territories are invaded. Thus, if successfully negotiated, the Anglo-French project would virtually complete Europe's anti-aggression network of pledges and pacts and at the same time erect the same kind of Anglo-French-Russian triple alliance that confronted imperial Germany at the outset of the World War.

Simultaneously, Britain and France laid plans designed to offset efforts by Chancellor Hitler to line up a number of European nations in opposition to President Roosevelt's message suggesting the exchange of minimum 10-year peace guarantees to be followed by world economic and disarmament conferences.

Pittman 'Cash-and-Carry' Neutrality Plan Leads Committee Poll; Many for Repeal

Poll

further study. Seven committee members remained unrecorded.

The canvass of Senate committee sentiment coincided with hearings on both sides of the Capitol on a wide range of proposals for amending the existing neutrality law, "cash and carry" features of which expire next month.

Morley Opposes Rigid Neutrality

Before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post, opposed rigid and inelastic neutrality legislation, as likely to prove unworkable and un-neutral, and as actually stimulating war rather than promoting peace. Morley raised the question of whether Congress constitutionally has power to bind the President to a fixed course of foreign policy.

Raymond Leslie Buell, president of the Foreign Policy Association, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee President Roosevelt's recent conduct of foreign policy "has served to avert the outbreak of a general war in Europe." Buell said operation of the present neutrality act actually would aid the axis powers as against Britain and France. He favored the Pittman bill permitting "cash and carry" trade in arms and other goods, with amendments treating China as a "special situation."

Qualifying Amendments Proposed

While the Pittman measure led other proposed neutrality act changes in the Senate committee poll, qualifying amendments were invariably proposed. Besides its author, Chairman Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, committeemen who indicated preference for the Pittman bill with modifications included Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas; Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), of Washington, and Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia.

Barkley Hopes for Compromise

Pointing to features he thought desirable in both the Pittman "cash and carry" and the Thomas "name the aggressor" plans, Senate Majority Leader Barkley, a committee member, voiced a hope "that some compromise might be worked out embodying good features of both."

Also for the Thomas measure were its author, Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, and Senator Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island. Green said the Thomas measure "is not inconsistent with the Pittman bill."

Repeal Sentiment Strong

A strong undercurrent of committee sentiment for complete repeal of the neutrality law was disclosed in the canvass, with support coming from widely different political schools. Senators who said they were presently inclined toward repeal of the act, and go back to original principles of international law, were Senator Johnson (Republican), of California; Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida; Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, and Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania.

Another—Senator George—said he would favor repeal of the act, were it not for the psychological effect abandonment of efforts toward neutrality legislation might have on the country at large. Similarly, Senator Schwellenbach, said he feared repeal might be a shock to the Nation.

On record for a complete ban on all trade with belligerents was Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, ranking minority member of the committee. Should this plan not win committee support, the veteran Senate authority on international law is understood to urge next an embargo on munitions shipments to belligerents, with the right for American ships to carry food and other commodities.

Indorse Trade Prohibition

Also indorsing an absolute prohition on all trade with belligerents, a proposal recently advanced in the Senate by Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, was Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, sharp critic of Administration foreign policy.

The remaining committeemen expressing a preference were Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, who supported the Nye-Bone-Clark bill for an arms embargo but with "cash and carry" trade with belligerents in other commodities, and Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, who sad he would stand on the present neutrality law. Vandenberg said he thought it unwise to attempt to legislate on neutrality when hostilities threaten.

Seven Still Uncommitted

Listed as still uncommitted were Senators Harrison, of Mississippi; Wagner, of New York; Van Nuys, of Indiana; and Murray, of Montana (Democrats); Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota; and White (Republican), of Maine. Senator LaFollette (Progresive), of Wisconsin, was not contacted.

Morley Testifies

Meanwhile, at House Foreign Affairs Committee hearings, Morley testified that inflexible neutrality legislation in his opinion does not materially lessen the risk of this Nation's involvement when war breaks, and "is devastating confession of national weakness and confusion."

On cross-examination, he said he thought it was possible for Congress to furnish a guiding influence on foreign policy, without attempting to dictate a fixed line of setion to meet unpredictable world conditions. He said he believed in the long run public opinion always shapes the course of foreign affairs.

No Popular Hostility

Asked by Representative Vorys (Republican), of Ohio, if he thought the Pittman reflected the opinion of the public, Morley said he knew of no popular hostility to it. He said he thought the Thomas proposal to stigmatize the aggressor "is also popular."

"Do you think we should name the aggressor?" asked Representative Bloom (Democrat), of New York, acting chairman.

"If we are party to a treaty which has been violated, I think we should, and I think we have called attention of the world to the fact that a treaty has been violated," replied Morley.

Morley said it was for Congress to decide "to what extent you can pass legislation that will assure the public you are doing all you can to avoid war, without hamstringing the executive."

Buell, president of the Foreign Policy Association, told the Senate committee that the present neutrality act not only would increase the danger of American entry into a general war, but would work to the advantage of Germany and Italy, and to the detriment of Britain and France.

Sees Aid to Germany, Italy

By refusing to export any munitions, he argued that this country would not harm the axis powers, already self-sufficient in that respect, but would reduce the trade advantage of Britain and France now under-supplied with munitions. In effect, he said, operation of the law would "increase the possibility that Germany and Italy will defeat France and Britain in another war."

Buell warned that if Germany and Italy win in the next war, their next objective might be "the rich resources of the Western Hemisphere." He said there is also the possibility the European democracies might come to terms with the totalitarian powers and cede them their possessions in the Western Hemisphere in return for holding their own.

"So long as Britain, France and China continue to obstruct the axis powers, this hemisphere will remain safe and the United States will not have to go to war, but a policy which weakens their resistance inevitably brings closer the time when the United States itself will have to resort to force," he testified.

Save Steam For Dictators, Editors Told

Don't Get Excited About Attacks on Press, White Advises

Editors

Net Effect Was Serious

"Nevertheless, the net effect of this struggle to save democracy was very serious. As Frank Cobb ventured to say at last in 1919, the whole American press was whipped and cowed. Every newspaperman in the United States did his work under threat and duress.

"That their state will be even worse the next time seems to be a very reasonable guess. For one thing, the head of the state, if it so be God wills, will be running for re-election, and itching to heat up his partisans and confound his opponents.

"For another thing, he will carry into his campaign an animosity against the daily newspapers that began to reveal itself during his first term, and has been increasing in intensity as the New Deal has gradually disintegrated. He apparently ascribes that disintegration to their cynical enmity to idealism and I am inclined to believe that there is a good deal of truth in the charge."

Cites Court Plea Failure

"Certainly they were largely responsible for the failure of his plea to cut the Supreme Court loose from the Constitution, and even more responsible for the failure of his plan to put down infidelity in the Senate.

"For a third and last thing, the candidate will be surrounded by gentlemen who hate newspapers even more than he does, and for very sound reasons. One of these gentlemen gives over a large part of his time, even now, to denouncing them violently, sometimes with considerable plausibility. I ask you to consider then the situation in case war really comes, and that gentleman is put in charge of the press."

The convention was opened with a prayer by the Rev. ZeBarney Phillips, chaplain of the Senate. Arthur Hachten, president of the National Press Club, welcomed the editors, and then Editor White made his annual address.

No Fault With Coverage

Seeking to "make some sense out of the public criticism of the press," White said that the critics could find no fault with the coverage of the news. On that, he said, they gave the newspapers a clean bill of health. Neither, he said, was the criticism leveled at the treatment of partisan political news. The criticism, he said, really was based on the newspapers' attitude in the matter of property rights.

Newspapers, he said, rightfully could be found guilty of a "poisonous bias in favor of the status quo as it affects the rights of property.

"That is our problem," he said. "We represent more than the press of any other nation in the world today a comparatively large investment in the tools of our trade. That property investment, consciously or unconsciously, gives us a bias in the narrow area where politics is now concerned with changing property rights."

Can't Afford to Call Names

"To recognize this situation frankly and treat it with kind, courageous candor is half the battle. . . . That doesn't mean that we should retreat. . . . But it does mean that we cannot afford to call names.

"For we are treading on dangerous ground. A threat to democracy is abroad in the world. The unemployment problem in this Nation remains unsolved, and every day it is unsolved it is a menace to the stability of our institutions. We are developing a class-conscious proletariat which is dangerous. It was bad enough in the days of the big bull market of the twenties to maintain the idle rich. But if in addition we of the middle class have to maintain the idle poor and then the idle rich, sooner or later our resources will be gone.

"And we who stand far out on the salient where liberty is first attacked, we of the press may well afford in the crucial days to subdue our emotions and express our convictions without rancor, without bitterness. For wrath begets wrath."

Columnists Debated

With Grove Patterson, of the Toledo Blade, presiding, Tom Wallace, of the Louisville Times, opened the round table discussion of syndicated columnists. He said that "ballyhooey" had pictured the columnists as a combination of Socrates, Justinian and Solomon. Their columns, he said, often conflicted with the editorial page, and the result was "incoherency." He conceded, however that a vigorous, unmuzzled editorial page could make the syndicated columns innocuous.

Marvin H. Creager, of the Milwaukee Journal, said syndicated columists had taken over the newspaper's role of "interpreter and teacher." Newspapers, he said, should have ideas and express them, and not "farm out" that obligation to mail-order columnists who write for 75 or more newspapers.

George B. Parker, of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, praised columnists as a stimulating influence. Newspapers, he said, were gaining in influence, and he gave columnists much of the credit. Editorial writers who resent the columnists, he said, ought to write better editorials.

Editors Here for Convention Fondly Recall Events in Stirring Days of Another Era

Daniels, Lawrence Comment on Free Press in World War

U. S. No Democracy, Mencken Asserts

Democracy cannot survive in Europe, because there isn't any democracy there, believes H. L. Mencken, of Baltimore, former editor of two of America's most iconoclastic magazines, and, for more than a decade idol-smasher-in-chief to American daily journalism.

MENCKEN

"These so-called democracies in Europe!" he commented yesterday following a meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. "I have been in all of them. As democracies, they are comic.

"Hitler and Mussolini will win in the long run—that is, they may be bumped off, but the totalitarian idea will win. There aren't any democracies."

He included the United States.

Press Discussed War Issues Freely

David Lawrence, only Washington newspaperman who had direct access to President Wilson during the World War, yesterday recalled newspaper work as it was here then. He was interviewed after the meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

LAWRENCE

"The press," Lawrence said, "was asked to refrain from discussing military and naval affairs, but had the utmost freedom of discussion about the issues and problems of the war."

He scoffed at charges President Roosevelt seeks to draw the United States into war. The State Department, he said, is interested "in keeping the United States in its traditional position."

Amy Comstock Crusades for Tulsa

That attractive woman who did much listening but no talking yesterday in her debut at a meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors was the crusading associate editor of the Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune, Miss Amy Comstock.

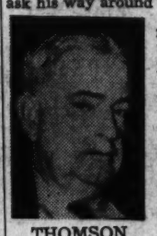
COMSTOCK

No descendant of Anthony Comstock she, yet remindful of that campaigner because of the editorial page war she conducted a few months ago in behalf of a clean and just administration of Oklahoma's social security laws. The daily's crusade was so successful that not only did the Governor appoint a new public welfare commission but he named her as one of its nine members.

A native of Wisconsin, she attended the State university and started her newspaper career in Madison. From there she went to Tulsa. She has never worked anywhere else. Though Tulsa and oil are practically synonymous, she admits she is no expert on the petroleum industry.

Publisher of Item Was Cub on Post

James McIlhany Thomson, tall, broad-shouldered publisher of the New Orleans Item, never has to ask his way around Washington.



THOMSON

He began his newspaper career here as a cub on The Washington Post in 1898. In 1900 he bought a newspaper in Norfolk, and six years later became publisher and principal owner of the New Orleans Item. Eventually he married Genevieve Champ Clark, daughter of the Speaker of the House and sister of the present Missouri Senator.

In Publisher Thomson's eyes, the big news of the day is the comparative boom that New Orleans is enjoying. Oil production and tourists are responsible.

"From January 1 to the end of May," he said, "you can hardly get rooms in a hotel. Hard-surfaced roads from the North have been opened up, and the Parisian atmosphere brings the tourists in amazing numbers."

Ohian doesn't Fear Columns

John S. Knight, one of Ohio's outoutstanding newsmen, yesterday poured cold water on the theory that the rising tide of columning threatens extinction of the editorial page.

KNIGHT

President and editor of the Akron (Ohio) Beacon-Journal, Knight said that if a paper's editorial page can't stand the "competition," if one would call it that, of the local or syndicated columns it's time to get a new editor."

Akron has the distinction of being the largest American city having but a single newspaper, and the Beacon-Journal is it, as it bought out the opposition last year.

Daniels Recalls Free Press in War

How America fought a modern war without press censorship was recalled yesterday by Josephus Daniels, publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer and Secretary of the Navy in the World War.

DANIELS

"There was no censorship of the press," said the veteran editor, now Ambassador to Mexico. "What there was was voluntary. We pointed out to newspapers that if they printed certain information, for example about ship or troop movements, it would mean that some young men would get killed. And I know of no punitive action that was taken against any newspaper for what it printed."

"I do not," he added, "have anything to say about action Postmaster General Burleson took in denying use of the mails."

Rep. Bolles Scored McKinley Beat

Representative Bolles (Republican), of Wisconsin, made a speech before the American Society of Newspaper Editors yesterday, not as a statesman but as a newspaperman. He is editor of the Janesville (Wis.) Daily Gazette, and one of the best-known small-town newspapermen in the country.

BOLLES

He was standing only 20 feet away when President William McKinley was mortally shot in Buffalo, September 6, 1901, by Leon Czolgosz The assassin's right hand was wrapped in a bandage. Bolles, then 27, saw him extend his left hand to greet the President, and then fire a shot from a pistol concealed in the bandages of the other hand.

Seeing that others were taking care of McKinley, Bolles rushed to a telegraph wire and scored a notable beat.

Strict Alien Laws Asked

The delegates yesterday heard addresses by Walter Lippmann, journalist, and Channing Pollock, playwright; heard numerous reports from national committee chairman, and adopted resolutions.

They asked in their resolutions that the United States maintain a strict hold on its immigration laws, that all aliens be registered and fingerprinted, and that private military groups be "regulated."

Lippmann Speaks

Lippmann declared that if the United States is to have a national defense that is indestructible, its people must seek out the self-evident truths upon which American independence was founded.

He singled out three of the fundamental principles upon which he said the Nation's strength depends —principles that:

Wealth is produced by work and saving.

All men are mortal, finite and have limited abilities.

No government can be trusted with unlimited and unchallenged power.

Mrs. Imogen B. Emery, national chairman of defense, in her annual report yesterday afternoon, assured the Daughters that its work in combating un-American activities is meeting with "general cooperation."

She declared the work consisted of "letting those who oppose this Government speak for themselves and reveal their purposes in their own acts and words, without use of personalities and name-calling.

"And more important still," she said, "it consists of spreading the good news of what America does stand for and its foundation stones of truth."

"It is incumbent upon the United States to educate its sons and daughters in the principles of democracy with a fervor and devotion comparable to that of the adherents to less worthy causes," she declared.

In the "pages of daily life," she asserted, "the working of totalitarian governments is taught, and does not need to be specifically taught in our schools and universities." She urged removal from faculties of teachers "guilty of teaching other ideologies of government."

"Removing enemy teachers is not depriving them of freedom of thought or of speech," she said.

Yesterday afternoon was "junior day" in Constitution Hall. Work being done in seventeen approved D. A. R. schools was explained by Mrs. Samuel James Campbell, chairman, and supplemented by programs in which students participated from the Hindman Settlement School, in Kentucky; Hillside School, in Massachusetts; Crossnore School, in North Carolina; Tamassee D. A. R. School, in Georgia; Kate Duncan Smith D. A. R. School, in Alabama, and Maryville College, in Tennessee.

Juniors "March"

Preceded by pages bearing banners, more than 100 white-clad "juniors" marched into the hall for the report of Miss Dorothy Evans, chairman of the Junior D. A. R. Assembly.

Greetings from Children of the American Revolution were brought to Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., the president general.

Money

June 30, 1941, the power to cut the gold content of the dollar from 59.06 to 50 per cent, the stabilization fund, and the authority to pay Western mining interests a subsidy for newly mined silver.

With the Treasury's present holdings of gold, which on Wednesday totaled $15,605,000,000, "there is danger of the greatest credit inflation this or any other country has ever seen," Andresen declared. An inflation such as is possible under present conditions, he said, "would be disastrous."

Administration monetary policies, he insisted, had increased imports rather than exports and had "broken down the price level of farm products."

Prewster's Prediction

Representative Brewster (Republican), Maine, predicted that "we'll find ourselves again the prize suckers of the world" if the monetary powers are continued. Accumulation of the huge gold reserve being built up at Fort Knox, Ky., he saitd, might tempt foreign nations to repudiate gold as a medium of exchange.

"By our fixed gold price," he shouted, "we have given Great Britain in the last two years a present of $2,000,000,000."

Representative Robsion (Republican), Kentucky, charged that the Administration had treated American citizens "worse than Hitler treated the Jews in Germany" when it seized the gold of private citizens. He referred to the acquisition of gold at $20.67 per ounce and the consequent "gold profit" resulting from an increase in the price to $35 per ounce. Hitler, he declared, put a 10 per cent tax on the wealth of Jews, while seizure of gold represented a 40 per cent tax on every American.

Dirksen described the bill as "dangerous, inflationary, disturbing, unstabilizing and unnecessary."

Chambersburg, Pa., April 20.—Miss Annie Strickler Keefer, 70, of Greencastle, died yesterday at Hagerstown hospital after she had suffered a stroke at the conclusion of a Greencastle church entertainment in which she had participated. Senator Minton's Daughter Winner In Poster Contest

Mary Anne Minton, of Immaculata Seminary, daughter of the Senator from Indiana, was one of five winners in the poster contest semi-finals under auspices of the Catholic Student Mission League, it was announced yesterday. The contest is conducted by the Rev. Louis Vaeth, director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith in the Archdiocese of Baltimore.

Other winners were Joan Cunningham, Holy Trinity; Jeanne Proud, St. Patrick's; Mary McAllister, St. Anthony's, and Margaret Burbage, Immaculata.

Trust Inquiry Queries 4 Firms On Oil Practices

The monopoly committee has asked 40 corporations in the petroleum industry for information which will form the basis for public hearings, probably in early June.

Among other things the questionaire inquired concerning price methods and the extent to which the so-called "basing system" and other methods "are used to establish and change the price the consumer pays in various sections of the country."

PAGING THE WINNERS! Metronome's mahagement has just told us the names of the winners of Wednesday's "Tune Guessing Contest." No. 1 guesser is Frederick Vernon, with Miss Leonore Rosenthal coming in second. Tied for third place are Miss Mary McWilliams and Warren Hays.

This announcement is the only notification that the winners will receive and it's up to them to be on hand next Wednesday evening to get the handsome trinkets and champagne to be awarded as prizes. If they don't show up, the prizes will be awarded to their runners-up. And if you and you, made a good score—remember that you have a good chance of landing a prize. Last week's top guessers failed to arrive at Metronome on Wednesday—and it was a field day for the second-fight guessers who nabbed all prizes.

DATSKO'S THE TOPSKO: Troika's new violinist, Yasha Datsko, has that vodka effect on listeners. When Mrs. Helen Hamilton entered her Troika the other evening she found no doorman on the door, no attendant on first floor. They were all on the stairs, listening to Datsko's imitations of bird calls. Entrancing, too, is his "Greek Dance" (featuring plucked strings).

MILTON'S DISCOVERY: Rainbow Room's Milton Davis has added new tricks to the already known range of the novachord. He's discovered a perfect banjo effect. We challenged him to produce a jew's harp and a calliope. He did pretty well with the jew's harp, not so good with the calliope.

ROVING CAMERA: In the Mayflower Lounge—Mrs. Jimmie Roosevelt lunching with White House Secretary Margaret Le Hand . . . Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Leary, just back from a couple of months in South America, greeting their friends . . . Ditto for Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith who've just closed their place at Coral Gables and will remain in town until they go to Newport for the summer.

In the Carlton: Herbert Rawlinson, once the Clark Gable of the screen, now silver-topped and a notable character actor. He was lunching with a group of friends in the Carlton dining room, listening attentively to the classic violining of Maestro Sam Korman.

At Lounge Riviera: Captain Jorge Godoy, naval attache of the Argentine Embassy, and Mme. Godoy entertaining a party of 12 for supper dancing—the sequel of a dinner party.

QUICKIES: Herbie Holmes and his orchestra are not only playing jitter-melody in Glen Echo's Spanish Ballroom. They're actually living at Glen Echo—in cottages in the park. Some folks have all the fun!

Evelyn Knight (King Cole Room) will sing at the party of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club at the Capitol Theater next Saturday morning.

Al Simmonds (Brown Derby) had himself a birthday party a couple of days ago. We understand he served a two-gallon cake. The guests included a delegation of the town's best entertainers.

One of the prize items in Capt. Don Dickerman's Pirate Museum is a sword circa 1703, with knife and fork attached. Evidently designed for those buccaneers who not only killed their prey, but ate 'em afterwards!

Manager Huey Liang of Bamboo Gardens is reported as in a Celestial tantrum. One of our contemporaries is now calling the "Brucettes" the "Brunettes." And half of them are blondes. Ah, well! The girls dance like daisies, regardless of the title.

Frances Chapman, hostess of the Anchor Room, is an ardent bicyclist, goes riding around the Tidal Basin every Sunday.

One of the gayest sights at Madrillon is that of certain of the effervescent Latin-American guests playing the maracas and clavelitos when Adelita sings at the cocktail hour.

BUSIEST MAN IN TOWN is Chairman Martin Smith (All States Restaurant), of the Washington Restaurant Association's committee arranging for the celebration of National Restaurant Week, booked for May 8 to 14. This year's celebration, we're told, is going to be extra-super-special.

POWHATAN ROOF BULLETIN: There'll be a new dance floor on the Powhatan roof this summer. It is now being laid and is what builders call "terrazo," meaning a variegated marble composition. It's said to provide a wonderful dancing surface.

ANGIE GOES SHOPPING: Hi Hat's singer, Angie Rodante, has gone off the deep end and bought a whole flock of new cocktail frocks. They're in lime green and navy blue, violet and gray, purple and pink, not to mention prints. A full riot of color, but as Angie sings, "'Tain't What You Do, It's the Way You Do It."

BIGGEST EVENTS IN THE OFFING. Shoreham's "Ice Show" due in the Blue Room next Monday evening with Olympic Skating Champion Evelyn Chandler. Mayfair's Maytime birthday party. Definite date not yet set, but will occur in the earlier part of May. Always a great celebration.

LOVELIEST NIGHT SPOT FROCKS: That monk's robe confection of white chiffon worn by Marjorie Enters when she dances with Philippe Borgia in the Pall Mall Room. The violet chiffon with swirling petticoats of deep blue that Denicia wears when she and Theodore do "La Conga" at the Lotus.

Folk Dances from the Carolinas

Folk Songs and dances are just as essential to Carolina mountaineers as food and clothing. The traditional folk expression which has grown up during the centuries traces back to the songs and dances brought over by the British during the Revolutionary War. Pictured above is a group of young Carolinians who will include these songs and dances in their performance in the National Folk Festival at Constitution Hal. 'Wuthering Heights' Is Picture of First Rank

Merle Oberon and Laurence Olivier Head Cast; Support and Supplementaries Are Top Hole; Mr. Cochran Announces First Plays for Olney

"WUTHERING HEIGHTS." Samuel Goldwyn picturization for United Artists of the novel by Emily Bronte, adapted to the screen by Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht, co-featuring Laurence Olivier and Merle Oberon, supported by David Niven, Flora Robson, Donald Crisp, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Hugh Williams, Leo G. Carroll, Cecil Humphreys, Miles Mander, Romaine Callendar, Rex Downing, Sarita Wooton, Douglas Scott and Mme. Alice Ehlers. Directed by William Wyler. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At Loew's Palace Theater.

Grim, yet, somehow, majestic in setting; brooding and rather more than vaguely ominous in mood and, again paradoxically, both tragic and inspiring in climax and denouement, "Wuthering Heights" deserves to be recognized as one of the classic love stories of the screen.

The Samuel Goldwyn picturization of the Emily Bronte novel, disclosed to the public for the first time yesterday on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, is a work of such fine artistry and unimpeachable integrity that it must enlist the attention and the applause of all theatergoers with an eye for the better things of the cinema.

BELL

The story, as, of course, is known to every literate person, dates back to about 1850 and is set on the bleak Yorkshire moors. The background is in perfect consonance with the tale of a tortured love between two strongely contrasted characters, whose lives were as barren as the country in which they were lived, because they were denied each other.

In adapting the Bronte novel to the uses of the cinema, Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht have abandoned their characteristic ribaldry and have contrived a film play of great tenderness and deep emotional power in which there is much of beauty and poignance, but little or nothing of the lighter aspects of youth and love. "Wuthering Heights" is a drama of double frustration. It begins and ends on a note of tragedy and yet is unfailingly interesting and never too depressing. This is a high tribute to the thoughtful observance of the demands of high drama that so obviously went into its making.

The superlative excellence of Mr. Goldwyn's film version of a novel in which any less courageous producer might have perceived scant material for popular screen fare might easily have been marred by tawdry playing. There is none of that in "Wuthering Heights." Every member of the cast turns in a performance of which he might well be proud. William Wyler's direction is completely in the spirit of the story and Producer Goldwyn quite evidently placed no stint upon the expenditures necessary to make the production one of memorable superiority in its detailed perfection.

The two central characters—Cathie, the capricious daughter of an indulgent father, and Heathcliff, the "Gypsy" waif, who finally came to wealth and power enough to crush those who had oppressed him—are played with extraordinary effectiveness by Merle Oberon and Laurence Oliver. Never before has Miss Oberon brought to the screen so immensely moving a performance as she gives here. She is gay, vindictive and infinitely pathetic by turns and communicates each variant mood to the audience with unfailing skill. Mr. Olivier's Heathcliff is a finely realistic potrayal of an involved and difficult character. He plays with an authority that places him in complete command of every scene in which he appears, although, even so, his work does not overshadow Miss Oberon's otherwise than in slightly greater opportunities.

Told by "Flashbacks"

The associate players surrounding those in the pivotal roles have been chosen with exceptional judgment. Flora Robson, Donald Crisp, David Niven, Hugh Williams and Geraldine Fitzgerald, a young woman worth watching, contribute immeasurably to the rounded excellence of a film that can be objected to only on the basis of its somber content.

The story, as fashioned by the adapters, begins at the end and then reverts to the beginning, which is to say that it is told by the flashback method of opening on a dour note and then retracing events to discover what brought about the sorry situation with which the picture is initiated. It is an effective device.

There was a time when such doleful tales as that unfolded in "Wuthering Heights" would have been frowned upon at the box-office. That emphatically was not the case at the Palace yesterday. Capacity crowds were in attendance during the early afternoon and their enthusiasm seemed unbounded to one who had difficulty finding a seat that suited his dimming eyes.

The new bill at the Palace offers a considerable measure of entertainment lighter than that to be found in "Wuthering Heights." For example, there is Pete Smith's short subject devoted to a "Marine Circus" that continues the Smithian addiction to water first revealed in "Heroes at Leisure." Then there is a new "Popeye, th Sailor" cartoon comedy, "Leave Well Enough Alone." In addition to these, the "News of the Day" presents precisely that and a lengthy footage is devoted to the annual testimonial to the late Will Rogers. This film appeal is participated in by Robert E. Sherwood, author of "Abe Lincoln i Illinois;" Raymond Massey, star of that sterling play; Deanna Durbin, Spencer Tracy and others. There is full money's worth at the Palace this week.

Stephen E. Cochran has settled upon the first four attractions to be seen at his Olney Theater, beginning its second season on May 15. Glenda Farrell, noted on both stage and screen, will be the first star, in "Stage Door." The week of May 22, Douglass Montgomery will be seen in "Night Must Fall," made famous on the screen by Robert Montgomery. On May 29, Cornelia Otis Skinner will be presented in Edward Sheldon's play of "Romance" and the following week Eva Le Gallienne will be the guest star in "Camille." A very elegant line-up for the first month.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., April 20.—Any nation that can produce a woman like Dorothy Thompson and permit her to speak her mind—and what an intelligent mind it is—has earned the spotlight of the world. Seven thousand people turned out to hear her talk here. My only regret was that there was such a small spattering of our top stars. She would have taught them so much. Among other things, that it's more blessed to give than receive.

HOPPER

Miss Thompson gives of herself, not just of money. She took time out for a transcontinental trip, rearranged her entire working schedule and was the most poised woman I've ever seen on a platform. And she didn't do it with the hope that a motion picture contract would result. If we ever have a Madame President, my vote will go to Dorothy Thompson.

There's a strong rumor that when Sam Goldwyn gets out of his United Artists difficulties, he'll return to the company which now bears his name. Success is the greatest peacemaker—especially in Hollywood. When that company bought him out, didn't they pay him to remain out of the business for two years—or am I wrong? Could be!

Hear that Joe Mankowitz, who's responsible for some of Metro's biggest successes, has been suspended because he refused to join the Mervyn LeRoy unit. He figured he was doing pretty well alone.

A typographical error in a local paper read: First picture of the Group Theater will be written by Clifford Odets. Hooting will begin in September. Come, come, now—watch your hits!

When asked what kind of a cake she wanted for her seventy-fifth birthday party, Mary Robson said, "Spoon bread with a little Southern fried chicken on the side, please."

Things we didn't know! Universal had a former Follies girl from the East, named Eden, who won a contest. Is she the newcomer on the Gateway to Hollywood?

Twentieth Century has been trying to buy Fred Allen's gag library. The offer so far is $25,000. Why, I'd be willing to pay that myself—if I had it.

Irene Castle's friends will be glad to welcome her on the twenty-second. She'll be here for a Cantor airing.

Ann Sothern bought one of those high-priced radios. Can get the world — except husband Roger Pryor in Chicago!

Jules Verne, who astonished himself by circling the globe in 80 days, would be aghast at Bernard Voorhous, who does it in 20 minutes. Yes, he's one of those ham radio fiends.

Director James Hogan is visiting Joe Kennedy in the American Embassy in London. They were buddies when Joe was a movie mogul.

Day's Film Work Cut Out for Actor

To borrow a line from Kipling and Danny Deever, they were burnin' Grant Mitchel in the mornin'.

Among the little things Mr. Mitchell had to do for his art in forthcoming scenes of "Hell's Kitchen" are:

(a) Run for his life from a mob of 200 indignant youngsters, led by those formidable Dead End Kids.

(b) Be roasted to an uncomfortable degree and choked by smoke in the hay loft of a burning barn.

(c) Jump into a light truck inside the barn with clothes and hair smoking.

Young Actor Boasts Career At Age of 18

Montgomery Clift Is Grateful to Nazimova For Latest Opportunity

By Richard L. Coe

Montgomery Clift, now playing Nazimova's youngest son in "The Mother" at the National, is not of the Shirley Temple-Mickey Rooney variety in this Golden Age of prodigies, although, for his 18 years, he has indulged in some ripe living.

Until only three seasons ago, for instance, he had played only in French. Having spent most of his early years in Europe, he spoke French as soon as he did English and while his American parents were not what he describes as "excited" over the theater, they did not object to his playing parts in the French amateur theaters. This experience made it possible for young Clift to take advantage of the luck that later came to him with the parts that gave his talents a show-window.

Plays Came Quickly

In rapid succession came "Fly Away Home," "Jubilee" and, with Mr. and Mrs. Fredric March, "Yr. Obedient Husband." The short-lived "Eye on the Sparrow" led to a resounding success in the Theater Guild's first production of this year, "Dame Nature." He played the young father, stunned by sudden parenthood, and the Death Watch still speaks of his expert performance.

But the life of a young actor is not limited to theatrical success. As with many an 18-year-old, school plays a time-filling part. Although school, in the form of a tutor, remains in New York while the pupil works in Washington, it still rears its commanding head with history, mathematics and English in the lead, and, when not rehearsing for next Tuesday's opening in New York, the wishful sightseer must stick to those assignments.

Star Plays a Joke

We were introduced to him by a stage-doorman, who turned out to be a most eminent personality. We had telephoned just after a performance of "The Mother" and a deep, gruff voice had answered, asking what we would have. Learning that we wanted to speak with Mr. Clift, the doorman noisily took a fresh bite of tobacco and quickly turned us over to Clift. All of which would not have been exceptional if, when we met him the next day, Clift had not asked, "Didn't you think the doorman got me quickly last night?"

Admitting that he had, we assigned it to anyone's natural desire to obey a voice so gruff and commanding.

"The gruff and commanding voice," he laughed, "was Madame Nazimova's. We had just come off the stage after the third act and the phone rang while we were passing. She answered and decided to have a little fun with you.

"She is wonderful to work with, so full of vitality, even after playing so wearing a role. It means a great deal to young players like myself to be with so fine an artiste."

Fairfax Dairy In Bootleg Case

Police Judge Edward M. Curran last night had under advisement a motion demanding immediate trial of the Fairfax Farms-Embassy Dairy on charges of violating the District milk act.

The motion, which asked that the cases be tried now instead of May 11, was filed with the court April 13 by Attorney Robert Lynch, counsel for the dairies. His request, argued yesterday, was opposed by Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal.

Charges were placed against the milk corporation March 4 when police arrested several company employes and seized a truckload of cream which allegedly was shipped here from Michigan.

D. C. Concern Submits Low Bid for Sewer

The Diamond Construction Co., Washington, submitted a low bid of $423,116 for construction of the Bolling Field outfall relief sewer, it was announced yesterday.

The sewer, which will be financed with Public Works funds, will connect Poplar Point with the sewage treatment plant at Blue Plains, D. C.

Faces Lottery Charge

Charges of operating a lottery and the possession of lottery slips yesterday were placed against Frank W. Edelin, 33, of the 100 block Montello avenue northeast, following his arrest at Seventeenth and East Capitol streets by Detectives Samuel Smith and Oliver Coffin.

individual and does all this. He starts walking north across the avenue to the northwest curb and, in the middle of the street, the lights change.

Everything has stopped in front of him. Traffic westbound on the avenue is not moving—traffic eastbound on Thirteenth has halted. Behind him cars are making left turns north into Thirteenth. There is nothing in his way, so he continues. Suddenly, a car whirls into the avenue westbound, making a right turn from Thirteenth and catches him with his mouth open. Doing an about-face, he sees that the light behind him is showing a green arrow for right-turning vehicles on Thirteenth. But it is too late, so he does a swan-dive to the northwest curb—if he's still on his feet.

Complicated Situation

Just to make things a little more complicated, let's watch the pedestrian attempting to reach the northeast curb of Thirteenth street from the northwest corner. In order to do this and comply with the law, he must glance diagonally across the intersection to the southeast corner to see what the light says. It says green, so he starts. Midway across, he is thrown for a loss by swarms of autos making left turns into Thirteenth from the avenue. The southeast corner light, it seems, shows green all right, but with an arrow permitting left turns. Again the pedestrian is balked. He darts back to his starting point, squints across at the light again and if his eyesight is good, sees the green arrow give way to a "thru" signal.

Now is his chance. Once more he starts—but no luck. Cars are now blocking his path by making right turns from the avenue into Thirteenth. So, he gives up and hails a taxi.

It's rather a tough corner for motorists, too. Unlike the average intersection, it has system of right and left turn arrows.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer blames the situation on the Government's "triangle" building program which closed Thirteenth street south of the avenue.

Atlanta Challenges Coal Price Fixing Act

By the Associated Press.

The City of Atlanta challenged in the Supreme Court yesterday the constitutionality of the national bituminous coal act of 1937.

The city appealed from a three-judge Federal court in the District of Columbia, which ruled, February 15, that the law, which impowers the coal commission to promulgate orders fixing minimum prices for coal, "constitutes no infringement of the sovereign powers of the City of Atlanta." Atlanta sought an injunction to restrain the coal commission from issuing the orders.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, April 20.—The biggest price ever paid for a book was handed over today by Darryl Zanuck when he wrote a check for $100,000 for the privilege of filming John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath." To say Darryl was excited is putting it mildly. He was ecstatic, for he had snatched the book right out from under the noses of two other eager, bidding producers.

LOUELLA PARSONS

This Steinbeck American saga, "Grapes of Wrath," bids fair to lead "Gone With the Wind," "Anthony Adverse," "The Rains Came" and every other best seller. The book stores can hardly supply the demand, for everybody wants to read what is really a great story. Darryl said he saw it as an American "Les Miserables" with a message to give and a mission to perform. So far no one has been selected to play Joad, the farmer who left the Grey Farm lands of Oklahoma to try to find land in California to cultivate.

Cary Grant telephoned to tell me he had some news, and I thought for a second he was about to join Tyrone Power and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., as a prospective bridegroom. But although what Cary had to say concerned Phyllis Brooks, it wasn't about marriage. He had just put her on the train bound for England, where she will make a picture for British International. It's so nice for Phyllis right now, Cary said, because she just finished her contract at Twentieth Century-Fox and is now getting a nice salary from B. I. P. "What about your wedding?" I asked. "Oh, maybe when she returns from London," was the noncommittal reply.

You must admire Ann Sothern's courage. She turned down picture after picture because she wanted to be sure she had a part that would further her career instead of putting her in the "B" class. She was out of movies for six months or more until she played the second lead in "Trade Winds." That boosted her stock considerably and now she has an even bigger opportunity in "Hotel for Women." Darryl Zanuck had made her the femme lead, which I consider smart casting, for Ann is a capable trouper and always gives a good account of herself. Zanuck, who has pioneered the movement for putting young people, some of them unknown and others just starting, into his best pictures, has borrowed Jimmy Ellison from R. K. O. for the male lead. Linda Darnell and Katherine Aldrich, two youthful beauties, are likewise in the line-up to face director Gregory Ratoff Monday morning.

A casual meeting between Franchot Tone and Vincent Sheean in a New York night club may bear fruit in Hollywood. At the time, Franchot raved to the author of "Personal History" about his book and said how much he would like to play the hero in the movies. Now Sheean is in Hollywood conferring with Walter Wanger about his story, which was bought some time ago, and he's boosting Tone like mad for the part of the foreign correspondent. In the meantime, between movie conferences on his book, Sheean will also give a a lecture here.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Geraldine Spreckles and her estranged husband, Adolph, of the Spreckles millions, may reconcile. They have been talking things over for the last three days; one of the strangest cafe incidents concerns the woman who sent over a new white spring hat for Wendy Barrie to autograph; Marlene Dietrich, now the thinnest woman in Hollywood, dining tete-a-tete with Erich Remarque. Also in the cafe were Loretta Young and David Niven, a happy dinner twosome, Mary Pickford with a party including the George Murphys, Sonny Chaliffs, Janet Gaynor and Adrian; saw just above everyone at the Lighton party; Ina Claire, a bit plumper but still so handsome, telling me how happy she is with her new bridegroom; Mrs. Henry Fonda hatless in a pale blue summer dress, with Henry, who had a minute off from "Abraham Lincoln"; Hope Lighton, celebrating 20 years of married life with Buddy, her producer-husband, wore a replica of her wedding dress—blue and white polka dot, white hat and white bouquet; Gary Cooper telling the crowd that he liked the Louis-Roper fight and would go again if Los Angeles got the chance for a championship bout.

Saw Herbert Marshall, who looks awfully well these days; Brian Aherne had his father and mother as his guests and no one at the party had half as much fun. The Watterson Rothackers, just back from Europe, with Eileen looking like a debutante; Greer Garson chatting with Benny Thau. She is prettier on the screen than off; Walter Pidgeon, completely recovered from his broken ribs, home from Sun Valley.

Off The Record

"The Pattons? Two fights up!"

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, April 20.

TRAGEDY: Last night a young unemployed actor, waiting to see Russell Hardie backstage at the Cort Theater, gulped some iodine, staggered to the street and fell . . . Passersby paid no attention to him—until Irwin Shaw, author of "The Gentle People," and Janet Fox of "The American Way" noticed his plight . . . "In this city you can croak," said Shaw, "and nobody'll do anything about it. New York is a wonderful city" . . . Miss Fox, niece of Edna Ferber—at whose Connecticut estate a man was saved from suicide yesterday—rushed to aid . . . and brought some milk from the Tavern next door . . . The young man drank the milk and was helped to his feet—rising from under "The Primrose Path" sign over his head—the sign reading: "Funniest Comedy of the Season."

PRIDE: The agency which directs the publicity for Denmark's World's Fair exhibit yesterday phoned Deputy Commissioner of Corrections Dave Marcus, requesting information which will prove how law-abiding are the Danes. Previous statistics indicate that less than 2 per cent of the prisoners are of Danish extraction . . . "How many Danes are now held in New York jails?" the publicist asked . . . "Offhand," Marcus informed, "I'd say 570" . . . "But that's impossible," said the publicist. "It can't be true about the Danes" . . . "Oh, did you say D-A-N-E-S?" asked the official. "Hell, I thought you said D-A-M-E-S."

TALENT: A drunk was annoying Dorothy Parker at a midtown bar and assured her that he really was a nice person and possessed talent . . . "Look at him" Dorothy stated. "A rhinestone in the rough."

RESPECT: A newly arrived actor brought this tale back from Paris, where Sacha Guitry had told it . . . When Guitry was a boy he went walking with his father, who spied a blind beggar . . . "Here's a 5-franc piece," the father told the boy, "give it to the blind man" . . . Sacha dropped the coin inot the beggar's cup and returned to his father . . . "Next time," the elder Guitry admonished, "you should tip your hat when a beggar says 'thank you.' That's the polite way" . . . "But why?" the lad protested. "He couldn't see it. He's blind" . . . "Yes," returned Sacha's father, "but maybe he's only pretending."

MUSIC: The newspapers this week reported that Thomas Benton, the famous artist, is complaining that he can't play the harmonica any more because no one will join him in his musical outbursts . . . The last time Benton played the harmonica here was at a reception tendered him by his class at the Art Students League . . . The "Tom Benton Trio" entertained . . . The other two members of his band played from sheet music. Benton's sheet music however, was homemade and included some of his own props. His sheet music read: "One up, two down, four, up," etc.

CHATTER: Harry Richman will sing at the new International Casino . . . Jimmy Walker will broadcast thrice weekly for a clothing chain . . . The Spewacks are writing a new sketch for "Leave It to Me" and Cole Porter is writing a new song—to make the show keep abreast with the new developments in Europe . . . Eva Kopilchuck, the 15-year-old girl who was arrested for killing her mother some weeks ago, now is at Bellevue's psychopathic ward. The prosecutor has told Judge Freschi she's insane.

SWANK: In the new Katharine Cornell play frequent reference is made to Regent 4-9777 . . . "Why did you select that number?" Sam Behrman, the play's author, was asked after the premiere . . . "Well," he confessed, "it's the kind of number I'd like to have if I were a man about town" . . . Regent 4-9777 is not the telephone number of a man about town—but of a restaurant on First avenue.

FAME: When Warner Bros. brought their stars to Dodge City for the premiere of the "Dodge City" picture, the Governors of three States—and their wives—were at the railroad station to welcome the stars . . . An announcer broadcast the arrival of each famous personage: "Errol Flynn . . . Ann Sheridan . . . John Garfield," etc. . . . When the final name on the long list had been called, the wife of the Governor of Kansas turned to her husband and lamented: "And I thought Gene Autry would be here."

CELEBRATION: The cast of "Oscar Wilde" gave a party Monday night in honor of Robert Morley, the star . . . The only outsiders who were invited were the cast of the show next door . . . The members of that cast have an arrangement with the "Oscar Wilde" cast whereby each may see the other's show at any time . . . The next-door theater is Minsky's Gaiety, which features, among other attractions, a new Chinese strip-teaser.

Price for $5,000 for burns she claimed she had suffered in the course of treatment of a skin ailment. Attorney Morris Schwartz filed the complaint for Miss Kramer, whose home is 3505 Fourteenth street northwest.

Exchange Bloc Hits SEC Bid For Henderson

Liberals in Wall Street Prefer Lane For Commission Post

By International News Service.

Vigorous protest against the proposed appointment of Leon Henderson, secretary to the Monopoly Investigating Committee, to the Securities and Exchange Commission was made to President Roosevelt yesterday by New York Stock Exchange supporters of the New Deal.

Paul Shields, of Shields & Co., chairman of the public relations committee of the exchange, made the protest at a secret conference with Mr. Roosevelt at the White House. Shields has been one of the stanchest supporters of the New Deal in Wall Street and has played an important part in bringing about peace between the exchange and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Calls Henderson "Outsider"

After registering his protest on the grounds that Henderson, formerly a professor and member of the NRA board, was an "outsider" and unacquainted with problems now before both the exchange and SEC, Shields conferred with Tommy Corcoran, adviser to the President, and House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn.

Shields informed them he feared appointment of Henderson as either chairman or member of the SEC would lead to lack of co-operation between the exchanges and the New Deal, thereby interfering with recovery in the securities market.

While it was not learned whether Shields recommended anyone, it was disclosed that New Deal friends in Wall Street would favor the elevation of Jerome Frank, now a member, to the chairmanship to succeed W. O. Douglas, appointed to the Supreme Court. Also they preferred the elevation of General Counsel Chester T. Lane or Ganson Purcell, head of the trading and exchange division, to the vacancy on the commission.

Also Favor Sam Clark

Lane handled the McKesson & Robbins scandal and Purcell was called into recent conferences on Government preparations to prevent any shock to the market in event of war. Another person, favored by Wall Street New Dealers, is Sam Clark, who handled the Whitney case for the SEC. He is head of the reorganization division of the agency.

Shields came to Washington immediately on being informed that Mr. Roosevelt had offered the vacancy to Henderson over the weekend and that he had accepted.

Garber Tells How D. C. Man Founded First U. S. Airline

How commercial aviation, now in its twenty-fifth year, "began in a Washington backyard" was told Wednesday by Dr. Paul Garber, engineering curator of the Smithsonian Institution, at a meeting of the Washington Air Derby Association.

Speaking at The Admiral Club, 1640 Rhode Island avenue northwest, Dr. Garber told how Tony Jannus, mechanically minded graduate of the old Technical High School, followed up pioneer "pusher" plane flights around the Capital by founding the country's first commercial airline in 1914.

With the support of the Chamber of Commerce of Tampa and St. Petersburg, Fla., Jannus originated an air route between the two cities. He flew a venerable Benoist flying boat across Tampa Bay. Making two round trips a day, Jannus once made aviation history by flying a cargo of hams to Tampa in 23 minutes—well ahead of the telegram announcing departure of the shipment, Garber said.

Toy Armies Expand Beyond Dining Table Drill Field After Two Years of Collecting

Soldiers—British, French, German, Russian, Italian, Belgian—1,000 in all, with field guns and bands, are lined in column to suit the whim of two Washingtonians who have a hobby of toy soldiers.

Lester Salusbury, 618 Franklin street northeast, and Louis C. Burch, 2737 Sixth street northeast, began collecting the toy fighters two years ago; have watched their value reach "several hundred dollars" and expand beyond the drill field of the dining room table.

They consider that H. G. Wells can't say much more—and he is reputed to have the finest collection of toy soldiers in the world.

Salusbury and Burch import their soldiers from London. They have representatives of every branch of the British army, including the Eleventh Huzzars, who charged in the Light Brigade. They have mounted lancers and what they call "our action troops," those in battle attitude. They have suitable landscaping for their battle whims and, according to notion, have the British beat the French and the French and British together lick the Germans.

But the object is to learn something about uniforms, maneuvers, battles and history, they said.

U. S. Exports Fell 7.6% in 1938, C. of C. Reveals

Despite the blight of unfavorable world developments, which cut down the total volume of international trade, and the domestic recession, the United States was shown yesterday to have retained first place in 1938 as an exporting Nation and third place among importers.

In an annual review, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States said unfavorable world factors resulted in the first setback to American export trade since 1934 and caused a heavy shrinkage in imports.

As in a number of previous years, the review pointed out, Great Britain and Germany held first and second place, respectively, among the importing nations. "The world's trading nations generally had a poor foreign trade year in 1938," the report said. "Out of some 43 leading countries, 13 only bettered their export trade values over 1937. Our own country was twenty-second on the list with a 7.6 per cent decline in 1938 values below 1937. Of the same nations, only 11 increased their import trade. The United States was No. 43 on the list—at the very bottom—with a decrease of 35 per cent below 1937.

40-Cent Wage Urged In U. S. Soap Contracts

The public contracts board recommended to Secretary of Labor Perkins yesterday that 40 cents an hour be fixed as the prevailing minimum wage in the soap manufacturing industry.

Mead Predicts Lasting Prosperity

A more lasting national prosperity as a result of the New Deal recovery program will follow the restoration of normal international delations, Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, told the National Democratic Council Wednesday afternoon.

Welles Protests Japanese Restrictions

By the Associated Press.

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, requested from Japanese Ambassador Kensuki Horinouchi yesterday further respect for the rights of American businessmen and missionaries in the upper Yangtze River valley in China.

The underecretary called Horinouchi to his office and there made oral representations indicating this Government's dissatisfaction with what Welles described as restrictions against the movements of Americans in that vast area.

The United States already has protested in doplomatic notes to Tokyo against infringement of American rights and movements in the Yangtze valley.

At his press conference later, Secretary Hull indicated American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew in Tokyo might also take the matter up with the Japenese government.

Elective Council Sought by Citizens

An elective city council as Washington's governing body will be advocated tonight at a meeting of citizens in Friendship House, 619 D street southeast. The meeting has been called to launch a "postcard" campaign in the Northeast section urging residents to support the movement.

Approximately 5,000 cards now are in circulation, sponsors of the plan declared. Representative Jennings Randolph, chairman of the House District Committee, has been asked to support legislation providing the District with a vote for its municipal government.

Backers of the movement include William H. Mondell, Carl Gerber, Sidney Katz, Mrs. Donald E. Montgomery, Harry M. Stull, Fletcher Tilton and Samuel Schmerler.

Dance Set Tonight

The spring dance of the Wisconsin State Society will be held at 9 o'clock tonight at the Carlton Hotel. A program of cards and entertainment has been arranged.

Preliminary Act

Mussolini can stand being out of the limelight just so long. It must be somewhat galling that day after day, with monotonous regularity, Hitler gets all the headlines while the old, original senior partner is persistently played down. Perhaps that explains why Il Duce finds it necessary to break out from the encirclement of obscurity and let the world know that he, too, is still a first-class actor.

He did so during the closing stages of the Czecho-Slovak crisis last fall, when no fewer than eight speeches were made in less than so many days. He took the limelight again when he seized Albania. And it may have been the same histrionic urge, the same fervent desire not to be forgotten by the world, that decided him to choose Hitler's birthday as the time to answer President Roosevelt's recent message.

Everyone is waiting for the reply which the Fuehrer is to make on April 28. But Mussolini couldn't hold out that long. The organization of the great exposition which everyone hopes may be held in Rome, as scheduled, in 1942, was as good an opportunity as any to take the edge off Hitler's forthcoming comments.

Mussolini's answer to Mr. Roosevelt, if such it was, is rather obscure. He didn't say "yes" or "no" but "yes and no." He spoke of peace, but with offstage echoes of sword clanking. He denounced the President by implication as one who does not possess "even the most rudimentary knowledge of European affairs." He was carefully dubious as to the President's plan for international conferences on disarmament and economic welfare. But he closed no doors and crossed no bridges.

And so, unfortunately, he only strengthened the impression as to his inferior and indecisive role in axis policy. He only confirmed the doubts of continuing Italian independence which his speech was probably designed to dispel.

Time Will Tell

Last year at Duke University, 3,367 students sought learning amid the pleasures of a 5,000-acre campus. They were instructed by a faculty with 373 members and were at liberty to read some 450,000 books in the university libraries.

But more surprising to many is the fact that this great university, so much publicized from the viewpoint of size in recent years, is today celebrating the 100th anniversary of its founding. The appropriate celebrations will continue through Sunday, with an imposing panel of participants.

Of course it was not as the present huge establishment, but as modest Trinity College, that the institution got its start a century ago. Yet what is honored today at Durham is above all those virtues which time and tradition alone can produce, the maturity and mellowness without which the buildings, grounds, books and even the faculty of today would be less valuable.

Among the aims of Duke University, as expressed in its by-laws, are the assertion of "faith in the eternal union of knowledge and religion" and the development of "a Christian love of freedom and truth." These are purposes which endowments alone cannot insure. They root in our educational tradition. They are inherited from a great past. And, if perpetuated through Duke and other universities, they give hope of a splendid future.

Encirclement

In denying that Great Britain has any intention of encircling Germany, in the sense in which that term is usually understood, Lord Halifax was only stating an obvious truth.

Germany is not being besieged by any one, least of all Great Britain. No nation has any designs on the territory of the Third Reich; no one wants to strangle her. Speaking of his own country, Lord Halifax said that a policy of encirclement "would be entirely foreign to the whole trend of British thought, which rests essentially upon a desire to live and let live in the world." That can be said of France with equal certainty.

What the Fuehrer actually means when he speaks of encirclement is that an effort is being made to bar the way to further German aggressions. Those independent countries, such as Poland and Rumania and Greece, which are prepared to fight for their territorial integrity, have now received a pledge of support from Great Britain and France. But this is a wholly defensive action. There isn't the slightest doubt that now, as at the time of the signing of the Locarno pact, Great Britain would be as willing to offer Germany the same pledge which she has vouchsafed to others.

In this matter of encirclement, the Nazis are engaged in their customary practice of using words to confuse thought. The continuous expansion of Germany they regard as Germany's right and any interference with it as a hostile act. This contention most of the world has with reason rejected as utterly indefensible. It can scarcely be called encirclement when measures of urgent self-protection are agreed upon by sovereign nations which have the same right of existence as Germany herself.

Wisdom In Delay

Chairman Madden's testimony before the Senate Labor Committee shows very plainly that the difficulties encountered by the National Labor Relations Board in administering the Wagner act have been greatly aggravated by the jurisdictional conflicts resulting from the A. F. of L.-C. I. O. split.

Caught between contending labor factions, the board has been a target for attack from both sides. Under the best of conditions, the determination of what constitutes an appropriate unit for purposes of collective bargaining is, as Mr. Madden says, "most perplexing and most troublesome." But the difficulties, he indicates, "have been increased a hundredfold" by the labor conflict.

The board has replied at great length to charges of favoritism, citing data to show that in the disposition of cases the A. F. of L. has received as good treatment as the C. I. O. Nevertheless, the A. F. of L. is not satisfied and is pressing for far-reaching amendments to the labor relations act patently designed to strengthen its position in future contests with the C. I. O. Mr. Madden is doubtless justified in concluding that if harmony prevailed the A. F. of L. would not now be urging changes in the law. Certainly some of the sponsored amendments, such as that relaxing restrictions upon employer interference with labor organizations, would never have been suggested.

To undertake a radical revision of the labor relations act under present conditions of tension would be most unwise. The machinery established to facilitate collective bargaining cannot be expected to function satisfactorily until the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. declare a truce to hostilities. Moreover, amendments adopted under pressure from either of the rival labor organizations would assuredly change the existing law for the worse. Until peace is restored, therefore, or reconciliation conceded to be a vain hope, changes in the law ought to be limited to proposals that experience has shown to be desirable under any circumstances.

The NLRB itself, in a report submitted to the Senate Labor Committee, has suggested studying the feasibility of granting employers a qualified right to petition for certification of representatives. It also admits the possibility of clarifying the act to assist the determination of the appropriate bargaining unit.

A moderate revisionist program along such lines which would carry the endorsement of friends as well as critics of the labor relations act, would help to strengthen the machinery for collective bargaining and make it easier to defer action on more important amendments to a more propitious time.

Replacing Lost Taxes

The loss of tax revenues hitherto obtained from privately-owned utilities acquired by the TVA has created some extremely difficult problems for the State, municipal and county governments affected by the transfer of ownership.

The plight of these governmental units has brought loud protests from representatives of the taxpayers and has led the TVA board of directors to take cognizance of the situation. The board plans to hold a series of conferences with representatives of the State and local agencies with a view to determining the allocation of proposed increases in TVA payments to compensate for loss of revenue. Equivalent payments by municipal power systems will be considered and provision will be made for hard-hit counties.

The board also recommends that, in addition to Tennessee and Alabama, four other States should be made recipients of TVA payments.

When these adjustments are completed, the cost of supplying power will be increased and operating expenses of the TVA will be more nearly comparable with those applied to privately-owned utilities. Whether the TVA will return amounts sufficient to offset all the revenues lost to the local governments is by no means certain. On the contrary, there is a hint that even after the adjustments, some taxpayers living in the Tennessee Valley may have cause to regret the generosity of the Federal Government in making subsidized power available to the region.

The question is, according to the board, whether a larger share of TVA's surplus power earnings should be turned back to Federal taxpayers or paid over to taxpayers in the States in which TVA projects are operating. "In view of the obvious interest of the Federal taxpayer," it says in a significant concluding statement, "it is essential that his interests be safeguarded and his views heard."

Not A One-Way Street

"The Democratic Party of itself," as the President told the convention of the Young Democratic Clubs, "cannot elect a President. The Republican Party is in the same fix." Only by adopting a program that will appeal to the great body of more or less independent voters can either party hope to win the Presidency and a majority of the seats in Congress.

As Mr. Roosevelt pointed out, it is "fortunate for all of us" that this group of independent voters holds the balance of power. Democratic government works best when there is sufficient fluidity in party alignments to permit the will of the majority on great national issues to prevail with reasonable promptness. And the arbitrary character of the two-party system is effectively offset by the large number of intelligent voters who are always prepared, for good and sufficient reason, to aid candidates not of their party.

But there seem to be certain reservations in the President's praise for this tendency to overstep party lines. Mr. Roosevelt thoroughly approves the independence of "Republican liberals" who flocked to the standard of the New Deal in 1932 and 1936. But he is displeased with the "fratricide" practiced by conservative Democrats. "Where men are at variance with the course their party is taking," Mr. Roosevelt said, "it seems to me there are only two honorable courses—to join a party that more accurately mirrors their ideas, or to subordinate their prejudices and remain loyal."

Independence in politics is not a one-way street. Measures that have won the support of Republican liberals for the New Deal have by the same token deprived it of the confidence of many Democratic conservatives. It is futile to ask this latter substantial group either to go along with the Administration or to join the Republican Party. Their reasonable aspiration is to remold party policy closer to their own ideas.

If those in Congress are few in number they can perhaps be ignored. But if they are numerous, and unpurged by the electorate, the evidence is that the party head must watch his step. It is not a case, as Mr. Roosevelt claims, of "backseat drivers." No single individual, in this country, can swing the wheel without regard for the opinion of those who have a joint responsibility.

Marche Triomphale

The difficulties of attempting to live in two centuries at once is illustrated by the case of Messrs. Denys Wortman, Laurens M. Hamilton and Dr. William S. S. Horton. Not long ago these three gentlemen, appropriately costumed for the respective roles of George Washington, his aide-de-camp, Col. Humphreys, and Charles Thompson, secretary of the Continental Congress, set off from Mount Vernon in an antique coach and four. Their destination was the New York World's Fair where, on April 30, there is to be a re-enactment of the First Inaugural in a replica of Federal Hall.

The coach and four was a touch of verisimilitude not without considerable advertising value. Such vehicles are rare enough nowadays to command much attention. But probably it did not occur to those in charge of the arrangements that verisimilitude could be carried to the point where it would include all the difficulties encountered by the Presidential party of 1789. These were occasioned not so much by the weather or by the condition of the roads but by the triumphal nature of the procession. "Even at that time of year," says the historian McMaster, writing of 1789, "the journey might have been made in five days, but he was much delayed by the hearty receptions given him along the entire route."

Mr. Wortman and his companions appear to be encountering the same plethora of hospitality. As a result, when they arrived yesterday at the outskirts of Baltimore they found themselves directed to climb aboard a Greyhound bus. The coach horses were unhitched and locked in a motor van and the coach itself hoisted onto an Army truck. In this sadly anachronistic fashion the party proceeded to Havre de Grace. Even so, they had barely managed to keep the pace set by Gen. Washington 150 years before.

The coach and four were reassembled in order not to disappoint some 200 school children who had gathered on the Perryville side of the Susquehanna. But after a mile or so the party was motorized again. It was a sad disappointment, of course, for those who had gathered at the roadside and even more so for the citizens of Elkton, who had prepared an elaborate welcome.

Still, it would be a dreadful irony if a twentieth century George Washington, starting from scratch, should arrive late for a ceremony, where the eighteenth century Washington had arrived with a week to spare.

"What is the oldest Scotch joke?" someone asks. Answer: Bagpipes.

You can't eat your cake and have it, too, but if you save it to eat later, it becomes stale.

T. R. Not A Fan

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The always interesting column in The Post by my old friend and erstwhile fellow worker, Bob Considine, today contains the following paragraph: "It seems quite likely that Teddy Roosevelt used to go to ball games in Washington, for he was a sports nut. He favored boxing, in fact he lost an eye in a friendly boxing match. But he must have been in baseball, too."

I do not believe that Teddy Roosevelt ever went to a baseball game. I can testify from personal experience that he did not have what might be called a baseball mind. During my term as District Commissioner I was also vice president of the Washington Baseball Club and I went to the White House to ask the President to go with me and see a new pitcher who had joined the club and was making a sensation. His name was Walter Johnson. Mr. Roosevelt declined and, when I asked him his reason, replied: "I will not go and sit for two hours looking at someone else do something."

"But, Mr. President," I said, "you go to a football game."

"Yes," he said, "but that is generally a real scrap." Then he added: "I would rather see a prize fight than anything else." And he would. HENRY L. WEST.

Defend Democracy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: You publish a letter from my friend, Thomas McMorrow, saying that we should enter the European embroglio on the side of Germany and Italy because they are the probable winners.

Knowing the gentleman, I venture to say that he was spoofing the editorial writers and columnists who have turned of late to saying that America's selfish interest requires that we aid the democracies.

Today's conflict is between the totalitarian idea and the democratic. Totalitarianism is more efficient. If it wins in Eprope we shall be compelled to adopt it here. God forbid.

Democracy works imperfectly, but it is improving all the time. Compare our social, industrial and political ideals and conditions to those of even one generation ago.

Efficiency will come with increased good will and understanding. The improvement visible in our own times shows that democracy is worth an immediate sacrifice. To defend it here we must defend it abroad. It is perhaps true that certain groups among us are putting out anti-Fascist propaganda to promote their private European interests. Despite such bad company I believe we should aid France and Britain. DERMOT CAVANAGH.

Philatelic Recognition

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Culturally, our Nation has now come to age, so to speak, and it is high time our native men of genius were awarded the official recognition usually reserved for soldiers and statesmen. I am referring to the custom of issuing special stamps in honor of our departed great.

While I have no quarrel with any of the choices thus far for stamp subjects, I deplore the philatelic obscurity to which artists have been relegated by preceding Administrations.

In an effort to make up for this negligence, I propose that special issues of stamps be authorized honoring our cultural leaders, beginning with the immortal Stephen Foster. In this I have received the active support of the Kostelanetz committee, comprising some of the Nation's greatest musicians, headed by Andre Kostelanetz, and including Lawrence Tibbett, Deems Taylor, John Erskine and others. Through our efforts, stamp collectors may yet see a whole new series of stamps unique in American philatelic history. LEX GREEN.

Call For Isolation

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I, as an ever-interested reader of your paper, say that the best thing that could happen to our country right now would be the immediate resignation of President Roosevelt and the installation of John N. Garner as Chief Executive. Otherwise we are liable to be sucked into a European war by reason of a lot of hysterical statements by high officials in the Administration.

First, the public should know that 95 per cent of all our business is done among ourselves—right here at home. The other 5 per cent comes from things that foreigners must buy from us or goods that we must buy from them. Foreigners don't buy from us for friendship's sake, and we shouldn't buy anything from them, except what we can't raise here. So, all talk about "our foreign trade" is bunk. The exceptions to the above rules are few and far between.

Lastly, people at large are nauseated by statements of Sumner Welles, Secretary Hull, ambassadorial under-cover tips and propaganda, and the President's efforts to line us up with England and France by inference. Who set us up as the judge of foreign disputes? Europeans have been fighting for centuries over land and power and it is their affair, not ours.

The President has done his best to help us out of the depression, but has failed. If Garner's original motion, some years ago, for a billion dollars to prevent depression, had been adopted, I don't think we would be in our present mess with 11,000,000 people out of work and 25,000,000 others working on short rations.

For Historic Accuracy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For the protection of historic verities in stage and screen presentations of Western life and customs of pioneering periods, may I point out only about a dozen inaccuracies in the lively, colorful and entertaining cinema, "Dodge City?"

My great-grandfather founded Kansas City in 1822, my father, who crossed the plains with covered-wagon train and cattle, had 5,000 head of grazers on the San Joaquin in the early sixties; I was a California cowboy in the later eighties, a San Francisco policeman during the 1906 earthquake and fire, an active news writer in that city during 14 years, a movie director in 1915.

In Dodge City, Kans., in 1872, there could not have been buckingbumps flanking the horn of a Mexican saddle, lumber-jack plaid shirts, black socks, billowing masses of soap-flake soapsuds, divided skirts for an equestrienne, tan riding boots, small, razor-trimmed mustaches; brass hardware on doors, meek, white-faced, short-horn Herford cattle; a two-way swinging gate in a newspaper, a barber offering to trim a mustache with scissors, nor a sheriff with a distinctive British accent.

Black socks and tan shoes were practically unknown before 1890, herds of Herford cattle unseen before about 1910, razor-trimmed diminutive must: bes absurdities before the World War.

Why Not Be Sensible?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The present regulations with respect to pedestrian control in Washington are unreasonable and they should be amended. In theory it is fine to say that traffic of all kinds should come to a stop at the red light and not go forward until the green light shows. However, a person can stop and start more quickly and more easily than any machine, and the two should not be classified alike.

Frequently, particularly outside of the downtown sections of the city, there are times when there is not a moving automobile within a block, and yet a person crossing at the intersection against a red light is subject to arrest and fine. That is the ridiculous part of the law, which will make it more and more unpopular until it will be treated by the public in the same manner as was the eighteenth amendment.

The present regulations permit crossing streets between blocks, regardless of the traffic light at the intersections, if that crossing does not constitute a traffic hazard. Why not be sensible about this present-day problem and extend the same permission at the intersection crossings? People will more willingly obey a sensible than a silly law.

The National Symphony

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Another season of the National Symphony Orchestra has passed. Continued success is due to the musicianship, vision and personality of Dr. Hans Kindler, a receptive orchestra of artist-musicians, energy of the man of affairs, C. C. Cappel, a sympathetic board of directors, vigorous committees and members for the drive, a generous press. I think no one has been forgotten.

In a community all musical life centers around its orchestra. The director must have erudition and know his literature. Details absorb. An instrument of many facets must be perfected. An acute ear will be finally adjusted. Musical memory will be sharpened through the tracery of many scores.

Those delicate and varied excitations of rhythm, known as rubato, the fluidity of music, will be felt. Adequate climax will be experienced. Serenity will be caressed as it emerges from the silence. Lightness will not submerge austere nobility. Dignity will surround presentation.

Of the many orchestras heard here and abroad, two directors of early years come to mind, Theodore Thomas and Gericke, of the Boston Symphony, each of Teutonic discipline. Magnificent musical machines evolved, yet something was lacking.

In contrast, at the Watergate concerts two summers ago, a stranger appeared for our presentation, Reginald Stewart, of the Toronto Orchestra. With only a few rehearsals the result was a poetic revelation and at the end of the concert the members of the orchestra gave the fanfare of instruments, a greeting of affection. Stewart unloosened the souls of these men. A finer art resulted. Yes, this is the better way.

Appreciation

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post of April 18 on the work of the Greater National Capital Committee was excellent. It said exactly the right thing in exactly the right way and every sentence hit the mark. Also, it was timely and that was important.

On behalf of the Greater National Capital Committee, may I express to you our real appreciation.

Reshuffling Relief Deal

By Ernest K. Lindley

Byrnes' Measures

SENATOR James F. Byrnes is clear in his own mind about the meaning of his two bills to revise the public works and unemployment relief programs. But at least four first-class lawyers in the Administration, who have examined the language of the two bills, are far from clear about their meaning.

There is no hint of bad faith on the part of Senator Byrnes and his committee colleagues. It seems to be a case of muddy draftsmanship. After scrutinizing coldly one of the bills, an experienced lawyer in the Administration reported that it was so ambiguous that it amounted to a delegation of the legislative power of Congress to the Comptroller General and the courts.

Some of the purposes of the Byrnes bills can be achieved in a different way: by the exercise of Presidential authority under the reorganization act. It now looks as if the President would take the lead in reshuffling the major agencies dealing with public works and unemployment relief. Such a reshuffling undoubtedly would be in accord with the Byrnes bills, but probably would differ in certain details.

Plan Contemplates Two Giant Agencies

ONE PLAN of reorganization would combine the major public works and social security activities under two agencies. The first of these would be a public works agency, absorbing PWA and the construction work of the Works Progress Administration. The second would be an agency devoted to welfare and education, including the Social Security Board, the United States Employment Service, the Public Health service, and possibly, the National Youth Administration and the Civilian Conservation Corps. In the latter agency might also be included the white collar activities of WPA—or such of them as are retained.

An alternative plan would bring together PWA and the Works Progress Administration, including its white collar projects. In a second agency it would draw together the Social Security Board, the United States Employment Service and the Public Health Service. And in a third it would bring together the National Youth Administration and the Civilian Conservation Corps and add a new division especially devoted to the retraining of adult workers.

The second plan seems more logical than the first. It would put under one tent the principal work programs for adults. Under the second tent would be the chief welfare and social insurance activities. The third tent would cover the agencies most concerned with youth and education.

White Collar Projects May Be Disinherited

OTHER combinations are under consideration. For example, a good case can be made for putting together all public works, the employment service and unemployment insurance.

The WPA white-collar projects are in danger of becoming disinherited in the reshuffle. They don't fit logically into an agency devoted to public construction work. Yet it is doubtful if money could be obtained for them if they were separated from the general works-relief program. Col. Harrington, the new WPA Administrator, has been pruning the white-collar projects, being convinced that many of them are of doubtful utility. Their transfer would relieve him of a continual headache. But even he, a hard-boiled engineer, realizes that there is genuine need among white-collar workers, and he has indicated that he would rather suffer his headache than relieve it at the risk of pushing this section of the needy unemployed out into the cold.

NYA Revision Widely Protested

ALTHOUGH Senator Byrnes disagrees, Administration lawyers say that one of his bills clouds the authority of the National Youth Administration, one of the most successful of the New Deal agencies. This uncertainty could easily be cleared up by an amendment. The report that the Byrnes program menaced the NYA has already brought a stream of inquiries and protests from all parts of the country to various members of Congress.

More than a year ago the Federal Advisory Committee on Education recommended that the NYA and the Civilian Conservation Corps be combined under one administration. Since both are concerned with youth, this seems desirable. The NYA has gone much farther than the CCC in developing educational and training programs for youth and, incidentally, more attention to education and training is one of the points emphasized by Senator Byrnes.

If the President can put through a reorganization of the public works, social welfare and educational agencies of the Administration, the Byrnes bills will become largely superfluous. The job can be pretty well rounded out in the works-relief appropriation bills for next year, with the help, perhaps, of one or two amendments to the social security act.

Mr. Morley's Statement:

Post's Editor Gives Views On Neutrality

Inflexible Policy Encourages Aggression, House Group Told; Law Declared Infringement on President's Power

Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post, offered this statement Thursday before the House Foreign Affairs Committee:

The Washington Post has opposed inflexible neutrality legislation ever since such legislation first became an issue. I appreciate this opportunity to summarize the reasoning on which our policy in this respect is based.

In the first place, neutrality is extremely difficult for any great power to achieve in a world which operates under the balance of power. The significance of the phrase "balance of power" is generally misunderstood. It is not a policy to be followed or disregarded at will but a condition to which every nation must adjust itself.

MORLEY

In the absence of any adequate machinery for international peace, every great nation is concerned with the balance of power. It is necessarily concerned because every great nation is fundamentally affected by attempts to upset the status quo. Nations which are generally satisfied with their situation will tend to work co-operatively to keep that satisfactory situation from forceful overthrow. It is this natural reaction which makes neutrality so difficult to achieve.

At the present time the post-war balance of power has been violently upset both by Germany and Italy in Europe and by Japan in the Orient. Our instinctive national reaction to this simultaneous dislocation is apparent in our military preparations, in our efforts to further and consolidate Pan-American unity, in our refusal to recognize the conquests of the aggressors. These are among the warning signs that the United States, as a great power, is not and cannot be strictly neutral in a period of world upheaval.

Rigid Neutrality Laws Risky

In the second place, inelastic neutrality legislation establishes an exceedingly risky policy. It is something like choosing a profession for your son before you know the direction of his interests. It assumes that it is practicable to lay down in advance binding rules to apply to completely unpredictable developments. Such a policy may, and indeed probably will, tend to conflict with fundamental national interests. Certainly it is demonstrated that our present neutrality legislation has done nothing to forward international stability and has given the people of the United States no real assurance that if war comes the peace of this country can be preserved.

It seems to be an American characteristic to believe that every possible subject can be controlled by rigid legislative action. On this fallacious assumption we tend to conclude that the more difficult the issue the more drastic the attempted control should be. The example of prohibition is fresh in memory. To want sobriety is one thing; to order it by legislation quite another. The same difficulty applies in even greater degree to the universally desired objective of peace, where certain basic factors are evidently beyond our control.

The third point against inflexible neutrality legislation is that the policy rests on a false premise. It sprang from specious propaganda which intimated that wars are started by munition makers, international bankers, irresponsible newspaper publishers and various other capitalistic groups. Give the Government control over the warmongers, said the Nye committee, and there'll be less risk of war.

Well, in Germany the government controls every newspaper, every munition plant and every banker, but war is somehow still in the picture. Now I suggest that this witch-burning technique which seeks to place major responsibility on a few "merchants of death," and which underlies the present neutrality law, has been the more deplorable because it has diverted attention from the real problem. The issue is not how to counteract all the possible causes of war, but how to secure the conditions fundamentally necessary for peace.

Inflexible Policy Encourages Aggression

Peace can only be secured if wanton aggression is actively and intelligently discouraged by all governments desiring peace. And that brings me to the fourth indictment of rigid neutrality legislation, and perhaps the most damning point against it. Such an inflexible policy actually encourages aggression. It serves formal notice, in advance, that the United States will make no distinction between aggressors and their victims, no matter how morally heinous the aggression. By writing off our potentially enormous influence for peace we actively stimulate war. This seems the more criminally stupid because, in spite of efforts to avoid it, the possibility of our being involved in any major and long-continued war is so strong.

Our foreign policy should be directed to discouragement of war as such. Legislation affecting foreign policy should have the same objective. This seems the more incontestable in view of the widespread fear that if a major war comes we shall be involved. Indeed the feverish effort to guarantee neutrality itself seems a tacit admission that neutrality is very difficult to guarantee.

In addition to increasing the risk of war, rigid neutrality legislation goes far to destroy the effectiveness of our first line of defense against war, which is the Department of State. The fifth point is the adverse effect of our inflexible policy on the Department of State, which is our Department of Peace. The fundamental purpose of that branch of the Administration is to keep the country at peace. To achieve that purpose successfully its highly trained and well-informed officials must be allowed some latitude of action.

None of you gentlemen would think of demanding that the Navy Department, in the event of war, should follow this or that strategy to be laid down in advance by Congress. Is it not equally unreasonable to fetter the well-qualified judgment of the Department of State in a campaign for peace? In the field of foreign policy the Administration must operate under Congressional guidance rather than under rigid Congressional orders. You cannot put manacles on the Department of State and expect it to do an effective job in preserving peace.

From the viewpoint of our form of Government, and this is the sixth consideration, rigid neutrality legislation is revolutionary, even perhaps actually unconstitutional. You will recall that as recently as December 21, 1936, the Supreme Court referred to the "plenary and exclusive power of the President as the sole organ of the Federal Government in the field of international relations—a power which does not require as a basis for its exercise an act of Congress." Those words certainly seem to indicate that certain forms of mandatory neutrality legislation could, in an emergency, be properly ignored by the Chief Executive.

President's Constitutional Power

In many respects where more power for the Executive is questionable Congress has increased that power. But in our external relations, where John Marshall defined the President as "the sole organ of the Nation," Congress is seeking to contract his powers. Because this is doubtful law it makes stronger the unpleasant implication that Congress does not trust the President and the Secretary of State. It is perfectly apparent that this is the conclusion which the aggressive powers draw and which they are endeavoring to promote. Even if this mistrust really existed it would seem deplorable to advertise it to the world at this particular moment.

Finally, in view of our national traditions and record, rigid neutrality legislation constitutes an immoral policy. It indicates that we have as little regard for treaties as have those nations which we accuse of treaty violation.

It was the United States which sponsored the Kellogg Pact, outlawing war as an instrument of national policy. But by adopting an inflexible neutrality program we have served notice that the utilization of war as an instrument of national policy has become a matter of complete indifference to us. This seems an unpleasantly hypocritical attitude on the part of a Nation which has always been rightly proud of its leadership in the effort to secure respect for treaties as the only basis of enduring peace.

It, therefore, seems to me that any careful and objective consideration of the issue must lead to certain inescapable conclusions. Rigid, inflexible, inelastic neutrality legislation is likely to prove unworkable. It is almost certain to prove un-neutral in any accurate sense of the word. It may operate against our fundamental national interests. It does less than nothing to forward peace. It actually stimulates war. It does not materially lessen the risk of our being involved when war comes. In the emergency, after the damage has been done, it may quite possibly be ignored as unconstitutional. It is a devastating confession of national weakness and confusion. It runs counter to the traditional policies which, through the generations and throughout the world, have made the name of America respected and influential for peace and human progress.

I thank you for your courtesy in letting me briefly summarize the major considerations which have led The Washington Post to conclude that any provision of a rigid or mandatory nature should be excluded in amending the present act.

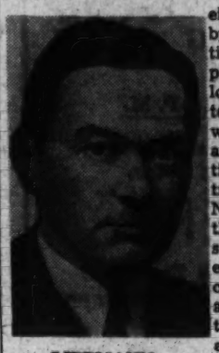
An Address by Walter Lippmann

National Defense Through Patriotic Citizenship Education

The complete text of Walter Lippmann's address to the Forty-Eighth Continental Congress of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution yesterday follows:

YOU HAVE DONE me the honor of asking me to speak on the subject of national defense through education for patriotic citizenship. It is a subject that a man must approach with great humility.

For nothing is easier than to succumb to the temptation to think that the views we happen to hold on national defense and foreign policy are a test by which we are entitled to measure the patriotism of our fellow citizens, and then to conclude that those who disagree with us are actuated by motives that are less patriotic than our own. Nothing is easier also than to think that a sound education is an education which inculcates our own ideas, and then to conclude that a citizen has been educated properly in so far as his opinions coincide with our own opinions. And it is very easy indeed, as we all know, as we can all observe by looking about us in the world today, to slide down that slippery slope which leads from national defense to national aggrandizement, from patriotism to patrioteering, from the love of one's own country to the hatred of other countries, from civic loyalty to servility, from national pride to national arrogance, from the declaration of ideals to the denial of duties, from righteousness to self-righteousness.



LIPPMANN

Process Of Corruption

THESE THINGS remind us of the old saying that the corruption of the best things produces the worst things. The corruption of the idea we are discussing today, of the relationship between national defense and education and patriotism has, as a matter of fact, produced those monstrous dangers that threaten to destroy by revolution and war the civilization of at least half the world. The process of corruption has been worked out before our eyes. The formula of the poison is a simple one. The doctrine of a party is imposed on a nation. The acceptance of that doctrine is proclaimed to be a patriotic duty. Education is then degraded to the role of an agency for propagating the doctrines of the party. The national defense becomes the instrument for preserving the party and for realizing its ambitions.

The committees, which are, I understand, reporting to you today, are concerned above all to protect the United States against this corruption, whether it be insidious and plausible or overt and brazen. If that protection is to be adequate, if in this fateful hour we are to find the wisdom we shall need in order to understand our responsibilities, if we are to find the resolution that is required to fulfill our responsibility, we cannot rely on expedients and improvisations, on momentary impulses and passing notions. We must repair to the sources of our national existence, to those self-evident truths upon which your ancestors founded American independence, constructed the Constitution of the United States, and established a fortress of human liberty.

Clear Faith Needed

NOTHING LESS than this, nothing less than a clear and steadfast understanding of the American faith can guide us and sustain us in this critical time. Precisely because the problems are complicated and the decisions that confront us are critical, we cannot rely upon happy accidents, upon muddling through, and upon mere opinion, excited by sensational news and blown about by propaganda. We are in the presence of stupendous events that may compel us to take decisions affecting profoundly the future of this Nation. If we are to take those decisions well, if we are to emerge from this crisis having preserved for our descendants the inheritance which comes down to us from the founders, we must do what your ancestors did, we must seek out the enduring principles upon which they relied.

There may be some, I suppose, to whom it will seem remote and academic to discuss fundamental principles at a time when we have so many critical and urgent practical problems to deal with. But it is precisely at a time like this, when the facts are very complicated, when the decisions that have to be taken are very puzzling, that elementary principles are the surest guide.

Elementary Principles

LET US, then, fix in mind what we mean by an elementary principle. It is, for example, an elementary principle, derived from the whole experience of the human race, that wealth is produced by work and saving. Any program that denies this principle, even though it is very plausible, even though it is supported by such learned arguments that we cannot detect any error in the arguments, is, nevertheless, almost certainly a false program which a wise man will refuse to accept.

It is also, to take another example, an elementary principle derived from the long experience of history, that all men are mortal, all men are finite, all men have limited abilities. Therefore, any scheme, plan or utopia which can be administered only by granting unlimited power to one man, or to a small group of men, is sure to produce disaster. The scheme, the plan, the utopia may be no end attractive; the fact that it violates the elementary principle that men have limited capacities is a sufficient reason for predicting that it must fail, a conclusive reason for opposing it.

All Power Corrupts

IT IS, to take still another example, an elementary principle of human experience that no government can be trusted with unlimited and unchallenged power. For men have learned, as the saying goes, that all power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely. To know that elementary truth is to know the major premise of a political education.

Truths of this kind have been arrived at by the experience of countless men and women through many generations of experience. To provide the opportunity to acquire such fundamental truths as these is the main task of a genuine educational system. The failure to teach an appreciation of the obvious and the simple truths, what the authors of the Declaration of Independence would have called the self-evident truths, may not prevent the schools from turning out clever men, well-informed men, even learned men. But it will prevent them from turning out wise men. For what distinguishes a wise man from a man who has merely acquired knowledge is that the wise man possesses a fund of elementary and self-evident principles by which he can test the reports he receives, the theories that are advanced, by which he can decide whether or not the knowledge that is offered to him violates the conclusions of human experience.

The Duty To Teach

THE AMERICAN people have inherited a body of fundamental and distinctive political principles. These principles have been tested over a period of a century and a half. They are very simple. They are very elementary. Once a man has understood them, they will seem to him so true that they are self-evident. The task of patriotic education is to make plain to the coming generation the self-evident truths of the American tradition.

They can perhaps be made plain by saying that the American Nation is peculiar, perhaps unique in human history, because it was founded by men who had suffered for their faith. To be sure, not all the men who have crossed the ocean and have settled this continent came because they were determined to live in the New World according to the dictates of their consciences. Many have come for much less exalted reasons than that. But it is, nevertheless, true that it was the conscience of men who desired to be free, rather than the calculations of men who sought to be more comfortable, which created American institutions, and breathed into them the spirit which has given them life.

Conscience Controls

THIS FACT, that the American Nation was founded recently, as time is measured in history, and that it was founded by men who were determined to be free to live their lives according to their consciences, this fact is obvious. But though it is obvious, it is fundamental and it is controlling. For these men who were determined to live by the dictates of their consciences had, and in the Declaration of Independence they avowed it, a profound and unshakable conviction about the nature of man. They believed in a stupendous idea. They believed in the stupendous claim that in every man, above and beyond all his sins, crimes, vices and follies, there was a person made in the image of God, and, therefore, that man was capable of reason and capable of freedom to follow the rules of reason; and that there was in him, in every man, and in all men equally, an essence, an energy, an element that was inviolable.

This did not mean that the founders of the American Nation believed that all men were equally intelligent, or equally industrious, or equally good, or equally able to write the plays of Shakespeare or equally fitted to be President of the United States. But it did mean that all men as human beings had an equal right to be judged on their merits and an equal obligation to be held responsible for their own actions, that all men had an equal right to enjoy the dignity of human beings and an equal duty to preserve their dignity, that all men had an equal right to justice under the law and in public opinion and an equal duty to render justice to their neighbors in law and in public opinion. It meant more than that. It meant that because men are created in the image of God, their duty to respect human rights was a religious duty and not merely a policy or expedient of government.

Rights And Duties

IT MEANT always that because men had rights they had duties. Thus, since they had the right to the protection of equal justice, they had the duty of defending the institutions and the laws which organize and administer equal justice. It meant that if they were to have self-respect, they must have self-reliance. It meant that since their dignity was acknowledged, they must acknowledge the obligation to support the government. It meant that since they had the right to vote and to take part in government, they had the duty to be rational in their opinions and loyal in their thoughts and their acts.

The founders established a commonwealth of free men. The commonwealth could endure only if these free men freely and willingly and habitually acknowledged the principles of such a commonwealth, supported it in good times and bad, and defended it not only against its avowed enemies but against the corrupting influence of self-indulgence, complacency, inertia and stupidity.

Source In Religion

THIS CONCEPTION of man is the soul within the body of American institutions. Upon this conception of man is founded the whole constitutional system of the United States and the whole American tradition. From this conception of man everything else is derived. Without an understanding of this conception of man nothing that is distinctively American can be understood. Without a people holding clearly and firmly to this conception of man, nothing that is essentially American can endure. This conception of man is not only the bond that holds the Nation together, it is the principle that alone makes intelligible and workable the American form of constitutional democracy.

Thus it follows, because man is endowed by his Creator with certain inalienable rights, that the American Government is a government of limited powers, and that these limited powers have been granted to the government by the people. In other parts of the world men deny this principle: they insist that the government has unlimited powers and that men as human beings have only such rights as the government chooses to allow them. It is no accident that every government which denies that men have rights because they are men is also a government which is at war with religion. For the source of the belief that men have rights which no government may invade is in the last analysis the religious conviction that men are created in the image of God.

Law Over Government

AND THE experience of the modern world shows that where that conviction is lost, there soon follows a loss of all liberty under the law and finally the destruction of law itself. In the last analysis there is no limit to the powers that governments will exercise except the barrier set up by that conscience in men which refuses to render all things unto Caesar.

The American Government is then distinctively a government of limited power. From the principle that the American Government has limited powers which are granted by the people, it follows that all branches of the government, including the legislature itself, are under a supreme law of the land, and that this law, which is the Constitution, must be administered by an independent judiciary. For unless there is an independent court to which the citizen can go when the government exceeds its powers, the government has in fact unlimited power, and the individual has no means of protecting his rights.

Majority Not Absolute

FROM THE principle that the government has only limited powers, and that individuals have rights which the government may not violate, it follows that, though this is a democracy, the majority does not have absolute power. The majority may do only those things which the Constitution permits; a majority may not, without overthrowing the Constitution, impair those rights which belong to the individual and are inalienable.

These are, I submit, the elementary principles of Americanism: when they were declared to the world in 1776, they represented the first conscious attempt in human history to establish a large commonwealth on the basic religious principle that man possesses indestructible human rights because he has an immortal soul. The perpetuity of the American Nation depends upon the perpetuation of that basic principle. For once men reject it, as they have in the nations that have turned against the religious tradition of the Western World, there is no barrier to the unlimited expansion of government, there is no foundation for the maintenance of law, there is no guide to the policy of the state. There is only power, and arbitrary action, and unpredictable violence.

The Nobler Freedom

AND SO patriotic education in America means education in those fundamental convictions about the nature of man and of the limitations of government, those fundamental convictions upon which the whole structure of the Constitution reposes. Those convictions are the inner citadel of the national defense. Men who understand these elementary principles of the Constitution will in the great and overwhelming majority be always ready to defend these principles. For they will know that in defending them they are saving their own souls. Men educated to understand the Constitution will be free men, not free in the vulgar sense as meaning that they may do what they like, but free in the nobler sense that they will be loyal to that which gives them all their dignity. And they will have self-respect because they will have understood that respect for the essential dignity of man is the vital essence of their national existence. They will have the self-reliance which is an integral part of all self-respect, because men who have refused to be the creatures of the government cannot and will not make themselves the dependents, the clients and the parasites of the government.

Open Discussion

TO BE PATRIOTIC is, I submit, to understand these things, to cherish them, and to live by them. Those who do live by them, those who do cherish them, those who really understand these essential things will always be on guard against the corruption of this faith, not only by its avowed enemies but by their own human frailty. They will be on guard against the universal tendency of men to confuse their own views of public policy and even their own partisanship with the fundamental principles of the Nation itself.

It is necessary, therefore, to insist that beyond the realm of elementary principles, of essential rights and duties, that are self-evident and binding on all citizens, there is the whole field of public policy in which the truth is not self-evident and can be ascertained only by free and open discussion. Those who try to shut off discussion on subjects like that of the tariff, for example, or taxes, or the regulation of industry, or the size of the Army and the Navy, or the conduct of foreign policy, by crying that the opposition is un-American or unpatriotic, do nothing to clarify the debatable issues and they do a very poor service indeed to the patriotic unity of the Nation. In order to win the argument on an issue where honest men can honestly disagree, they exploit the faith of a nation for the immediate ends of a party, a faction, a prejudice, an opinion, or a special interest.

Faith For All Time

THERE MUST be integrity in the patriotic faith if it is to unite and guide a great nation not only in moments of crisis but from generation to generation through all the changing circumstances of history. The integrity of this faith must not be contaminated by the issues of the passing moment. It belongs to the great past, to our difficult present, and to the long future. It is not the property of any part of the people. Having been received from those who preceded us, it must be handed on to those who will follow us down the long avenue of the years to come. Handing on the understanding of these principles to those who will follow us is what we mean by education in patriotism.

And we shall have done our part well if at the end we can say with Mr. Valiant-for-Truth in John Bunyan's "The Pilgrim's Progress," when the final summons came to him and he was ready to die:

"I am going to my Father's; and though with great difficulty I am got thither, yet now I do not repent me of all the trouble I had been at to arrive where I am. My sword I give to him that shall succeed me in my pilgrimage, and my courage and skill to him that can get it. My marks and scars I carry with me, to be a witness for me that I have fought His battles who now will be my rewarder."

Taft Asserts New Deal Has Failed

Foreign Situation Ballyhooed to Cover Conditions at Home, He Tells Dinner

New Dealers were charged last night by Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, with "ballyhooing the foreign situation, trying to stir up prejudices . . . and at all cost take the minds of the people off their troubles at home."

"One thing is perfectly clear," he told 450 diners at the Republicans-on-the-March banquet at the Willard Hotel. "No denouncing of dictators or eulogies of democracies can improve the condition of the people of this country by one penny of income."

President Roosevelt also was accused by Senator Reed (Republican), of Kansas, of hauling Old World troubles into the American political scene to save the New Deal's skin. Speakers were unanimous in forecasting Republican victory next year and inviting disgruntled conservative Democrats "to take a walk" and enlist with Republicans in the coming triumph.

Jobless Figures Quoted

Quoting February reports of 11,500,000 unemployed, Senator Taft shouted, "we can only conclude that the New Deal is a failure and has reduced us to a tremendously dangerous situation.

Senator Reed, viewed as a dark-horse candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination in '40, asserted the American people "have been agitated and their emotions constantly stirred by frequent, perhaps planned, expressions from those high in authority and some not so high in this country."

He said he was absolutely opposed to the suggestion that the President should pass judgment in the event of a foreign war to decide what nation or nations are to be considered aggressors.

Such a course, he remarked, would be dangerous business, and would "inevitably lead us into trouble, with grave danger of leading us finally into war."

Puts Blame on President

Senator Taft, whose name has been coupled with that of District Attorney Thomas A. Dewey, of New York City, for the Republican ticket next year, blamed the "complete confusion" in the Democratic Party on the President's efforts to drive conservatives out of the organization.

"Business appeasement," he stated, was developed in response to "the revolt of every businessman, large and small . . ."

"The businessman is assured that the Government is really his friend, but if anyone proposes to translate this into any practical action, he seems to run up against a stone wall," Senator Taft asserted.

He found the root of existing domestic difficulties in the "inside New Deal crowd which is obsessed with the belief that the way to improve the condition of the poor is to take . . . away from those who have made any reasonable success in life, and that the successful businessman is a crook until he proves himself otherwise."

"I do not say that this group is communistic," he added, "but I do believe they are convinced they can run the affairs of the business man and the laboring man and the banker and the insurance man better than he can do it himself."

Forgotten Man Defined

Gov. Raymond F. Baldwin of Connecticut, pointed out that the Forgotten Man—"of whom we have heard less and less in recent years"—is not the man "who, through no fault of his own, has been marked to suffer the misfortunes of ill-health and poverty."

"The Forgotten Man," he said, "is the man of our great middle classes.

"In fact, he is the man that goes to make up the bulk of the population of these United States . . ."

Gov. Baldwin asked a return of the relief administration local agencies "to use the governmental machinery of the States that has been in existence for years."

Representative Martin, of Massachusetts, minority leader of the House; Chairman John Hamilton, of the Republican National Committee, and Miss Marian E. Martin, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee, also spoke. Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, presided.

$1,500 Blaze Halts Session of Silver Spring Fire Body

Interrupted after their business session by a $1,500 blaze in Silver Spring last night, the executive committee of the Montgomery County Volunteer Fire Association pitched in with the local volunteer group to bring the fire under control in time for the cakes and coffee.

The siren announcing a fire in a pump house in the rear of the home of Miss Lucy S. Black, on the Colesville pike near Georgia avenue, rang just as the assembled fire chiefs finished a discussion of the effect of recent legislation on county fire departments.

Aided by ten visiting chiefs the Silver Spring firefighters stifled flames that swept up the rear of the residence, a 75-year-old structure which was vacant at the time.

Clubwomen Oppose Ban On Refugees

Defeat Resolution To Halt Immigration; State Nuptial 'Wait' Law Approved

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Richmond, Va., April 20.—A resolution calling for the stoppage of the inflow of refugees was defeated today, at the convention of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs.

The resolution submitted by Miss Helen Norris Cummings, of Alexandria, chairman of the group's Americanization committee, asked for a stoppage of alien immigration until the unemployment situation is solved in America.

Another resolution, backed by northern Virginia clubwomen, which favored a waiting period of from 48 to 72 hours between application for and the issuance of a marriage license, was adopted. Clubwomen from Alexandria, Arlington, Fredericksburg and other points in the area stated yesterday that their section was becoming a "Gretna Green" since the enactment of a Maryland nuptial "wait" law.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, first vice president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, warned today that "high-salaried propagandists" would "sell" America dictatorship unless the "women of this country awaken before it is too late."

Speaking at a banquet meeting of the Virginia Federation, Mrs. Whitehurst asserted "democracy is fighting for its very life. We must sell democracy to our people. We as a group want to preserve democracy, but we should contact those people in the underprivileged groups who are discouraged with present conditions."

She urged the women to leave their clubhouses and homes and go out into the communities and hold public forums in order to prove to the underprivileged "that you will work to better conditions for them and show them the fallacy of believing that all people are happy and contented under a dictator. Point out the privileges enjoyed in a democracy."

Mrs. Whitehurst told the clubwomen it was infinitely important that they "assume their responsibility as citizens because democracy can function only when all of its citizens vote intelligently."

Mrs. Byrn Heads Maryland Group.

Hurlock, Md., April 20 (AP).—Mrs. S. L. Byrn, of Cambridge, was elected president of the Eastern Shore District of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs at today's annual spring meeting attended by 400 women from 23 Maryland towns.

Mrs. Wilmer Fell Davis, wife of State Senator Davis, Federalsburg, was elected vice president. Other officers elected were Mrs. James W. Hughes, Elkton, recording secretary; Mrs. Russell S. Davis, Cambridge, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Grady Powell, Pocomoke, treasurer.

Scuffles Mark Antiwar Rally Of Md. Students

At Hopkins 200 students scuffled with other students who hung a swastika from a window and tore down the staff. During the speeches an automobile backfired frequently and one man played martial tunes on a bugle.

Charles L. Wells Spends Waking Hours in Fashioning Useful Doodads for Homes of Relatives

(This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are—Editor's note.)

By Gerald G. Gross.

Charles L. Wells has made a fine art of the old country store practice of whittling. To him, meals and sleep are just habit-forming distractions interrupting an otherwise continuous spree with pocketknife and wood in the basement of his home at 710 Nicholson street northwest.

But the point is that he leaves something behind besides shavings. The house in which he lives with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wells, is almost literally filled with handsome examples of his hobby—footstools, utility tables, telephone rack and chair, picture frames, sewing cabinets, playing card cases, cigarette and cigar humidors, wall ornaments, spool holders, children's playthings and other practical objects ad infinitum.

Mr. Wells, who will be 75 in August, does not commercialize his whittling. Everything he produces is for children, brothers, sister, grandchildren, nephews, nieces and friends, of whom there are many, about evenly divided between Grafton, W. Va., his old home, and Washington.

His tools are a few pocket knives of different sizes, a chisel, a gouger and a couple of saws. He doesn't have a lathe or any other kind of machinery because that would be, well, sort of mass-productionish.

A carpenter and cabinet maker by trade, Mr. Wells "retired" 12 years ago and moved to Washington. He has just one daily habit, separate from his whittling. That is the 2-mile walk he takes each morning to visit his daughter and grandchild.

Naval Academy Inspection to Open Monday

Drills, Reception On Program of Visiting Board

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, April 20 (AP).—The life of a midshipman at the Naval Academy will go under official scrutiny next week when the Board of Visitors starts its annual inspection.

Official program for the board was announced today by Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, Academy superintendent.

Six Congressmen, six Senators and six men named by President Roosevelt constitute the Board of Visitors. The group will spend four days from April 24 to April 27 at the Academy.

The tour will begin Monday when the board assembles for devotional services in the Chapel at the Crypt of John Paul Jones.

Admiral Brown will be host to the board at a luncheon after the group sees the noon formation of the regiment of midshipmen.

The board will meet for organization after the luncheon, and will inspect the Naval Academy plant and the training destroyers. A reception is scheduled at Admiral Brown's quarters following the tour.

Succeeding days will be devoted to inspection of classrooms, laboratories and the Academy physical education department. In addition, meals will be taken at the mess hall, and the board's report to the President will touch on all phases of Academy life.

Music Festival Attracts 4,000 To Richmond

Richmond, Va., April 20 (AP).—Virginia's annual high school competitive music festival brought approximately 4,000 boys and girls to Richmond today for the first of a series of more than 200 events that will continue through tomorrow.

Contests in voice, piano, stringed instruments, brass and wood ensembles were among the first on the program today. Bands, orchestras and choral groups will compete tomorrow morning, a parade will be staged in the afternoon, and tomorrow night the climax will be reached with presentation of outstanding events from the various contests at exercises in the Mosque.

Va. Student's Burial Today In Arlington

Charlottesville Rites Held for T. E. Stoops, Killed in Dormitory

Charlottesville, Va., April 20 (AP). Funeral services were conducted this afternoon for Thomas E. Stoops, 18-year-old university student, who died yesterday of bullet wounds.

The Rev. William H. Laird, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, officiated. Interment will take place tomorrow afternoon in the Arlington Cemetery.

Stoops, a first-year student from Philadelphia, was found in Smith Hall by his roommate yesterday morning with a small caliber rifle on the floor under him. Seriously wounded, with two bullets in his stomach and one in his head, he succumbed a few hours later.

He was the son of Capt. and Mrs. Robert E. Stoops of Philadelphia. His father is a Navy medical officer.

Besides his parents, he is survived by one brother, Robert, also of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Catherine Donald

Lonaconing, Md., April 20.—Mrs. Catherine Donald, 91, who recently returned from Turtle Creek, Pa., where she attended the golden wedding celebration of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas E. Green, died yesterday. Three sons also survive—John Donald, Keyser, W. Va., and George and William Donald.

Mrs. Minnie M. Koontz

Emmitsburg, Md., April 20.—Funeral services were conducted here yesterday by the Rev. E. L. Higbee, Reformed Church pastor, for Mrs. Minnie M. Koontz, 70. She is survived by three sons, Walter, Gettysburg, Pa.; Harry, Thurmont, Md.; Edgar, Emmitsburg.

Floyd E. Morgan

Hagerstown, April 19.—Floyd E. Morgan, formerly of Roanoke and a retired express company employe, died here yesterday. A wife and three children in Roanoke survive. His body will be taken to Roanoke for burial.

Orange County to Name Beauty Queen Tonight

Price Predicts Free Books in Va. Schools

'Ashamed' of Low Pay For Teachers, He Says At Fredericksburg

By the Associated Press.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 20.—Gov. Price predicted today that the State soon would assume the full cost of instruction in the State's public schools, provide free textbooks and establish a better retirement fund for its teachers.

Speaking at cornerstone laying ceremonies for George Washington Hall, new $320,000 administration building at Mary Washington College, the Governor said he was "ashamed" of the low salaries being paid Virginia public school teachers, but added he hopes the situation would be remedied in the near future.

The new building, largest on the campus, will be ready for occupancy about September 1. The Governor, former grand master of Masons in Virginia, conducted the Masonic exercises. In the course of his address Gov. Price congratulated Morgan L. Combs and the faculty for their contribution toward the growth of the school and prophesied the "school will prosper in the sunshine of success and in constructive service."

The Governor was introduced by former State Senator C. O'Conor Goolrick, who reviewed the work of all the State's institutions, and emphasized the accomplishments of the four teachers' colleges.

Elgin Favors Life-Long Md. Auto Plates

New State Motor Head Takes Office Declares Self 'Sold' On Permanent Tags

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, April 20.—W. Lee Elgin became Maryland's commissioner of motor vehicles today and promptly went on record in favor of permanent automobile license tags for the State.

In his first official pronouncement, Elgin, a former mayor of Hagerstown, said he was "personally sold" on permanent tags, on which only the expiration date would be changed each year. The system now is in use in Connecticut.

"I can see no reason why Maryland should not do the same," the commissioner asserted. "The Maryland tags are large compared with those used by Connecticut, which were eight inches wide. The drivers keep the same numbers year after year.

"They merely slide a small plate into place on the corner of their tag with the date of the year on it."

Maryland's 1940-41 tags have already been designed, he admitted, adding however that he would support a bill for permanent markers if such legislation was introduced at the 1941 General Assembly.

Elgin took office two weeks early because of the death of Commissioner Walter R. Rudy, whose term would have expired early in May. He indicated he would continue Rudy's safety campaign program, with particular emphasis on drunken and reckless driving.

Elgin was the first major appointee of Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor to take office under the new administration.

Congressional Wives Say Biscuit Shortcake Best

Senators' Wives Give Strawberry Preferences

Generally Agree On Method of Making Dessert

By Martha Ellyn,
The Post Food Editor.

SOME of the best arguments in the world can be introduced by the question, "How do you like your shortcake?" There are two distinct schools of thought on the subject—one for cake and one for biscuit dough. Not wishing to be biased in the matter, the Food Editor made a survey of opinion.

Wives of Senators from North, South, East and West were asked their ideas of honest-to-goodness shortcake. The wives of these Senators seem to be in more perfect accord concerning shortcake than their lawmaker husbands do about legislation. They think, as many food authorities do, that berry shortcakes should NEVER be made with sponge or any other kind of cake, but only the biscuit way.

Mrs. Pepper Knows Berries

Ponce de Leon, more than 400 years ago, on an Easter Sunday, seeking the "Fountain of Youth," came upon the State now known as Florida. In his wildest imagination he could not have thought it would become one of the greatest of winter playgrounds, and the land which would give large, luscious strawberries to the Northland, making a "June in January." Mrs. Claude R. Pepper, wife of Senator Pepper, of Florida, knows infinitely more about the strawberry than that it makes the "supreme dessert." She has been an active participant in the Annual Strawberry Festival at Plant City, Hillsboro County, Florida, "the strawberry capital" of the country. This festival is the biggest rural event held in Florida and attracts thousands of visitors.

Mrs. Pepper makes shortcake for strawberries by the biscuit way. Made in individual servings, she serves it with crushed strawberries between the shortcake layers, surmounted by strawberries and surrounded by strawberries, and topped with whipped cream. The following is her recipe:

Strawberry Shortcake

Sift 2 cups of flour and add 3 teaspoons of baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, and sift all together. Add 2 tablespoons butter, and 4 tablespoons other shortening and cut in fine. Add ½ to ¾ cup milk to make a soft dough. Knead lightly and roll dough 1-3 inch thick. Cut into rounds, place one-half the rounds on baking sheet, brush with butter and place the second round on top, brush with butter. Bake for 15 to 20 minutes at 375 degrees. Serve while warm with crushed strawberries slightly sweetened, and whipped cream.

The Green Mountain State, Vermont, is famous for its notable list of sons, delicious maple sirup and fine granite, but Mrs. Warren Robinson Austin, wife of the Senator, surely serves a delicious shortcake, too. Mrs. Austin says that she and Senator Austin like their shortcake made the plain biscuit dough way. When it is served family style it is baked in large round form. When taken from the oven it is split, buttered generously between the layers, crushed, sweetened strawberries placed between, the top layer placed on the bottom one, more strawberries on top, then served with rich, thick cream, the kind they have in Vermont.

Votes for Biscuit Dough

In a setting of 1,000 little lakes, Minnesota, the "Bread and Butter State," so-called because of its many flour mills and extensive dairy industry, makes its definite contribution to any shortcake story. From this country comes Mrs. Ernest Lundeen, wife of the Senator from Minnesota. In her words, "Strawberry shortcake is a grand dessert, but for me it must be made the old-fashioned biscuit way, served with loads of strawberries and plain rich cream." Mrs. Lundeen comes from a State of notable strawberry yield, too, for Hennepin County, in which is located Minneapolis, is noted for its fine strawberries.

"The Land of the Red Man," so called because the original Oklahoma Territory, in Choctaw language, meant just that, also has an ardent devotee to strawberry shortcake. Mrs. Josh Lee, wife of the Senator of Oklahoma, in agreement with the North and the South, thinks true shortcake must be made by the sweet, rich biscuit recipe. Mrs. Lee was very modest about the strawberry crop raised in Oklahoma, but she says that Arkansas, a neighboring State, has delicious berries, which are shipped to Oklahoma in profusion.

Bigger Bedrooms Are Style Trend This Season

By Elizabeth. MacRae Boykin.

We sense a trend toward bigger bedrooms in the American scene . . . after all the "master bedroom" indicated in all plans for the newer houses is quite a spacious room. And pleasantly this room is assuming a feeling of rural leisure in its furnishings. Braided rugs and flowered walls, the addition of desk, chaise longue and fireplace give a gracious ease to such a room—make the space serve as secondary sitting room, morning room or study.

Another French influence on current bedroom styles is the prevalence of upholstered beds. Not the formal types that probably come to mind when the subject comes up—the upholstered beds we mean are unpretentious and provincial in mood, and often they're covered in chintz cretonne, sateen or twill. Watch also for them in pastel leathers and leatherettes. Two bedrooms in Lily Pons' country cottage have upholstered beds—her own bed is covered with quilted blue chintz. Another room has twin beds upholstered in gray and yellow flowered chintz. Consider this idea when you are refurnishing because the new upholstered beds aren't out of sight in cost.

Today's Health Talk

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

An acute headache is a fairly reliable indication of a toxic state of the body. It may be the result of mechanical strain, as from the eyes, but in that case it is not exactly an acute headache, but an acute recurrent headache. Eye strain headaches come back over and over again, and usually it is easy to remember the strain—long reading or study, or sewing, or the movies—which caused the headache.

Acute headaches are those that occur to a person who is not used to headaches, who doesn't understand them. Usually they are, as I said, toxic, and are to be regarded as warnings to rest and take it easy for a few days. Nearly all infections—colds, tonsilitis, etc.—are ushered in with such a headache. That headache is a friend because it warns you something is going to happen and makes you want to lie down, which is the best treatment that could be applied.

Chronic Is Complex

Chronic headaches are a different breed and are far more complicated. Many different classifications are made for them, and the difficulty is increased because we do not know exactly what the cause of headache is. The most likely explanation is that there is a stretching of the tough connective tissue covering of the brain, the meninges. The brain itself can feel no pain. We know that increased pressure within the skull, thus stretching the meninges, will cause headache.

Such organic causes as brain tumor are very rare. Severe, almost intolerable headache, continuous day and night, coming on suddenly but gradually increasing in severity in a person previously perfectly healthy, should suggest this cause. The treatment of brain tumor today is so generally successful that early diagnosis is imperative.

Girl Scouts Planning Menu For Luncheon to First Lady

Will Serve Simple Springtime Dishes; Members of Troop 107 Will Prepare Food for Meal on Wednesday

APRIL 26 will be a red-letter day for Girl Scout Troop No. 107, from McKinley High School. The troop will serve luncheon to Mrs. Roosevelt when she visits the National Girl Scouts' Little House, 1750 New York avenue, to open "national better homes week" for 1939.

The scouts will appear festive, wearing their senior dresses, white aprons and white headbands. They will feature their favorite recipes in entertaining the First Lady, and the ones they have been most successful in preparing and serving at their own parties.

The springtime menu which the Girl Scouts will serve is one that the older hostess would be proud to serve. The menu and recipes for two of the items on the menu are as follows:

MENU

Tomato juice	Olive canape
Bouillon	Melba toast
Cheese fondue
French beans	Pickled peaches
Hot rolls	Butter
Coffee

CHEESE FONDUE

Mix 1 cup scalded milk, 1 cup soft stale bread crumbs, ¼ pound sharp cheese, cut in small pieces, 1 tablespoon butter and ½ teaspoon salt, and add the beaten yolks of 3 eggs which have been beaten until lemon colored Cut and fold in the whites of 3 eggs beaten very stiff. Pour in a buttered baking dish and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

ONE-EGG CUP CAKES

Cream ¾ cup of butter, add ½ cup sugar gradually and 1 egg well beaten. Mix 1½ cups flour with 2½ teaspoons baking powder and sift. Add alternately with the milk to first mixture. Bake 15 minutes in small muffin tins. Spread with butter frosting. Decorate some with nuts and others with candied fruits. To make the frosting, beating 1-3 cup butter until creamy, add 1 egg yolk and beat in sugar gradually and add the flavoring desired.

Flavorable Dish Is Potpourri of Mixed Vegetables

A VEGETABLE potpourri of flavor, like a symphony of color, is more interesting than a single ingredient. Seasonal vegetables, such as string beans and young carrots, accompanied by sliced ripe olives and sweet green peppers and onion, is a successful union.

Arrange 1½ cups cooked or canned string beans and 1½ cups cooked carrot rounds in a buttered casserole. Fry ½ cup diced bacon slightly. Add ¼ cup chopped onion, ½ cup chopped green sweet pepper, ¾ cup sliced ripe olives, salt to taste, and fry until vegetables are wilted. Pour mixture over beans and carrots. Dot with 3 tablespoons butter and sprinkle wtih paprika. Cover with 2 cups white sauce and sprinkle with ½ cup grated American cheese.

Streamlined, Dated Bread Is Innovation

D. C. Marts Feature Modern Fashions In Many Foods

FASHION CYCLES take us back to yesterday, but many of our foods go a head in modern fashion. When you walk into your favorite grocery or market you see pennants and banners flying, all carrying the slogan, "Quality, Service, Economy."

Even bread has gone modern, and is now featured in streamline form, sliced and wearing a dated band. Shoulder of veal, boned, rolled and wrapped in cellophane, is all ready for roasting. The cellophane need not be removed when roasting, for if left around the meat there will be less evaporation.

Many New Vegetables

The vegetable section looks like a big salad bowl, for there is every fresh vegetable needed to make your favorite salad. The Carolinas send the long, tender asparagus, both jumbo and colossal varieties. In buying be sure to select bunches heavy in hand and with slender stalks. Good cauliflower is cheap; cucumbers are being hurried to our markets from Florida; lettuce is no strain on the budget; big, new Spanish onions from Chile, so likable for slicing, and Bermuda onions from Texas; Carolina string beans, the nice, flat, green ones, are with us again; Carolina peas, Florida new potatoes, radishes and tomatoes, all in profusion at very low prices.

Shad from Chesapeake Bay is abundant now, and is delicious when lightly sauted in sweet butter and served with lemon and decked with parsley. Long Island duckling roasted in orange juice is a splendid choice for the Sunday dinner. Or if you are one who thinks the Sunday dinner is not complete without fried chicken, you will find the fryers are reasonably priced. Smoked beef tongue is being featured and is a perfect companion to the spring salad for Sunday suppers.

With the advantage of buying all your groceries in such a concentrated manner you should be glad that you are not living in grandmother's open-bin-and-barrel era, when the coffee bean was sold green; there were no ready-to-eat breakfast foods; you took a pail to tote home the milk, and carried a basket to bring home the eggs. Those were the "dear dead days," but the modern ones are more convenient.

Recipes Make Greens Glamorous

The Post Food Editor.

"HERE'S that green stuff again and the heck with it!" That has long been the battle cry at many a dinner table. Telling Tim to eat spinach to develop muscles, promote mental energy and galvanize will does not prove the point if the "green stuff" is not prepared in a tempting way. Not only children, but many grown-ups, feel that greens are a necessary evil. These much maligned vegetables approach being supreme foods if cooked according to the recipes submitted in this week's Post recipe contest. If you are allergic-minded as to greens, you won't be after you have prepared them in the tempting ways suggested by the following recipes.

Kale, collard greens, mustard greens, chicory, escarole, dandelions and cabbage all join in the spring song of greens. And all of these leafy vegetables are as cheering to the appetite as they are beneficial to the body.

Scotch Zest

Kale, the curly leafed cabbage so favored in Scotland, takes on new aura when prepared by the recipe submitted by Miss Charlotte F. Hiehle, 3201 Tunlaw road northwest, Washington, D. C. This leafy green, served with the peppy mustard sauce, readily merits the first prize of this week's Post recipe contest.

Miss Hiehle

Panned Kale With Hot Mustard Sauce

Clean kale thoroughly, cut off roots and heavy outside leaves, cut leaves in two or three pieces. Put 3 tablespoons bacon drippings in a skillet, add kale and 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Cover lightly. Simmer over low heat for 20 minutes. Remove cover, add the hot mustard sauce and cook for 5 minutes. Serve hot. To make the sauce, mix ½ teaspoon prepared mustard, ½ teaspoon flour, ¼ teaspoon salt in the top of double boiler, add 2 beaten egg yolks. Stir until well blended. Slowly stir in ¾ cup scalded milk. Stir until thick and smooth. Add 2 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar. Mix well and pour over panned kale.

Dixie Dandy

Down in the deep South where food has a reputation for being good, they serve a dish that's as fine as anything you ever put to your lips, and that's greens with hog jowl. Mrs. E. Schmidt, 241 Farragut street northwest, Washington, D. C., winner of the second prize of $2 says, "down home this was our favorite spring tonic and was served with corn bread and sassafras tea, another spring tonic. If there is any water or 'pot likker' as we called it be sure to drink that."

Mrs. Schmidt

Greens With Hog Jowl

Let 1 pound turnip greens, 1 pound straight kale, 1 pound mustard greens stand in warm salted water to loosen all insects, then wash thoroughly. Put in heavy saucepan with very little water, one-half salted lean hog jowl (not smoked.) Cook slowly for 1 to 1½ hours or until meat is tender.

Kitchen Magician

Mrs. E. Nusbaum, Berwyn, Md., the winner of a $1 prize has done an unusual trick by casting cabbage in a new role. This dish is such an unusual touch in the vegetable picture that the family will want to stop admiring it and start eating it.

Stuffed Cabbage

Trim the loose outer leaves from a firm head of cabbage. Cut out enough from the stem end to make a deep well. Prepare a filling by combining 2 cups cooked ham, ground or chopped, 1 cup bread crumbs, ¾ cup American cheese, ½ teaspoon mustard, salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, and a few grains cayenne. Fill center of cabbage with the filling. Steam until tender (about 2 hours). A frying basket or colander may be used, placed over boiling water. Cover with a lid. Serve the cabbage on a hot platter, place several narrow strips of pimento across it. Pass hot mayonnaise sauce made by combining ½ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup cream sauce, 1 tablespoon each of lemon juice, minced onion, chopped green pepper and chopped pickles, with a few grains of cayenne. Heat thoroughly.

Medley of Greens

Greens in Rice Ring Chehardy

Serve hot over hot sliced spinach each of mustard greens, spinach and beet tops in salted boiling water without a cover. Drain and chop coarsely. Season with salt, pepper, and ¾ cup of chopped cooked bacon. Line a buttered casserole with 2 cups of cooked rice and fill center with seasoned greens. Put sausages over top, bake in moderate oven 20 minutes or until sausages are done.

Luncheon Special

Spinach is initiated into a ritual of modern cookery in the winning recipe sent in by Mrs. Mary Graham Ireland, 719 Third street northeast, Washington, D. C. This nutritious loaf can be used as a delicious luncheon dish and will be found to be far from common spinach in taste and appeal. This loaf is a splendid way to be thrifty and use stale bread, bacon drippings and some left-over cheese.

Mrs. Ireland

Spinach Loaf

Combine 2 cups cooked spinach, 2 well-beaten eggs, ¾ cup fine diced cheese, 2 tablespoons bacon drippings, 1 cup toasted bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon vinegar. Bake in a greased loaf pan in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes. Fry 4 slices diced bacon with onion until slightly browned. Add 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup strained tomatoes and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, salt and pepper and cook 5 minutes. Serve hot over hot sliced spinach loaf.

Dish of Vegetables, Rice and Sausage Has Regal Flavor

Lamb Kidneys Cheap but Make Delicious Dish

A MEAT that doesn't absorb the lion's share of the budget is lamb kidneys. They are cheap, delicious, unusual and capable of being served in many ways. Served in a rice ring they make a substantial main dish, and an attractive one, too.

Lamb Kidneys in Rice Ring

In a small amount of fat lightly brown about 30 lamb kidneys which have been skinned, split in half and had the hard parts removed (this may be done by the butcher). Add ½ cup boiling water. Sprinkle 3½ tablespoons flour over the surface, season with salt and pepper, cover, and let simmer for about ¾ hour. Fry ½ pound bacon. Fill center of rice ring with kidneys and garnish with crisp bacon. Gravy may be passed on the side if ring mold is used, or rice and kidneys, with gravy, may be served on separate dishes. Serves 8.

To make the rice ring, cook 2 cups of rice in boiling water until a grain is entirely soft when pressed between thumb and forefinger. Drain well. Add 1-3 cup melted butter, mixing lightly with fork so as not to mash the grains. Place in a well-greased mold, packing down tightly. Turn out on platter.

Double Duty Waffles

A two-in-one for the breakfast table is bacon and waffles. Use your favorite recipe. Reduce the fat by one-half. Pour batter on waffle iron and lay one or two thin strips of bacon over the batter. Close the iron. The crisply cooked bacon will be pressed into the waffle and the flavors will be well blended and delicious.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wife and Babies Are Sick, Hungry and Neglected, As Man Indulges Spendthrift Tastes; What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 31 and have been married eight years. Until the children came, I always worked and kept my husband's bills paid. I never had anything for myself. In fact, I even went without food and became sick. . . . He has had a steady job for nearly four years and makes enough to support us. This is my problem: my husband gambles the money away, has nice clothes for himself and eats out a lot, inviting friends to lunch with him, while the children and I sit at home with half enough to eat. I never have money for clothes for myself and the children.

Even this wouldn't be so bad if we had a peaceful home. My husband comes home nagging me about getting a job. He says other women work and I'm no better than they. I wouldn't mind so much if he played fair with me, but he never has. The eldest child is only 3 and I do want to be with them. I don't nag about money. I wouldn't be able to get someone to take care of the children if I had a job, because my husband's disposition is so bad no one would stay around him. I work so hard at home that I tremble from exhaustion. I need medical attention but he won't let me see a doctor. The children were sick recently and he wouldn't come home to get us food or medicine. He says he doesn't even have to live with us, much less support us. Yet he has always threatened me if I mentioned leaving.

I have no realtives here: in fact, none at all that could help me financially. The State I come from has no divorce law. I'm not allowed to have friends or to speak to people. My husband says it's a woman's place to pay half the expenses and if she doesn't, she deserves no privileges. What can a woman do who can't live a normal life and has no money for legal advice? If I should see a chance to do something about this matter, I would need legal protection, as there isn't anything my husband wouldn't do to get revenge. That's why I have kept quiet for so long. I don't think there is another woman in the picture, although I know he has had several affairs. He is purely selfish. No one could say anything against my character or that I haven't been a good wife and mother. Thank you for any advice. M.

Invoking Justice

DEAR M.: The picture you conjure up—of small children going half-hungry, habitually; completely neglected in illness, insufficiently clothed and threatened with separation from their mother (the only person in the world, apparently, who is genuinely devoted to them), all because of their father's inordinate vanity, greed and irresponsibility—causes one to look more sympathetically upon the whipping post as an instrument of discipline and punishment.

I am glad you have found courage, at long last, to ask some help in solving your problem and to seek some means of holding your husband to a strict and proper accounting. You need no longer be without legal advice and legal protection. So long as your husband has means to provide, your children need no longer be without adequate food, clothing, medicine and other necessary care. The Legal Aid Bureau of the District of Columbia, as well as the Juvenile Court of the District, are institutions established for the purpose of serving persons in your predicament; for seeing that the defenseless are defended, the penniless served without fee, and the rights of little children safeguarded.

Without one cent in your pocket, with only your pitiful story to sustain you, you may go to the Legal Aid Bureau, aforementioned, at 1409 L street northwest (telephone NAtional 8674), any week day, from Monday through Friday, between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and enlist the co-operation of its legal staff in bringing some order to bear in your family life. Your case will be investigated in detail, and if it appears that you have grounds for divorce, and would wish a divorce, you will be given what assistance is necessary for obtaining it. Or if legal separation and separate maintenance for yourself and the children is your preference, that, too, may be arranged—if such grounds as callous infidelity and habitual failure to provide exist and can be proven.

Since the most vicious aspect of this problem has to do with the children's plight, and their father's stony-hearted indifference to it, the case will need, in all probability, to be brought to the attention of the Juvenile Court. If so, it would be a matter for State prosecution of the defendant, and you would need no lawyer, although, if your case already had been routed through the Legal Aid Bureau, one of its staff attorneys probably would accompany you, in the capacity of "friend," to the Juvenile Court hearings.

Once you have intrusted your case to a competent attorney, who can and will show you what remedies exist, and who will be at your service in the matter of calling your grievances to the attention of the proper court authorities, I think you will have very little to fear from your husband—in the way of threatened "revenge.' I think his past gestures of the kind have been self-protective bulldozing, pure and simple. He has hoped to keep you so cowed that you would never dare to make the move which would bring him under legal control.

When he learns that his bluff has failed, I think you will find him a beaten and a badly frightened man, probably ready to make every sort of promise to do better, if only you will "call off the law." But I hope you will remember, when that day arrives, that his voluntary performance is not to be trusted, and that you will proceed with plans to put him out of your life, while holding him responsible for the children's support, with you as their custodian. Incidentally, no attorney ever recommends or advocates divorce or legal separation; so be prepared to make up your own mind in such vital matters. An attorney will give you legal advice and assistance in executing your plans, once you have made them—but he will not assume the role of plan-maker for you.

Camera Art Mastered Easily

EVERY SHOT a good one! That's the ambition of every camera fan. And with a few tips on what to take, how to take it, you can get fine pictures with any camera.

No danger of having your best girl turn out "all feet" in your snapshot—if you know the trick of keeping your "sitter" in one plane. Don't let her place feet or hands much closer to the camera than the rest of her body. Have her put feet back or under. Hands may be at the sides, up or in back.

For snapshots with outdoor backgrounds, remember to look beyond the person you're taking. Your camera does! With a slight change in your position you may eliminate that ugly sign, that post "growing" out of someone's head.

People in action can be snapped with a moderately fast shutter-speed. At a parade pick a spot where the marchers come toward you at an angle. Focus at one point and snap as they pass that point.

Childhood Days for Grown-Ups

Baby Curls Are Necessary For 'Little Girl' Dresses

'La Enfantine,' Coiffure Suggested by Emile Local Stylist to Head Beauty Board Predicts Long Popularity of New Haircut

By Marshall Adams.
The Post Fashion Editor.

THE BABYISH curls of cradle days have been revived for the grown-up sophisticate. And they are here to stay for quite a while, according to Emile Beauvais, Washington hairdresser, former president of the National Hairdressers' Association of America, who this week accepted the chairmanship of the advisory board of the American Institute of Beauty Culture. Added to this, Emile has recently perfected an appealing baby coiffure which lives up to his description of La Coiffure Enfantine. Emile has faith in the future of this dewey baby-like hairdress so vital this season for topping off the much discussed little girl fashions.

Emile reports that the Coiffure Guild of New York, of which he is organizer and charter member originated the current movement toward short, softly curled coiffures to replace the ill-fated pompadors of last season. The guild feels that the spontaneous popularity of the baby haircut is a normal reaction against "upped hair," which was unbecoming to most features and impractical with most wardrobes.

Summer Prophecy

Emile predicts "L'enfantine" will carry through the spring and summer, increasing in popularity during the sweltering months. As opposed to the long bob or "up hair," said Emile, "the short, baby coiffure is more youthful, more sanitary and easier to care for. All that is required is a good basic wave. This necessitates that the hair be thinned, cut short all around, and curled into babyish tendrils. From then on a comb and brush will do the trick, turning early morning toilettes into a matter of seconds." Emile believes "almost any girl or woman can affect this style with success—save the very tall, angular woman. She may wear her hair short and crisp this year, but must incline toward sculptured waves of distinction, rather than piquancy. 'The baby haircut,'" said Emile, "like those little girl dresses and bonnets must be worn with an American sense of humor. Average features can carry off the small girl haircut, especially those of the pixy or hoydenish types. This style is simple enough in contour for older women who still have that esprit de corps."

Indorsed by Painter

Another French artist who sponsors the sweet and fragile look for modish Americans is Marie Laurencin, the celebrated Parisian painter. So symbolically elusive, delicate and naive have her pale water colors become that a famous consmetician and art collector has built her summer beauty preparations around Laurencins' pastel tints. These Aquarelle colors include flower petal rougues, rose-tinted lipsticks, shimmering sky-blue eye shadows and water lily face powders. Laurencin's fragile pastels are now ready to be applied to your own clean, scrubbed countenances—and—you don't have to be an artistic genius to achieve the guileless look of childhood days. Your pallet is ready. The age of innocence is on.

Your Figure, Madame!

Exercise and Diet Will Improve Bust Creams and Ointments Are of Little Value

THE WAISTLINE can be whittled down almost like magic and the hips can be slimmed down inch by inch, but when it comes to improving the bust contour—that's a different story.

Because it is the most difficult measurement to change, the bitterest complaints are from women in all weight groups who want to see an improvement in the bust contour. They want to know whether astringents and ointments will help, and whether exercise doesn't act more quickly.

The tissues cannot absorb nourishment through the skin and creams and ointments are of practically no value. The astringents have a temporary tightening effect on the skin, but the same result is obtained by dashing cold water over this area. Moreover, the cold water has the added advantage of stimulating the circulation.

Exercise Helps Muscles

Exercise is not particularly reducing. Overdevelopment of the bust is most likely to be caused by the excess accumulation of fatty tissue and the size is reduced by bringing the total weight down to normal. Exercise is helpful because of its toning effect on the muscles for, although the breasts are glands, they are supported by the pectoral muscles and the reducer benefits greatly from exercise of this type.

Exercise on a stretching bar seems to be the most effective means of lifting a sagging bust contour. In exercising on any type bar, be sure to hold the hands with palms turned forward to most efficiently use the pectorals.

While it is not always possible for the thin girl to develop the bust itself, an amazing improvement can be made in the figure by filling out the chest and correcting rounded shoulders. Get enough exercise of the kind that helps to fill out the chest and the base of the throat and strengthens the shoulder girdle.

Take up swimming, especially the breast and back strokes, and try your hand at archery. If you cannot manage these outdoor sports, the two swim strokes may be incorporated in your corrective exercise program. Precede the exercises by dashing first hot and then cold water over the bust and chest to stimulate the circulation and follow the exercises by dashing cold water over this area.

Main Factors Same

Increase your vitality through a program which allows for plenty of fresh air, regular sleeping hours, and a diet which includes whole milk and the vitamin concentrates A and D.

If you will follow this routine for a few months you will be delighted with the improvement in your figure.

Whether you want to develop or reduce the bust contour, or to raise it to better position, normal weight and exercise are the main factors, for they influence the other factors: skin tone, vitality and posture.

Counting the Scalps

"Did I hear you say you had a Flitterjig in your line?"

"I've got two! One from Virginia through the Rufus Flitterjig strain, and then one from Massachusetts——"

"Say, I go back to the Massachusetts Flitterjigs! Now they were founded by Caleb Flitterjig."

"Yes, I know. There were two brothers came over. Now, through my mother's grandmother—she was a Connecticut Doe—I can trace back to Caleb Flitterjig."

"My great-grandfather was Ebenezer Flitterjig. He was an old sea captain. Nearly all the Massachusetts Flitterjigs were old sea captains."

"The Virginia Flitterjigs—of course they're my more direct line—were all large slaveholders."

"However, I can really trace my line back further through the Mutton branch of our family than I can the Flitterjigs."

"That's the way with me. I go back further through the Piffles. There was Sir Percival Piffle, the baronet, who was the first to come over. Now his son Thomas married Mary Nitt, of the Horatius Nitts, and then their son, John Francis——"

"The Muttons go back to Lord Mortimer Mutton——"

"Let's see now, there was Sir Percival, the baronet, then Thomas, then John Francis, then his son Robert, and then David—"

"You see Lord Mutton got a big grant of land in Delaware from the king——"

"And David married Susan Gooper, only daughter of——"

"Now Lord Mutton's great-great-grandfather——"

"Let's see—Sir Percival, then Thomas, then John Francis, then Robert, then David and then Oscar——"

"You know the Muttons are really a much older family in England than the Flitterjigs."

"Well, the Piffles came over with William the Conqueror. Now then there was Sir Percival, then Thomas, then John Francis——"

"Oh, the Muttons came DOWN from William the Conqueror—of course not from him personally, he was an illegitimate son, you know, of the Duke of Normandy. But when he went over to England he took all of his brothers and sisters with him—the legitimate ones, you see, and my family comes down from them."

"Well, Sir Percival Piffle was a direct descendant of the Earl of Wimplegate, who was at Runnymede. Let's see, now, there was Sir Percival, then his father was Lord Larchmont, and then came the Marquis of Batshaven——"

"Well now, on the Continent the Muttons go back to Wulf-Wulf, the Viking."

"Then the Marquis of Batshaven married Lady Cynthia Cragham. Now she didn't have any children, and that worried me a long time, being as we come down from him, but it seems now that he had a second wife. Let's see, there was Sir Percival, then Lord Larchmont, then the Marquis of Batshaven——"

"This Wulf-Wulf the Viking that I come down from married a granddaughter of Charlemagne——"

"Say, do you go back to Charlemagne, too?"

"Yes, indeed! On seven lines!"

"So many people do! You know it just seems amazing how many descendants Charlemagne had."

"Well, I've got it all in a book at home."

"So have I. I can show it to you. Then of course they believed in large families in those days."

"Well, to tell you the truth, I don't take it all very seriously. With me it's just sort of—well, a fascinating study."

"Oh, as far as that's concerned, I'm very detached about it. It's just that it's—well, interesting historically. Let's see now, there was Sir Percival, the baronet . . . then Thomas . . . then John Francis . . . then Robert . . . then David . . . then Oscar, my great-great-grandfather . . ."

Using Eyeshadow Requires Art

If your eyes have dark circles or shadows, don't use eyeshadow, for it accentuates the circles. But minimize under-eye circles by using a light eyeshadow, such as sky blue aquarelle, and then a tiny touch of herbal eye tissue oil, vaseline or olive oil on the eyelids to make them gleam youthfully.

If you have difficulty in applying the cream eyeshadows, try one of the new lipstick forms that come in natural as well as gray, light blue, light green and brown. This little eyestick gives a youthful, moist look to the eyelids. And if the brows or eyelashes are brittle or come out easily, use one of the good eyelash creams.

Mrs. Lauer, Behind Bars, Provokes Essay on Smuggling Ruckus

New York, April 20.

OCCASIONALLY, even in this moral cultural center of the world, a lady has to go to jail. Now, no one likes to be tossed into the sneezer, be it ever so gorgeous, but occasionally a girl makes a mistake that brings her under the guns of the law. And at present a comely matron in her fifties, Mrs. Emma Lauer, who is the wife of a local supreme court justice, is trying to adjust herself to the ways of the pokey—in our case, the modern and handsome Women's House of Detention, down in Greenwich Village.

ALICE HUGHES

Mrs. Lauer's trouble was the smuggling ruckus which procured Jack Benny and George Burns stiffish fines and some home truths from the bench. Another fellow, the villain of the piece, got quite a long term.

In the case of Mrs. Lauer, whose home address is on Park Avenue, there was the matter of a previous offense, so the presiding judge seemed to have no choice but to put her away for a short term of three months. This she will spend at the House of Detention which you will observe is not called a "jail" at all, just as there is no such thing any more as an i'nsane asylum." It's a "mental hospital," now.

The lady's temporary residence is new and very wisely administered. There aren't any bars in the windows—just small panes of glass in firm steel moldings. But you can't get out—which makes it a jail-house, however sweet any other name may be. She is one of 500 guests—most of them are pretty bad girls or else just terribly unfortunate. She will eat only prison victuals, except for what candy and cigarettes can be bought for $3 a month. Only two visitors a month are permitted. Bars or no bars, and whatever the name, a calaboose is a calaboose, as Mrs. Lauer will find out. And we should all be very careful not to bring things into America without telling the man in blue on the pier. Thus endeth this essay on a high moral note.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN — The little Frazier girl gets lots of mention everywhere, but the prize-winner of all local beauty-babies seems to be young Cobina Wright, the tall, well-made blonde girl who is singing again at the Waldorf. Elected belle of Palm Beach a month ago, the foremost American illustrators now have chosen her as their queen of youthful beauty, and quite right, too.

Here's the difference between the two. The Frazier child has lots of potatoes, or dough, but young Cobby is not so blessed, and unless she marries soon will have to cut herself a lucrative career. Brenda may just be cute and pretty, but young Wright has to bring in a packet of the needful come Saturday night. That's why I'm all for her. She's lovely as can be—and I hope she clicks on stage or screen or both. The Frazier has no problems—Cobby has. May they be well solved, and I say this, of course, as a girl who had to get out in the world and begin punching as soon as those Bright College Years were over . . .

NOT TOO LONG ago the newspapers flaunted the name and face of Flo Leeds, the beauty who was Banker Stillman's best girl, much older, with prematurely white hair, Flo is just about flat broke, having run through a pot of money. She has a husband, who is missing, and she has a small son by him that needs care. She lives in one furnished room, and needs a job and a break. No sense in pointing morals in this story—they're obvious.. Poor Flo . . .

Newest campus gadget I've seen for the spring is the sports anklets I saw at a local store the other day. These cute tricks come in all school colors, and they have a lastex top to keep them from sagging over the brogans. Very nifty indeed—and even older girls are buying them to match their sports ensembles.

On the Record

America Is Unified Despite Her Vastness and Varying Cultures

By Dorothy Thompson.

Phoenix, Ariz., April 20.—I write this column in the middle of the Arizona desert, cut off from the news of the world except as it comes through at occasional intervals in the brief news service dispatches of the Arizona Republic, and from the reporters and commentators of the radio. They serve an enormous purpose. Out here there is no name in journalism of the importance of Kaltenborn, who is not a name, but a voice familiar to everyone.

I have come to visit a little boy who has been here for the last four months at one of the many Western schools that have come into being in the last few years.

He is a very different little boy from the one who said a rather fearful good-bye to me in the Grand Central Terminal such a short time ago. He seems much taller, perhaps because he is leaner. He was a much too pampered little boy, more babyish that his 8 years justified, and one who expected and took for granted being waited on and cared for and followed by a nurse, already habituated to a kind of world whose survival seems today questionable, at least.

Illness Brings Luck

Looking at him now, I wonder whether it was not for him an exceptional piece of luck that he should have been so ill with pneumonia last summer. For because of the pneumonia he has discovered a new world—a world for him of more vivid reality, where children are not for so long kept artificially incompetent.

He lives in the plainest cabin—a cot, a chest of drawers, a writing table, a chair—and he must make his own bed and keep the cabin in order. His manual training does not consist in constructing little boats to sail on non-existent waters. It is functional; he helps to skin a rattlesnake and stuff a gila monster; he tells me with proficiency how to encounter a rattlesnake and deal with it, and I try not to shudder and to realize that he lives in a world where rattlesnakes are common enough and can be dealt with.

I watch him handle firearms. He treats them with respect and—to his mother's eyes—with amazing skill. They are not playthings; they are useful and may be dangerous. Hence the respect and the serious attention to instructions in manipulating them. A boy who was afraid to cross a street in New York alone takes a train ride overnight by himself. He saddles his horse and rides it, developing a co-ordination of muscle and movement by doing something that he very much wants to do.

He has no formal courses in botany, but he takes me about the school—it is more camp than school—telling me the names and habits of each kind of cactus. The life seems rough to me, curiously, the little boy's manners are greatly improved. He is more courteous and more considerate. He is not homesick.

The strange grandeur of the wide, weird landscape enchants him. At sunset the desert is a gray violet; the distant mountains are purple and red; the giant cacti retreating in rows toward the horizon are silhouetted black against the glow and seem no part of nature but the ruins of some prehistoric and monumental building art. The boy stops playing to gaze, and there is wonder in his eyes

Restlessnes Gone

He was a restless child. I cannot remember when he did not toss in his sleep. Now on his cot he sleeps with the profound quiet of the desert.

For one who has lived so much on a continent where there is a frontier every few hours, the miracle of this country's vastness is perennial. One cannot cross it without wonder. What possible relation is there between this landscape and this way of life and the way of life of New England, which is this little boy's other home?

By what miracle is this continent, so manifold and so diverse, nevertheless all one thing?

And how deeply necessary is unity, a basic unity of aim and idea, if it is to remain always one Nation and one people!

How remarkable, I think, that this vastness should be held together not by common blood, common race, or a landscape and climate conducive to a common way of life but only by a common language, a common idea, and common heroes!

Because it is so vast it produces its own disciplines. From coast to coast I find the same reactions against all ideologies tending toward division rather than unity, and, as part of this, a deep streak of conservatism. I am not surprised that the Supreme Court bill was defeated. There would be also the same spontaneous rebellion against a third term.

One must not shake things up too much. There are sacred shibboleths. More here, perhaps, than in most nations.

Fears Class Division

The very concept of the class struggle awakens apprehension even among those to whom it might logically appeal. To play with it is profoundly dangerous. The idea of personal liberty is too deep to lead this country toward some form of national socialism except in a panic for unity against class division. But given a serious rift through society, something like national socialism would, I think, surely take form.

Folk Festival To See Prints Of Coal Miner

Nicholas Bervinchak Of Primrose Patch, Pa., Is the Artist

The most famous son of Primrose Patch, Pa., is Nicholas Bervinchak, a miner who has achieved national recognition for his paintings and etchings in the anthracite collieries.

BERVINCHAK

Bervinchak rose a step higher in the art world yesterday with the announcement that two of his etchings had been purchased by the Joseph Pennell Fund of the Library of Congress. The works will take their place in the library's permanent collection of American etchings.

Others of the 36-year-old artist's prints will be seen in Washington next week during the sixth annual National Folk Festival, April 27-29, in Constitution Hall. Bervinchak's representation in the exhibit is sponsored by George Korson, of Bucknell University, founder and director of the Pennsylvania Folk Festival and author of the highly praised "Minstrels of the Mine Patch," to which Bervinchak contributed the frontispiece.

Korson also has arranged for ballad singers and fiddlers from the Pottsville area to participate in the National Folk Festival itself. Anthracite, the only modern industry with a lore of its own, has been represented at the annual festival each year since 1934.

The miners will present the jigs and ballads with which they entertain themselves in the collieries. Most of the songs were composed by miner-minstrels, who used to wander from one mine patch or village to another, singing in exchange for food and lodging. In this way the ballads spread until they were familiar all over the anthracite section.

Tickets for the National Folk Festival at Constitution Hall April 27-29 are available at The Washington Post, 1337 E street northwest. Prices for the three matinees range from 50 cents to $1; for the evening shows, from 50 cents to $2. A different program will be presented at each performance.

Two Parties Will Honor M. and Mme. Maurois

The French Ambassador to Give a Dinner, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman a Tea, For Biographer-Novelist and His Wife

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

ONE OF FRANCE'S "IMMORTALS," Andre Maurois, who was elected to the French Academy last year, will arrive with Mme. Maurois today for a brief visit. The famous biographer, essayist and novelist, who has a number of friends in Washington, and his wife will enliven the social scene considerably this week-end, as two important parties have been planned in their honor and a number of others will also be given if the visitors' calendar permits.

HOPE R. MILLER

The French Ambassador, Count Rene de Saint Quentin, will give a dinner tomorrow evening in honor of M. and Mme. Maurois, and Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman will fete them at a tea on Sunday afternoon. The latter party will be a small affair. According to present plans, the visitors, who will stay at the Shoreham, will leave Sunday night.

M. Maurois has visited in Washington before, but never long enough. A busy man, in great demand as a lecturer and always with a book brewing in his mind, his sojourns in this country have been few and far between. On each visit he has promised to come back soon and remain "for months," and there are numbers of Washington residents still hoping that some day he will keep his word.

First time I ever saw him he talked before the Women's National Press Club and was, as would be expected, a delightful speaker . . . weighing and balancing each word before he uttered it . . . unassuming as all great men are . . . serious but not ponderous, and totally lacking in that quality Washingtonians terms as "front."

Real Name Is Emile Herzog

In contrast to most writers, he talked that day about his books only when asked about them. Most of his comments centered on the place of women in politics and he said they were more realists than men in the same position, more practical and more certain of their goal. Such a line of talk, of course, pleased the feminine audience no end, and the press women ever since have been hoping Andre Maurois would return to tell them more. Unfortunately, there won't be time for that on this trip.

Mme. Maurois, the author's second wife, is the former Simone de Caillavet. Incidentally, if you're fortunate enough to meet the famous author, remember Maurois is pronounced MORE-wah. His real name is Emile Herzog, but I'm told he is rarely called that now.

Mlle. Eve Curie Expected Soon

Mention of this famous frenchman reminds me that another French notable, Mlle. Eve Curie, who came to the Capital a few days ago to see the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and then slipped out of town before many people knew she was here, definitely is planning to return to the Capital for a visit before she sails May 13. The date of her arrival is not yet set, however, and the dinner the French Ambassador was to have given in her honor on April 27 has been postponed.

On Tuesday of this week both the French Ambassador and the Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, attended the dinner in New York given by the New York City Cancer Committee for Mlle. Curie. The latter, who has been the recipient of many honors since she arrived in this country, was awarded the Clement Cleveland Medal for her book, "The Life of Mme. Curie." Mlle. Curie, whose famous mother was Polish, probably will be feted by Count Potocki, as well as the French Ambassador, when she comes to town.

SOCIETY GO-ROUND: Add another to the list of parties for notables early next month—Mrs. Preston McGoodwin, wife of the former Minister to Venezuela, has cards out for a reception in honor of Senora de Somoza, wife of the President of Nicaragua, on Monday, May 8, at the Hay-Adams House . . . That's the same day Crown Prince Frederick and Crown Princess Ingrid of Denmark will be feted at a luncheon given by Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull at the Carlton . . . The French Ambassador will be host at a luncheon on Monday in honor of his mother, Countess de Saint Quentin. It will be a "family affair," limited for the most part to members of the Embassy staff . . . Mrs. John H. Dwight will close her apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue early next month and will join her daughter, Mrs. John Preston in Mount Kisco, N. Y. . . . Mr. and Mrs. James Madison Blackwell, of New York, who have been the guests of Mrs. Frank Mason Dillard in Alexandria, are now at the North Wales Club, Warrenton, where they will spend several days.

President Taft's Widow Sails on Long Sea Cruise

Undaunted by war clouds over the Mediterranean, Mrs. William Howard Taft, widow of the former President, sailed yesterday on the Kungsholm from New York for a cruise to Northern Africa.

An enthusiastic traveler, Mrs. Taft will not return to Washington until September. Then she will be off again, having decided to spend next winter in Canada.

Since her widowhood, Mrs. Taft has lived quietly in Washington, where she has a home on Wyoming avenue. Bridge and traveling are her chief diversions. She is the mother of Senator Robert Taft, of Ohio.

Iran Celebration Set

The Charge d'Affaires of Iran and Mme. Davallou have issued invitations to a reception on Tuesday, April 25, at 10 o'clock. The event, which will take place at the Legation at 2315 Massachusetts avenue, will celebrate the anniversary of the coronation of His Imperial Majesty Reza Shah Pahlavi and the wedding of His Imperial Highness Schahpur, Mohammend Reza, Crown Prince of Iran.

There'll Be No War, Mencken Asserts at Lovette Reception

By Elizabeth Henney.

But, definitely, there won't be war! H. L. Mencken promised that yesterday afternoon at the Army-Navy Country Club where he was an honor guest at the reception given by Commander and Mrs. Leland P. Lovette.

According to the distinguished author and editor, who has just recently returned from a trip to Germany, that country has set out to reclaim certain small surrounding territories, which she believes are rightfully hers. Other than that he thinks she is not ambitious, and he expressed the opinion that reports here on the subject are decidedly inflammatory.

Surrounded by a group of of service people, Army and Navy officers and their wives, Mr. Mencken talked of many things, including age. In the latter connection, he remarked that when he first overheard two copy boys refer to him (an editor) as "the old man," he realized that the age that brings fame has also its drawbacks. Except when questioned on the subject, Mr. Mencken seemed to think the imminence of war too unimportant to mention.

Around 200 guests attended the reception and were welcomed by the strains of an Hawaiian stringed orchestra playing "Song of Old Hawaii," a best seller in popular music, which was written by one of the guests, Lieut. William Gordon Beecher, now on duty at the Navy Department.

Commander and Mrs. Lovette received their guests in the main dining room of the club. Mrs. Lovette wore a taffeta tea gown, fashioned princess style, with a flaring skirt, square neckline and short puffed sleeves.

Among the guests were Admiral and Mrs. Ralston S. Holmes; Capt. and Mrs. John R. Beardall, the latter in navy blue with white touches and a matching hat; Admiral Lucius A. Bostwick, and the Assistant Military Attache of the Soviet Embassy and Madame Okunev.

Also Col. and Mrs. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Col. and Mrs. Alexander D. Surles, she in a navy blue frock with a matching hat swathed with a chartreuse veil to match the trim of the frock; Commander Elmer E. Duvall, Lieut. and Mrs. B. L. Austin, the French Naval Attache, Capt. Pierre Benech.

Mrs. Harry L. Dodson, who accompanied Commander Dodson, wore a smart teagown of the new shade of navy green, with an elaborate design in heavy gold on the back of the entire waist of the gown.

Dr. Kurt Sell, chief German press representative in this country was there, as were Capt. and Mrs. H. G. Copeland, Commander and Mrs. William L. Freseman, she in a dubonnet silk print, and Capt. Dan Callaghan, aide to President Roosevelt.

W.R. Tuckermans Return From Caribbean Cruise

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman have returned to Tuxeden after a trip on the liner Santa Paula to various Caribbean countries, a cruise for which Mrs. Tuckerman won tickets at a charity bazaar in Philadelphia.

On their trip they met several friends well known to Washington. In Venezuela they saw Senora de Arcaya, whose husband was formerly minister here from that country. When the ship stopped at Jamaica, the Tuckermans met Kurt Ritter, son of a former Swiss Minister in Washington. In Panama they renewed acquaintance with Mrs. Frank Corrigan, wife of our Minister to that country. Mr. Corrigan has recently been named Ambassador to Venezuela.

Ceremony Takes Place at Church Of Reformation

At the Church of the Reformation last evening, Miss Frances McKean Bulwinkle, daughter of Representative Alfred Lee Bulwinkle, of North Carolina, and Mrs. Bulwinkle, became the bride of E. Grainger Williams, of Little Rock, Ark., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Williams. The Rev. George S. Bowden, minister of the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, of Gastonia, N. C., officiated at the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Ralph Loew.

Rob Roy Peery, of Philadelphia, was the organist and accompanist for Mrs. Henry Dawson Mayer, sister of the bridegroom. She sang several selections preceding the ceremony.

Amethyst Brooch Is Gift of Bridegroom

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin, fashioned on princess lines with a square cut train. Her long double tulle veil was held by a coronet halo of tulle and orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was an amethyst brooch surrounded by a double row of pearls. It was her wedding gift from the bridegroom and an heirloom from his family.

Miss Modena Lewis, of Durham, N. C., a cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor and only attendant. She wore a gown of pale green chiffon, fashioned with short puffed sleeves, a shirred bodice and inserts of lace in the very full skirt. She carried an arm bouquet of bridal pink roses.

William Williams Is Best Man

William H. Williams, of Litte Rock, Ark., brother of the bridegroom, was the best man and the ushers were Lewis Bulwinkle, of Gastonia, brother of the bride, and J. R. Booth, of Washington.

Following the wedding, there was a very small reception at the Bulwinkle's apartment for members of the families and house guests. The bride's mother wore a gown of black net and a corsage of pink roses.

When the couple left for their wedding trip, a motor trip through the South, the bride was wearing a titian tan ensemble with brown accessories and a corsage of spring flowers to match the flowers that trimmed her hat. They will make their home in Little Rock, Ark.

Many Guests From Out of Town

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. William H. Williams, Mrs. Henry Dawson Mayer, Mrs. E. E. Wolfe, jr., and Miss Josephine Williams, of Little Rock, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Horace Tomlinson, of East Orange, N. J.; Mrs. John G. Reddan, of Omaha, Nebr.; Miss Helen Cornwell, Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. E. Several Hundred Attend Tea Given by Wife of Brazilian Envoy

WITH THE Latin American embassies and legations taking the social spotlight away this season from the usual European standbys, such as the German, Spanish and Italian embassies, Capital society is getting "Good Neighbor" conscious socially as well as politically. Yesterday several hundred, done up in their new spring bibs and tuckers (by the way, what is a tucker?), turned out for the tea given by Senora de Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador.

Though newly arrived in Washington, Senora de Martins gives signs of being one of the most friendly and hospitable of diplomatic hostesses. She loves people and parties, but also has some serious interests. Sculpture is one of them, and no matter how late she has been out the night before, she gets up early every morning to work in her studio. Since coming here she has been busy arranging the beautiful French pieces of furniture, the tapestries, and pictures which she had sent from Brussels, the Ambassador's previous post.

THE BRAZILIAN EMBASSY is very luxurious, with enormous, deep rugs, crystal chandeliers and chairs done in needlepoint or blue satin. In place of the pictures of Rio de Janeiro which used to be in the dining room, Senora de Martins has hung lovely Japanese paintings on silk.

The food yesterday was in keeping with the elegant surroundings. On a table decorated with bowls of Easter lilies and white snapdragons, and white tapers in silver candelabra, were platters of excellent sandwiches, cakes and everything one could possibly want to drink, including tea, coffee, whisky and cocktails.

Senora de Martins was assisted in receiving by her married daughter, Mme. Paula Fonseca, who lives in New York, and by her sister, Senora Bocayuva Cunha, who, with her husband and pretty 18-year-old daughter, has just arrived from Brazil for her first visit to this country. Both speak excellent English and have a wide range of complimentary adjectives in their vocabulary with which to describe how much they like Washington.

The hostess wore a floor-length silk jersey gown in a henna shade, beautifully draped, with two little flowers pinned at the square neckline. Senora Cunha was in a black skirt with a fitted jacket of emerald green velvet.

SEEN here and there: Lady Lindsay, in dark blue . . . Mrs. Cordell Hull, an early arrival, wearing a black dress and smart white hat with a black dotted veil . . . The artistic Greek Minister, Demetrios Sicilianos, pausing on the doorstep to admire the pink cherry blossoms in the front yard of the embassy . . . Mme. Espil, in a pale pink wool jacket over her dress and a silver fox scarf . . . Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick, also favoring silver fox.

The Peruvian Ambassador talking with the Swedish Minister and Mme. Bostrom . . . Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre, with a corsage of tea roses, making the rounds of the dining room with Mrs. Ernest Draper . . . Marian Trumbull in navy blue, with a broad brimmed hat, seeing that all the guests made themselves at home—she is Senora de Martins' social secretary . . . The Swiss Envoy and Mme. Peter . . . The Counselor of the Netherlands Legation, Count Van Rechteren Limpurg, who said that his pretty wife is abed with a cold . . . Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, in a canary yellow coat and yellow veiling on her soft blue hat . . . Miss Anne Squire and Mrs. Nathan Wyeth . . . Blair Bolles, telling a friend about two magazine articles he has just finished . . . The Hungarian Minister and Mme. Pelenyi, Mrs. John Caswell, in a sand colored jacket over her dark skirt, and a broad brimmed brown straw hat trimmed with flowers . . . Mrs. Herbert Howard and her debutante daughter, Maisie . . . Mrs. Herbert Feis comparing notes with Mrs. Hamilton Bryan, Mrs. Sol Bloom, Miss Vera Bloom, Mrs. Emil Hurja and many another.

In the library a talented pianist strummed "Deep Purple" and other hits to add to the guests' enjoyment.

THE UNITED STATES Naval Attache at the Berlin Embassy, Col. Truman Smith, and Mrs. Smith, are expected in Washington any day now. They landed in New York earlier in the week. The Smiths, incidentally, are very close friends of Col. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh.

AN AVERAGE of over 300 people a day have been trekking through the offices of Representative Robert Mouton of Louisiana this week. He has been holding "open house" to advertise the products of his home state, serves coffee and pralines, and has the walls hung with Spanish moss. Representative Mouton is a horticulturist, and owns and operates a large azalea and camelliajaponica nursery. Azaleas are also on display at his office.

Miss Ethel Kramer, Daughter Of Legislator, Is Betrothed

Representative and Mrs. Charles Kramer, of California, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ethel Kramer, to Dr. Frank E. Mauritz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Mauritz, of Baltimore. The news was made known at a luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower, where Representative and Mrs. Kramer have an apartment.

Miss Kramer is a graduate of Holton Arms School and her fiance is an alumnus of the Johns Hopkins University School of Engineering.

Luncheon yesterday was served in the east room of the hotel, at a table decorated with pink snapdragons, blue iris and yellow jonquils. Miss Kramer wore a print gown, a corsage of orchids and a natural color straw hat with a blue veil. Mrs. Kramer was in a blue and white print ensemble with a blue straw hat trimmed in white and a corsage of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

Guests from the Senate group included Mrs. Edward R. Burke and Mrs. Ernest Lundeen. The wives of California Representatives at the luncheon were Mrs. Clarence F. Lea, Mrs. Albert E. Carter, Mrs. Harry L. Englebright, Mrs. Richard J. Welch, Mrs. Frank H. Buck, Mrs. Thomas F. Ford, Mrs. John H. Tolan, Mrs. Ed V. Izac, Mrs. H. Jerry Voorhis, Mrs. John Z. Anderson and Mrs. Carl Hinshaw.

Other wives of Representatives present included Mrs. Lex Green, Mrs. John C. Schafer, Mrs. John W. Boehne, jr., Mrs. William H. Larrabee, Mrs. Jesse P. Wolcott, Mrs. Donald H. McLean, Mrs. J. W. Robinson, Mrs. Martin F. Smith, Mrs. J. Buell Snyder, Mrs. Mon C. Wallgren, Mrs. Compton I. White, Mrs. Ralph E. Church, Mrs. Frank E. Hook, Mrs. Nat Patton, Mrs. Karl Stefan, Mrs. Wade H. Kitchens, and Mrs. Anthony J. Diamond, wife of the Alaskan delegate to Congress.

Also present were Mrs. William Arnold, Mrs. Justin Miller, Mrs. John Dockweiler, Mrs. Charles Colden, Mrs. Hans Jurgenson, jr., Mrs. Oscar Juve, Mrs. George Lautz, Mrs. M. A. Wilkins, Mrs. Edward C. Moran, Miss Mary Schreiber, Miss Elise Fisher, Miss Shirley Schafer, Miss Bonnie Patton, Miss Gladys Kitchens, Miss Fanchon Aldrich, and Miss Mary Alice Arnold.

Mrs. Hydrick Gives Tea for Friend

On Wednesday, Mrs. Hydrick entertained at luncheon for Mrs. Lueders at her apartment. The guests included Mrs. Baldwin Spilman, sr., of Warrenton, Miss Lucy Spilman, Mrs. Frederick Richardson, Mrs. Robert Graham, Mrs. James Hughes, Mrs. Neitah King, Mrs. M. Webster Dawley, and Mrs. Clayton B. Vogel.

Mrs. E. B. Clark Gives Luncheon On Birthday

52 Women, Hostess' Husband Are Guests At Army-Navy Club

Celebrating her birthday, Mrs. Edward B. Clark entertained at a large luncheon yesterday at the Army-Navy Club. Fifty-two women and one man (the hostess' husband, Col. Clark, came in for the latter half of the party) were there to wish Mrs. Clark "many happy returns of the day," and to enjoy the event, which took place in the private dining room of the club.

The occasion also marked the natal anniversary of one of the guests, Mrs. Ernest P. Bicknell, who observed that she and Mrs. Clark and Hitler "all have the same birthday."

"But we're ignoring Hitler," said Mrs. Clark. "It's just our party." All guests, she added, were her close friends, and many belong to either the Twentieth Century Club, of which she is a past president, or the Women's National Press Club, of which she is a member.

Informal Program Follows Luncheon

The U-shaped table was decorated with a long bowl of spring blossoms, boughs of peach and cherry blossoms and fern. The pastel shades of the flowers blended with the colors of the fruit course which was on the table when the guests found their places. Mrs. Clark wore a becoming figured frock in navy-blue and white with a black straw hat, set off with a cluster of white violets on the front and a black veil. Mrs. Bicknell, who sat near the hostess, had on a plum crepe frock, worn with a small black straw hat, trimmed in purple. A scarf of lilac and purple crepe accented her costume and contrasted nicely with her silver hair.

Following the luncheon, while guests were still at the table, there was an informal and impromptu program, in which three of the guests, Mrs. Frederick E. Farrington, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith and Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, gave a three-act play in one minue, and every other guest rose to her feet for a very brief speech.

Twelve past presidents of the Twentieth Century Club were in the company and three past presidents of the Women's National Press Club—Miss Winifred Mallon, Miss Ruth Jones atnd Mrs. John O. Herrick—who, incidentally, postponed her trip to Tea Neck, N. J., originally planned for yesterday, until today. Mrs. E. G. Montgomery, current head of the Twentieth Century Club, was also among the guests.

Mrs. Grosvenor Among Guests

Others there included Mrs. Gilbert H. Grosvenor, Mrs. Karl Fenning, Mrs. Lawrence Martin, Mrs. J. K. McClintock, Mrs. Alexander S. Steuart, Mrs. George F. Bowerman, Mrs. Alfred H. Brooks, Mrs. D. Agnew Greenlees, Mrs. W. W. Husband, Mrs. Virgil B. Jackson, Mrs. Richard Fay Jackson, Mrs. William F. Notz, Mrs. G. B. Pierce, Mrs. Lawrence F. Schmeckebier, Mrs. Arthur J. Seaton.

Also, Mrs. Harry Taylor, Mrs. Ernest R. McComas, Mrs. William Aspinwall, Mrs. Charles J. Brand, Mrs. Frances M. Goodwin, Mrs. Ellwood P. Morey, Mrs. Robert E. Nelson, Mrs. Edward G. Lowry, Mrs. Frank R. Rutter, Mrs. Paul Brockett, Mrs. Sidney H. Thompson, Mrs. David C. Shanks, Mrs. Robert Sterling Yard, Mrs. Eugene E. Clark will attend the fifty-fifth reunion of his class on June 13. Later, they will go to Utica, N. Y., to visit relatives and from there, to Magnolia, Mass., where they have spent many summers.

Sen. Gillette Speaks To Colonial Dames

Iowan Warns Spirit Is Abroad Today Like That Which Sent The Nation Into the World War

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Warning of a growing sentiment like that which sent this country into the World War, Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, yesterday advocated collective action for the world such as the Pan-Americanism which has protected the Western Hemisphere from war.

Speaking on "Neutrality" at the luncheon of the National Society of Colonial Dames of the XVII Century, which held its twenty-fourth annual conference at the Mayflower, Senator Gillette declared himself "ready to put on the statute books anything that can contribute to peace." He denounced the theory as advanced preceding the World War "that we must take part in the European situation or it will be brought home to us."

Because of the situation since the neutrality hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have been in progress, the committee has been "traveling in circles," he said. Authorities who have testified have been totally at variance and few of the members struggling with the question as to what course to pursue have made up their minds.

"In 1935, for the first time, we attempted to put on the statute books a system of neutrality. It has been changed four times since; we have it on the books today, but it is most unneutral of all," he said.

The "cash and carry" system for which it provides, gives advantage to such countries as Japan and Italy which have ships to carry and money with which to buy raw materials they need for war. If it is extended to instruments of war, in accordance with the Pittman resolution, although the purpose would be to aid the democracies, it would have the opposite effect in the Pacific, said Senator Gillette.

He urged systematic teaching of the principles of American democracy to school children as a means of perpetuating our form of government. He decried the growing attitude toward government: "not what I can do but what it can do for me" and declared citizenship was two sided, both a contract and an obligation."

Mrs. Alice Hardeman Dulaney, president general, presided at the luncheon and Mrs. Frank Morton, president of the local chapter of the society, introduced Senator Gillette. The Rev. Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House, offered the invocation and Mrs. Charles Channing Allen, Missouri State president, led the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

The luncheon, at which about 75 were present, was followed by a memorial service at which Mrs. Livingston Vann, jr., presided, and the business meeting with reports of national officers.

"THERE WILL BE NO speeches" is the evasive answer of members of the education committee of the Federation of Women's clubs of the District of Columbia when quizzed about the program for which they have been practicing at the home of the chairman, Mrs. A. C. Watkins. The only real information that has leaked out is that women interested in parks, reading, child care and such will for once find this sort of information most palatably disguised.

There is no secret about the exhibits which will range all the way from "what the new-born infant will wear," to plans for the new library. The program and exhibits will be open to federated club women and their friends at Hotel Roosevelt, Monday, April 24.

Mistreatment Suit Basis

A case April 4 apparently was the basis for charges of mistreatment of prisoners held at city jail on "minor traffic offenses," Police Capt. John S. Arnold said yesterday. At that time, he said, an Arlington County man was arrested by State Trooper C. L. Lacey and ordered to appear in Police Court April 8.

Arnold said the Keystone Automobile Club later telephoned about the case and was told there was no record on police books. The case had not been recorded, he said, because Lacey had not made his report. The man failed to appear in court, Arnold said, and was arrested on a warrant and jailed while he arranged bond.

He added the practice of depriving prisoners of their belts, neckties and other objects with which they might injure themselves was current in many other cities.

Referendum Petition Reported On Montgomery Police Act

9213 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md.
Telephone SHepherd 4200.

Political circles in Montgomery County were stirred last night by reports that petitions are being circulated through the county seeking a referendum on the bill passed by the legislature enlarging the county police force and changing the civil service set-up of the police department.

The bill, which is now on Gov. O'Conor's desk for signature, calls for adding 15 men to the county police force, transferring the members from the State civil service system to a new county civil service system created by the same law, and establishing a police trial board and a police retirement system.

Opponents of the bill are said to be endeavoring to secure 10,000 signatures on the petition which, under State law, will automatically prevent the new act from going into operation until it is voted upon by the citizens. If the necessary signatures are obtained, the law cannot go into effect until after the 1940 general election and then only if a favorable vote is recorded.

The farm bureau went on record during the legislative session in opposition to the addition of more policemen unless their salaries were to be paid from taxes levied only on the suburban area of the county.

James D. King, president of the farm bureau, told The Post last night that the farm bureau was not sponsoring the petition and was not responsible for its being circulated. Robert L. McKeever, Republican leader of Silver Spring, likewise disclaimed responsibility for the petition.

Relief Strides Claimed

Potomac.—In the problem of relief great strides have been made in the past ten years, Glen Leet, editor of a Washington news letter, told the annual meeting of the Montgomery County Welfare Board at the Congressional Country Club.

The speaker, now on leave from his position as field representative of the American Public Welfare Association, also discussed proposed legislation in Congress with respect to social problems.

Short talks also were given by Fred L. Lutes, chairman of the board, who presided over the meeting, and by Mrs. Dorothy Kurtz, executive secretary.

Gas Company Purchase Plan Called Illegal

Without Consent of Stockholders, One Of Them Testifies

A charge that the Washington Gas Light Company acted illegally in petitioning the Public Utilities Commission for permission to buy the Alexandria and Hyattsville gas companies was made yesterday by a "minority" stockholder, as the commission wound up the fourth day of hearings on the petition.

Julian I. Pierce, a journalist with the American Federation of Labor, who testified he owned more shares of common stock in the company than "six of the seven members of the board of directors," requested the commission to deny the petition filed by his company. Pierce lives at 1637 R street northwest.

He said the company acted without the consent of the stockholders in its request to issue 12,255 shares of preferred stock in the company for payment to the Washington & Suburban Companies for its nearby subsidiaries. The Washington & Suburban Companies, a Massachusetts common-law trust, representing the Chase National Bank and affiliated financial interests, also owns 84 per cent of the common stock in the local company.

Pierce said if the local company really wants to buy the two nearby firms, it should pay them with cash "from the $4,000,000" reserve fund. He said should the commission permit the company to issue the preferred stock to the Washington & Suburban Cos., the local company could call in the stock at a price of $105 per share.

B. M. Bachman, chief accountant for the P. U. C., appeared at the hearing, and stated that if the commission should grant the application, the consumers of the Alexandria and Hyattsville communities would demand reduced rates, which would result in decreased earnings for the local company.

J. D. Whitmore, vice president of the Chase National Bank, told the commission he hoped the Washington & Suburban companies would be able to regain as much as possible of its investment in the nearby firms. The hearings were recessed until tomorrow morning at 9 a. m.

Nats Blanked, 2-0; Open Here Today

This Morning
With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

Philadelphia, April 20.—A favorable decision by Judge Landis in a case now pending will enrich Charley Gelbert, Nats' shortstop, by $7,500 . . . Gelbert is claiming that sum, which the Nats paid the Toledo club last December when they drafted him from the minors . . . Gelbert's story is that when he agreed to join Toledo at the end of 1937, on option from Detroit, the Tigers agreed to make him a free agent at the end of 1938 . . . as such, he, not the Toledo club, would be entitled to the $7,500 paid the Nats by Toledo . . . despite the absence of a written agreement, the Tigers are expected to corroborate Gelbert's story and Landis is expected to command Toledo to turn the $7,500 over to the Nats' shortstop.

POVICH

The Nats' Cubans—Bobby Estalella, Rene Monteagudo, Roberto Ortiz—and the Venezuelan, Alex Alexandra, are displaying a common weakness . . . they like American steaks . . . they like publicity, too, and avidly peruse the sports pages for pictures and notices of themselves . . . Monteagudo, the only benedict of the lot, is the father of a two-months-old daughter, born since he joined the Nats in spring training . . . Estalella, in his first season with the Nats, subsisted on ham and eggs because it was the only American dish he could pronounce . . . Alexandra is the only member of the rhumba band who is not progressing with his English . . . in fact, he's definitely antagonistic . . . By making sounds like a choo-choo train, accompanied by wild gestures with his arms, Ortiz explains that his dad is an engineer on a Cuban railway.

Baseball Writers Don't Think Much of Nats

Washingon's two substitute third basemen of the pennant-winning 1924 season have figured in the news lately . . Hack Miller, who committed many a fielding crime for the Nats, died last week . . . The sentence of Doc Prothro, however, was commuted . . . he was made manager of the Phillies . . . out of 239 votes cast by the Nation's baseball writers in the sporting news poll, Washington failed to receive a single first-place vote . . . one optimist predicted the Nats would finish second, and four voted Washington as the third place club . . . the Nats polled 10 votes for fourth place, 110 for fifth, 89 for sixth, 22 for seventh and 3 for eighth.

Best crack of the week: "The President dispatched the fleet to the Pacific Coast, but not in time to save Jack Roper" . . . On the heels of the Louis-Roper fiasco, one sports columnist presents evidence that Roper is not 36 years old, as he claimed, but 46 . . . Roper's alibi was that he zigged when he should have zagged, but what he should have done was failed to show up . . . California waited 30 years for 2 minutes and 20 seconds of heavyweight championship fighting and the fans who were blowing their noses at the opening bell probably didn't see the fight at all.

With Sunday baseball and a pay roll totaling less than half the wages he was forced to pay the pennant-winning teams of 1929-30-31, Connie Mack's eighth place club of last season produced the highest profits in 10 years . . . Bob Johnson and Wally Moses, whose contracts call for $12,500, are the highest paid individuals on the A's roster . . in the lean days that followed the sale of such as Grove, Earnshaw, Simmons, Foxx and Cochrane, Connie Mack had to borrow on his life insurance to meet his pay roll . . . Philadelphia courts have upheld Mack in proceedings brought by Shibe Park neighbors to prevent Mack from using his lighting system for night ball . . . one neighbor complained that "I live six blocks away and can read a book by the light cast from the towers of Shibe Park at night."

The Nats will play two night games this season—one here and one in Cleveland . . . Leo Durocher's two errors in the Dodgers' opening game with the Giants, prompted one New York writer to crack "Lippy Leo discovered that ground balls look different to a playing manager than to a shortstop."

Walter Masterson Off to Good Start

Walter Masterson, the prize pitching rookie the Nats left at Charlotte, won the opening game for the Charlotte club, 5 to 3, yesterday . . . he will be recalled by Washington within 10 days.

Cleveland is mishandling play-boy Rollie Hemsley by sending him home each time he goes on a spree, according to a Washington player who was a teammate of Hemsley's for three years . . . "Why, when he was with the Browns he played better ball when he was drunk than most catchers when they are sober . . . it didn't seem to matter to Rollie" . . . The Indians may not lead the pennant race but with such bolsheviks—baseball parlance for agitators—as Ben Chapman, Earl Averill, Johnny Allen and Hemsley on the club, the Indians may, conceivably, lead the May Day parade.

Wanted: A catcher, preferably an old-timer, by Goose Goslin, newly appointed manager of the Trenton club in the Interstate League . . . Goslin turned down a $5,000 offer to manage the Nats' Eastern League farm at Springfield, Mass. . . . Save for a chap named Bill Calfuss, Joe Krakauskas would now be a member of the Athletics . . . Coach Earl Mack, who went to Trenton two years ago to scout Krakauskas, liked Calfuss better and turned down Krakky . . . Calfuss didn't last through a spring training trip with the A's and was back at Trenton last season . . . Cleveland is being sued for $1,000 by a self-appointed scout who alleges the Indians owe him that sum for recommending a pitching prospect.

On the Line
With CONSIDINE

New York, April 20.—If anybody is still wondering why Joe Louis fought the elderly bum, Jack Roper, one of the chief reasons for this was the refusal of one of Joe's managers to let him fight Bob Pastor. Louis wanted to fight Pastor more than anybody in the heavyweight division. John Roxborough, Louis' co-manager, wanted Joe to fight Bob. So did Jack Blackburn, the scar-faced old Negro who is Joe's Svengali. So did Mike Jacobs, who knew that the fight would gross $110,000—as the last one did. It was all set.

CONSIDINE

But Julian Black, Louis' other manager, refused to sanction the fight. He took offense at a remark dropped by James Joy Johnston, Pastor's manager, and since has sworn that so long as he is associated with Louis, that Joe will never again fight the bouncing Bobby heavy who gave Joseph one of his most embarrassing evenings.

It certainly would have been more of a fight—or race—than the Roper thing was. If Los Angeles hadn't been a place where a heavyweight championship fight is an extreme novelty, the Louis-Roper match would have been criminally inexcusable. It is doubtful if there has ever been a more foregone conclusion since they matched a guillotine against Marie Antoinette. The two surprising aspects of the fight were that it took Joe more than 2 minutes to knock the old bum cold, and the surprising excellent sports announcing of Bing Crosby. That fellow's going places.

Calls Himself a 'Bum'—No One Corrects Him

Johnston called Louis a bum, or words to that effect. Galento has been calling Joe that since 1935, when Louis came East to punch over Carnera and enter his golden age. But Galento's "bums" are not official any more. There is no taint to the word, so far as Tony's lexicon is concerned. It's a synonym for "man." He even calls himself a bum—and to date no one has seen fit to correct him on this latter pronouncement.

Louis has been so savage and fistically letter-perfect for nearly two years that it's bewildering to remember back to January of 1937 when Pastor made him look very dumb indeed. Not that Pastor gained in stature particularly, as a result of staying 10 rounds with the Bomber. Subsequently, Robert was beaten up by Nathan Mann and held to a couple of draws by lower-drawer heavies. He stayed 10 rounds against Joe by going into reverse at the opening gong and keeping in that gear throughout the match except for occasional charges and powder-puff pokes. But Louis looked terrible, got a bloody nose and never recovered—deep in his heart—from the ignominy of playing a silly game of squat tag with a pale-face who couldn't have hurt him with an ax.

But Black wouldn't let him fight Pastor again, for the curious reason that he had been insulted. It is faintly possible that Black was afraid that Pastor would once again make Joe—the incredible fighting machine—look like a man trying to thread a needle with boxing gloves. If this had been true, it might have reacted against the gates of the Louis-Galento fight and the Louis vs. winner of Baer-Nova. But if Black doubts Louis' utter invincibility that is pretty interesting in itself, and it makes him a minority of one. The rest of us have long since decided that—for his era—Joseph is the most destructive thing ever unleashed.

Always Someone That Knows His Faults

We were sitting with Joe McCarthy the other day and asked him how he decided what kind of a ball to throw to the tough young rookies who'll be facing Yankee pitchers for the first time this season. We wondered if a manager had to guess his way along, and take a chance on having the kid knock the ball over the fence until the pitchers could find a weakness.

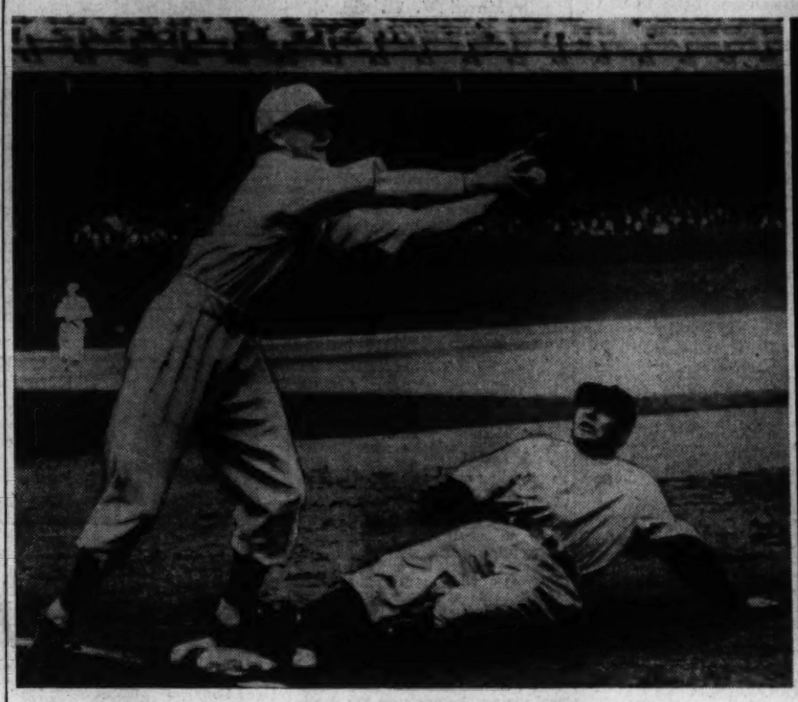
"No," Joe said, "as a rule we have an idea what a rookie can't hit—even though our pitcher never saw him. There's always somebody on our team who has played in the same league with the rookie and knows what he don't like. If that isn't the case, one of our players will know somebody who knows somebody who knows somebody who played with the kid—and knows what he bites on. It's hard to keep that kind of secret in baseball, no matter what league you're in."

McCarthy was greatly impressed with Brooklyn's Peter Reiser, the rookie who this spring was harder to get out than a singing drunk. "I don't think I've ever seen a kid who hit the ball more naturally than that fellow," McCarthy remarked. "We didn't know much about him, to start with, and what tips we had on him were all wet. He hit anything, except a bad ball. It got to be pretty awful after a while so I told our fellows to bear down on him. Told them to pitch to him. And they did. I think they worked harder on him than any batter they met this year.

"But he kept knocking our brains out until one day Lefty Gomez accidentally threw a curve into the dirt, and the fellow missed it a foot. Lefty tried it again and the kid missed again. And we knew then that he wouldn't give us any more trouble."

P. S. Reiser got the job—at Elmira.

Nats Bow to A's as '39 Season Finally Opens



A Washington rally is nipped in the fourth inning as Taft Wright is thrown out at third base on an attempt to advance on Cecil Travis' bunt. Bill Nagel, of the A's, is seen taking Pitcher George Caster's throw. The Nats loudly disputed Umpire Rommel's decision on the close play

A's Caster Holds Griffs To Four Hits

Nationals Unable to Touch Right-Hander; DeShong Is Loser in A Tough Game

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Philadelphia, April 20.—The 1939 American League debut of the Nats was a whopping success today—for the Philadelphia Athletics. They smeared Washington with the ignominy of a 2-to-0 defeat before 7,100 gleeful customers in Shibe Park.

It was a sour start for the Nats, who could stir up only four hits against the pitching of Righthander George Caster and were helpless to the point where they failed to move a man as far as third base.

In fact, if the Nats made any kind of a hit after the fourth inning it must have been a mental affair, because they didn't produce any on the field. In a word, they were punchless.

A Brutal Defeat

For James Brooklyn DeShong, whom Manager Bucky Harris intrusted with the Nats' pitching, it was a brutal defeat. Before he was excused in the seventh inning because of the pressing need of a pinch hitter, DeShong had been pitching three-hit ball himself, and one of the two Philadelphia runs he permitted was by no means his fault.

In the thinning hair of DeShong this afternoon was little Earl Brucker, 34-year-old catcher, whom Connie Mack rescued from the minors two years ago. It was Brucker who drove across the A's first run with a two-bagger in the first inning, and inspired their second run with a single in the fourth.

The only time the Nats were on even terms with the lowly regarded Athletics this afternoon was during the march to the flag-raising ceremonies in centerfield. Thereafter, following the honorary pitch-out by City Councilman George Connell, the A's were always in the lead.

Macks Score in First

Buddy Myer, Taft Wright and George Case were the only Griffith employees who could make a hit against Caster, who was mixing a fast ball with a baffling knuckler. Myer pounded out a double and a single, and Case and Wright collected singles early in the proceedings.

The rookie-infield line-up of the A's wrung a run out of DeShong right off the bat, as it were—in the first inning. But they got some valuable help from Buddy Myer, who muffed the first 1939 chance to come his way—a tame grounder off the bat of Joe Gantenbein, lead-off man.

DeShong wild pitched Gantenbein to second after getting two out, and then along came the Brucker person who, in view of his .390 batting average of last year, hits clean-up for Connie Mack. He cleaned up nicely, banging a line-drive double to left that scored Gantenbein from second.

The A's didn't get another hit against DeShong until the fourth when they came up with their second run, Brucker pumped a single to center and galloped to third when Bob Johnson whacked a scorcher through the box. DeShong got rid of Rookie Nagel on a pop-up at this point and for a moment when Etten grounded to Travis a run-saving double play seemed imminent, but after Johnson was forced at second, Myer's relay to Wasdell was late and Brucker scored.

DeShong flung another pair of hitless innings at the A's before he retired in the seventh and the Athletics made their last three hits against Harry Kelley, who was in trouble in both the seventh and eighth innings, but managed to escape damage.

The first sign of any offensive by the Nats was in the second inning when Buddy Myer doubled to left center, but Travis and Wasdell obligingly grounded out for Caster. And the Nats had two on in the third when Case singled and Lewis walked with two out, but Bobby

Tigers Register an 8-7 Victory; Dixie Walker Clouts One

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 20.—The Detroit Tigers blew a commanding lead midway in the game today but a fourteenth inning home run by Hank Greenberg enabled them to edge out the Chicago White Sox, 8-7.

Greenberg's round trip, his first this season, came with the paths unoccupied and one down in the last half of the inning and broke up a game which lasted three hours and 25 minutes before only 7,300 spectators.

The Bengals were ahead 7-2 going into the seventh, when the Sox produced four runs from three singles, a pass, a double and a sacrifice. Al Benton was replaced in the eighth by Roxie Lawson, who worked the remainder of the game and yielded only two of Chicago's nine hits but allowed the Sox to pull into a 7-7 tie in the ninth. The teams played through four and half scoreless innings before breaking the deadlock.

Golden Terror Beats Hader

Thrown from Turner's Arena ring twice in succession last night by the Golden Terror, Jack Hader, Kansas baker boy, returned the second time swinging a ring stool he picked up from the aisle and set to work on the Terror's skull. When Referee Casey Berger tried to seize the stool, Hader turned on him and knocked him across the ring. He was promptly disqualified and the match was awarded to the Terror, who lay on the floor.

A fight ensued in the dressing room between Hader and the Terror, Hader charging the Terror fouled him in throwing him from the ring. The crowd apparently was of the same opinion, for the Terror was booed lustily as he left the ring.

In preliminaries, Kazinmirz "King Kong" Symkowski, the gentle 7-foot Polish importation, required only 4 minutes to demolish Louis Bacigalupi with a bear hug; "Rosy" Red Ryan pinned David Mayor, a Jewish newcomer, in 15 minutes with a Japanese leg lock, and Jim Clinstock upset Ernie Powers in 22½ minutes with a flying scissors.

Vice President Garner, Subbing for Roosevelt, Will Toss Out First Ball at 3 o'Clock; Regular Ceremonies Scheduled for Today

The White House will send Relief Pitcher John Nance Garner to the draped box this afternoon and Washington's long deferred opening game will be staged at Griffith Stadium.

Save for the shift in the White House batteries, the original program is unchanged. Frank Roosevelt lost the opening game assignment due to a previous commitment to visit Charlottesville, Va., and thus Righthander Garner was nominated by Clark Griffith.

After the Vice President makes his honorary pitch at 3 p. m., the Nats and Yankees will take the field. But preceding the Vice Presidential pitch will be the annual inaugural game fanfare, featured by the Army Band, and the march to the flag pole which Postmaster General James A. Farley will head.

The United States House of Representatives, along about 2 p. m., will suddenly discover that there is a ball game at Griffith Stadium and adjourn for the day. At least that was indicated yesterday by Democratic Leader Rayburn, who has arranged for the House to meet an hour earlier and thus finish its business earlier "for obvious reasons."

Griffith Stadium's gates will open at 9 a. m. in anticipation of the 30,000 crowd. During the morning, reserved bleacher seats will go on sale, and before game time standing room tickets will be sold to a 2,500 limit.

When the ceremonies are done with, big Joe Krakauskas will trudge to the mound to face the Yankees. Originally assigned the opening game job last Monday before rain washed out the proceedings, Krakaukas again is Bucky Harris' pitching choice.

It will be Krakauskas versus Gomez. Manager Joe McCarthy withheld his southpaw ace from the opener with Boston yesterday.

The Nats face their Griffith Stadium opener with their slate already sullied. They returned from Philadelphia last night bearing the marks of a 2-to-0 defeat by the lowly Athletics in their first start of the season. The Yankees, coincidentally, got away to a flying beginning with a victory over Lefty Grove and the Red Sox at Yankee Stadium.

Against the left-handed pitching of Krakauskas, the Yankees will send the same batting order which yesterday overcame Lefty Grove. Leading off will be Red Rolfe, to be followed in order by Frank Crosetti, Jake Powell, Joe Di Maggio, Lou Gehrig, Joe Gallagher and Joe Gordon.

On the bench, awaiting right-handed pitching opposition will be Charley Keller, prize rookie outfielder of the Yankees, who took a course in baseball at Maryland University.

Schumacher Wild, Dodgers Whip Giants

His Bad Pitch Paves Way for 2 Unearned Runs in 5-3 Game

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, April 20.—Brooklyn's dauntless Dodgers took advantage of Hal Schumacher's wildness today to drop the New York Giants 5 to 3 and earn an even split for their first National League series of the season.

The Giant with the question-mark arm worked six innings and was in trouble four, during which the Dodgers made good use of eight hits, four bases on balls and a wild pitch.

Man of the Month

(Following each game by The Washington Club, Walter Johnson distributes among the Nats ten points of merit, based on their performances for the day. At the end of each month, the Washington player boasting the greatest number of points is designated as the Nats' "Man of the Month" and receives a trophy from The Washington Post.)

By Walter Johnson,

To DeShong, six points, because he pitched three-hit ball before he was lifted in the seventh inning for a pinch hitter, and because one of the two runs he allowed was traceable to an error behind him.

To Harry Kelley, two points, because he held the Athletics runless in the last two innings of a close ball game, thus giving the Nats a chance to win.

Interhigh Nines Launch Baseball Season Today

Riders Play Wilson; Tide Faces Indians

Both Games Will Be Played at 3:30 P. M; Dr. Goslin Will Toss Out First Ball

By Bill Burnett.

Bravely poking their heads into the baseball interest surrounding the Nationals' first home game of the season, Washington's public high schools start their annual period of diamond warfare today, at the same time lending support to the centennial celebration of the Nation's favorite pastime.

Today's inaugural battles pit Eastern, winner of the last two series, against an Anacostia High nine making its second interhigh appearance, and Roosevelt, runner-up in 1938, against the somewhat veiled threat of Woodrow Wilson. The games take place at Eastern and Western High fields, respectively, starting at 3:30 p. m.

The time-honored custom of throwing out the first ball, without which a baseball opener is sadly lacking, to say the least, will be observed at Western before the forces of Roosevelt and Wilson move into action Dr. Thomas W. Goslin, assistant superintendent of schools, will give proceedings the School Board's benign blessing when he cocks his good right arm and lets fly in the general direction of the field. After that it will be every team for itself, and the cellar gets the hindermost.

Two Divisions

Just as in basketball, where a new type of playoff needled the game more than its sponsors thought possible, the 1939 baseball series has been shifted to fit the needs of an increased number of entries. The seven teams have been divided into East and West Divisions, Eastern, Anacostia and Tech in one, and Western, Wilson, Roosevelt and Central in the other.

The East nines, because of the smaller number in their league, will be forced to play only four games each (twice around), while Western clubs will play six. With the exception of two dates, all games in the series will be staged as double-headers, one in the East and one in the West section.

After Dr. Goslin officially cracks the West series, the Wilson pitcher who will stumble to the mound and be responsible for the first slant will probably be Herman Byer, a veteran of many highly successful slants. His battery mate will be one of the few other veterans on Wilson's team, Charley Garner.

Mound Selections

Roosevelt, which has had some trouble replacing Jack Redinger's fine arm, will counter with either Jack Lyon, Bill Meikeljohn or Eddie Vermillion—probably the latter. All-High Hymie Perlo will do the backstopping.

Out at Eastern the starting pitcher for the Tide will be undecided until immediately before the game, Coach Chief Guyon being torn between a pair of right-side hurlers with more hope than seasoning. "Puddin'" Lovett seems the logical choice, having worked at odd times for the Tide last year when mound duties revolved entirely around Lefty Stockwell and "Rip" Carver. Warren Earhardt might possibly get the assignment, and the receiver will be Paul Cohill.

No doubt is in the mind of Anacostia's Coach Roland Lund as to whom he will send out there after the Indians have had their "raps." It will be Art Faircloth, the husky fullback of the grid team who pitched four innings for the school on the flats Tuesday and gave up a single hit. He has a fast ball with a little more zip on it than anything Eastern can offer. He'll be replaced by Jack Burroughs if things get out of hand. Joe Hayes rates the catching job since the loss of Dicky Farr due to ineligibility.

Nats

In the fourth, the Nats built their scattered supporters up to a terrific let-down. Taft Wright led off with a single to right and Myer promptly followed with a single to the same spot that put Wright on second. But Caster hopped on Travis' attempted sacrifice bunt and forced Wright at third, and the rally fizzled completely when Wasdell grounded into the box to start a double play.

The Nats didn't get a hit in those last five innings, as we were saying, but at one point they had the tying run on base nevertheless. That was in the seventh when Caster walked Myer and then, with two out walked Rick Ferrell. At this point Harris beckoned Sammy West for pinch hitting duties. West struck out nicely.

Notes of the Nats—Bobby Estalella had a horrible time of it against Caster . . . he didn't get a ball out of the infield, striking out twice . . . The A's were playing in luck, though . . . George Case, Jimmy DeShong and Taft Wright were robbed of hits when they smacked line drives directly at infielders . . . With Estalella in the unable-to-get-a-ball-out-of-the-infield class were Buddy Lewis, Cecil Travis and Jimmy Wasdell . . . It almost happened here: The umpires started the ball game before the honorary pitch was delivered, and then had to call off the proceedings to get the ceremonies into the program . . . The longest ball of the day was hit by Buddy Lewis, but it was only a long strike . . . it was a foul that landed atop the roof over the rightfield stands . . . Caster's victory over the Nats was not exactly an upset . . . he beat 'em four times last year.

Central High Nine Defeats Episcopal, 5-1

Scores All Runs With 2 Out in 1st Inning Was Substitute Game

Alexandria, Va., April 20.—Scoring all their runs in the first inning after two were out, Central High School baseballists handed Episcopal High its second loss of the season here this afternoon, turning back the Maroons by a 5-1 margin in a well-played game.

The Washingtonians were originally slated to meet George Washington High here today, but the G. W. diamond was too wet for play and the Episcopal tilt was carded on the spur of the moment.

Bill Fisher, a newcomer to the Central pitching staff, turned in a highly impressive performance by limiting the Maroons to six well-scattered hits, and after his mates had driven over their five runs in the opening frame, he was never in danger of losing the lead. Except for the ninth, when he was forced to quell a mild Episcopal uprising, he never yielded more than a single hit in any one inning, and he fanned seven Maroon batsmen while giving up only two free passes.

Billy Peelle pitched the full nine innings for Episcopal and hurled effectively after the first. He was nicked for ten safeties, fairly well-scattered, just about matching Fisher's efforts in the last eight frames.

Sokol started Central's scoring spree with a clean single in the first after Fenlon and Zimmerman had become easy putout victims. Singles by Farr and Martin, a double by Bransdorf, and a pair of Episcopal errors all contributed toward the 5-run total credited to the Washingtonians.

Attendance Off In Major Leagues; Total Is 183,382

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 20.—The major league baseball season, hobbled by the weather, is dropping far behind previous standards in attendance.

Five games today brought the activity for the first three days to ten games, but the spectator total to a mere 183,382.

Today's top crowd was 30,278 at Yankee Stadium, where New York's American League and world champions made their getaway against the Boston Red Sox.

Rained out today were Cleveland at St. Louis in the American League and St. Louis at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati at Chicago in the National League. The last game left Chicago fans still without a major league show, exhibition or regular, this spring.

G. W. Frosh Defeat Tech Nine, 9 to 7

Taking an early lead, George Washington University Freshmen yesterday defeated the McKinley Tech nine, 9-7, on the Tech High diamond in an action-filled game rife with t:se hits, stolen bases, wild pitches and misjudged flys.

G. W. batters romped across home plate three times in the first inning, when Simpson doubled, scored on Lusby's single, and Taylor cleared the bases with a home run. Taylor's line drive was misjudged by Hoagland, Tech rightfielder, and the ball sailed over his head. Two runs in the fourth, three in the sixth and one in the eighth inning accounted for the Freshmen nine's scores.

Tech, trailing, 8-3, in the sixth inning, came back to score three runs. They scored again in the seventh but were powerless in the remaining innings.

Buddy Webb, the Tech's 220-pound pitcher, gave up 13 hits; G. W. used three pitchers, Redinger, Hutchinson, and McGinnis, who gave up 11 hits among them. Wes Taylor and Bob Gilham, with five hits between them out of 10 times at bat, led the G. W. hitters.

Manor Club Tournament Postponed

Invitation Event May Be Abandoned; May Date Is Off

Manor Country Club's Invitation Tournament, featuring the famous "free feed and drinks," was stricken from the May golf calendar by President John R. Daily yesterday, and will more than likely be abandoned.

The tournament was originally scheduled for May 23-26, inclusive, in turn with Manor's policy of holding the event every other year. The last tournament was held in 1937, and won by Everett Johnson.

The event cost the membership in excess of $1,500 and was paid for on a subscription basis. Golf Committee Chairman Harry G. Pitt canvassed the members and found little sentiment for the event, due to the cost, the fact that the course is closed for a week and various other reasons.

A possibility remains that the tournament may be added to the fall schedule, without the free bar and with an entrance fee of $3 per person. It will probably be the first or second week in October. The entrance fee would be used entirely for prizes.

Manor's withdrawal from the Invitation field leaves the Chevy Chase Tournament, May 17-18-19, as the only tournament other than the city and sectional championships for the local amateurs.

It is the second tournament to be cancelled or shifted from the week of May 21-27, as the Maryland State Women's was originally scheduled for that time, but changed to the previous week.

If the tourney is not played this year, it will be permanently discontinued.

Hitting Helps West

Dick West, stalwart young catcher with the Reds, is not discouraged by the fact that the National League batting champion, Ernie Lombardi, is ahead of him in line when Manager McKechnie is naming his batteries. Dick played the outfield exclusively up until last year and rates a job of all-round utility on the strength of his batting power. In winter he's a law student at Georgia University.

Mrs. Medley Wins Miller Golf Tourney

Scores2ndLowest Round Of Career to Take Event by 9 Strokes

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Mrs. C. P. (Tops) Medley opened the women's competitive golf season yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club by winning the Phyllis Keeler Miller memorial tournament by a nine-stroke margin, aided by the lowest round she has ever recorded over a local course.

Mrs. Medley, handicap chairman of the Women's Golf Association for four years until this season, played each nine in 41 for an 82 and deducted a 13 handicap for a net 69, one of the lowest net scores in the history of local tournament play.

The winner had par in for a 77 standing on the sixteenth tee, but a pair of three-putt greens and trouble on the seventeenth cost her five strokes to perfect figures on the last three holes. Previous to her bad streak, Mrs. Medley had played eight of the hardest holes of the course in one shot over men's par.

Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, a teammate of the winner from Indian Spring, took low gross honors with an 81, going out in 42 and returning in 39. She was also second in low net with 81-3, 78, but took the gross award. Mrs. Meckley used her new clubs to advantage from tee to green, playing near-perfect golf, but had several lapses on the green that cost a sub-80 score. Twice she tapped putts carelessly just inches away and missed.

The round was the second lowest Mrs. Medley has ever scored, having topped it in a course-record breaking spree in Richmond several years ago. It was also her second local victory, having won the President's Plate.

Mrs. G. E. Stratemeyer, one of Columbia Country Clubs most improved golfers, won second low net in a draw from Mrs. Stuart Smith, unattached. Mrs. Stratemeyer was out in 43 and had a good chance to lock up the title, but was back in 50 for a 93. She subtracted a 14 handicap for a 79. Mrs. Smith had consistent nines of 48-49, 97 and an 18 handicap for 79. Mrs. Mack Myers, Manor, and Mrs. W. A. Copthorne, Army and Navy, missed the tie by a stroke.

Only five players in the field of 120 were under the 80 mark, Mrs. Bishop Hill, Chevy Chase, scoring an 86 and Manor's top duo of Marion Brown and Mrs. L. G. Pray tying at 89.

On Fishing

Last year, but only for a short period, the St. Marys River in the Big Levels Wildlife Management Area, Augusta County, Virginia, was opened to trout fishermen. Several local anglers tried it out, and in spite of extremely low water at the time had a swell time and caught some fine fish.

ACKERMAN

We have just received a notice that it will be open again this year for fishing, from April 20 to May 20. Those wishing to fish will be required to have the regular State license and the National Forest Stamp, both of which are procured from the same county clerk. In addition, all fishermen will be furnished with a stream permit by an attendant on the stream, which explains the conditions under which the water may be fished.

Barbed hooks may only be used with artificial lures, and the size limits of six inches for brook trout and seven inches for rainbows will be rigidly enforced, with no allowance made for shrinkage. The creel limit is 10 per day. All fish will be measured by a stream attendant, who will save one stomach from each catch. The latter to study feeding habits, and the measurment for growth data. This is possible because every fish released in the St. Marys in recent years has been marked so that their age is known.

This might seem like considerable red tape to some, but your full co-operation will mean more and better stream fishing in the waters of the George Washington National Forest. It is done to determine results from planting according to tables for general use, the actual catch in pounds per acre of stream, and fundamental principles for efficient management of streams in the Forest area.

In accepting permission to fish on this stream the angler agrees to aid and assist in this work, and surrender his permit at a contact station before leaving the area.

A note from Frank Bentz saying that 500 8-to-10 inch brook and rainbow trout were released during the past week in the waters of Big Hunting Creek in the Catoctin Area at Thurmont. Subtracting the fish caught in Big Hunting during the three weeks of the open season from the heavy spring stocking, and the large carry-over from last year, plus this last planting, it looks as though this week-end would prove lucrative for those anglers trying it. With seasons now open in every surrounding state, with the single exception of West Virginia (opens on April 29), there is little likelihood any Saturday or Sunday will see the large crowds of the past three.

The 1,200 quarts of yellow perch spawn gathered by the Maryland Fish and Game Commission during the spring run in the Severn have been hatched and released in Marley Creek, Furnace Branch, Cornfield Creek and Ross Cove in Anne Arundal County. In Calvert County, the streams stocked with this fine game fish were Lyons, Hunting, Battle and St. Leonard's Creeks, as well as the Great Patuxent.

The Washington Chapter of Ike Waltons are starting their noon get-togethers on Monday, in the Viking Room of the new Neptune Grill in the Earle Building. Although Monday will be the only day for these fishy confabs for the present, there is little doubt but what it will be an every-day proposition in the very near future. The only requirements for the use of this room set aside solely for anglers, is the urge to meet and talk with fellow fishermen.

Red Ruffing Blanks Bosox as Yankees Score 2-0 Victory

Bill Dickey, Jake Powell Star at Bat

Lefty Grove Beaten In Mound Duel; Dickey's Home Run Powell's Triple Help

By Bob Considine.

New York, April 20.—The seven also-ran ball clubs of the American League, who have been hoping all winter and spring that the New York Yankees would cool off, might just as well wish for something else.

For the champs came out in the open today for the first time this season, after thrice being stopped by the weather man. They beat gray-haired old Mose Grove and his Boston Red Sox, 2-0, and they won it in the typical Yankee style, with a home run and a whistling triple.

First Time at Bat

It was Dickey's first 1939 appearance at the plate, and with a count of one-and-one he coolly picked out one of Grove's revitalized curves and walloped it into the right field stands. It was enough to win the ball game, for Red Ruffing was in a shut-out mood.

But to make things a little safer, Jake Powell came along in the fifth inning with a triple off the rightfield wall to score Red Rolfe, who had punched one through the delicately bowed legs of Jimmy Foxx, a moment before.

Ruffing, the 35-year-old veteran who led the American League in victories last season, gave up seven hits, including doubles by Boston's fine young rookies, Ted Williams and Jim Tabor. But Boston never really threatened him. Four of the seven hits came after two men were out and the bases were empty. Ruffing held Foxx, last year's batting champion, hitless. Joe Cronin also went without a hit.

3 Hits for Powell

Grove held the Yankees to seven hits, also, but they were Yankee hits, and Cronin and Foxx kicked a couple of grounders at inopportune times. The 39-year-old left-paw had to work from start to finish, while Ruffing could loaf from time to time. Grove was pestered particularly by Jake Powell, who, fighting for a regular place on the over-talented Yankee team, banged out two singles in addition to his run-scoring triple.

Joe DiMaggio came through with a line drive single, to start the season, and Lou Gehrig—after being given a big ovation by the crowd of 30,278 when he stepped on the field to start his 2,123d consecutive game—hit into a brace of double plays.

Arlington Hall Horse Show Opens With Student Classes

Junior College's Fourth Annual Event Will Continue Tomorrow With Hunter Champions

There will be competition aplenty at Arlington Hall Junior College's fourth annual horse show, which swings into action today with student classes and comes to a climax tomorrow when more than 60 horses battle it out for the hunter and open jumping championships.

The Arlington show ring, located 5 minutes from Memorial Bridge, on Lee boulevard, boasts of the finest outdoor course ever constructed locally. It proved to be a real test yesterday when Fort Myer's horse show team brought out 17 hunters and open jumpers to school for Saturday's classes.

Spectators, in addition to witnessing performances by the upper crust of horse society, will be given a chance to win a clubhouse pass to Pimlico's spring racing fixture, for which there will be a drawing Saturday afternoon.

A last-minute feature to the program is a class which Manager Fritz Kleemann calls the Kismet jumping class, in honor of his recently retired 32-year-old open jumper. Fences will include a stiff triple bar on one side of the ring and an in-and-out on the other, all set at 4 feet and to be raised in the event of a tie.

Today's classes will be devoted mainly to horsemanship events for riders from Gunston Hall, Warrenton Country Day School, McDonough School for Boys, Landon, and the host college. The first class is scheduled for 1 o'clock.

Navy Crews Meet Tigers On Saturday

Jayvees and Varsity Crews Will Be Host To Princeton

Annapolis, Md., April 20.—Rowing against a lusty Princeton crew over a course of a mile and three quarters on the Severn Saturday afternoon, the Navy hopes to start in the right direction for another victory in the Poughkeepsie Regatta on June 17.

The race will be for varsity and junior varsity crews. The jayvees will get under way at 4:30 and the senior eights will get their starting shot a half hour later.

The Princeton squad will reach Annapolis tomorrow in time for a good practice in the afternoon for both crews, and the visitors also expect to loosen up in their shells for a short time Saturday morning.

Walsh expressed himself as much pleased with the work of Tom Walker, who was shifted from No. 2 to stroke when Hank Vaughan became ineligible. "Walker is doing fine," the Navy mentor said.

Had Vaughan been able to stay in the varsity boat, the average weight of the Navy varsity would have been about as much as Princeton's, which is 181½ pounds. By the shift, which landed 170-pound Sheldon Kinner at No. 2, however, the Navy's average was reduced to 178⅞ pounds.

The boating of the crews will be: Varsity, Princeton—Bow, Koenig; 2, Allen; 3, Merle-Smith; 4, Denniger; 5, Bayard; 6, Pitney (captain); 7, Bennett; stroke, Penninger; coxswain, Dalzell.

Navy—Bow, Peters; 2, Kinney; 3, Kittler (captain); 4, Lucian; 5, House; 6, Spear; 7, Almgren; stroke, Walker; coxswain, Hancock.

Junior varsity, Princeton—Bow, Rogers; 2, Robinson; 3, Burke; 4, West; 5, Carton; 6, Mahlow; 7, Petersen; stroke, Dale; coxswain, Kafer.

Billy Banks Signed For Bout Here Monday

Silva battles Al Reid, of New York, in the feature 10-round bout, which is expected to equal the recent Galianto-Silva match for action. The winner has been promised the usual outdoor spot when ations at Griffith Stadium.

Judge, Shipley Are Undecided On Pitchers

Terp and Hoya Coaches Refuse to Announce Hurlers for Game

By Jack Munhall.

Pilfering a page from Connie Mack's lengthy book of baseball, Coaches Joe Judge, of Georgetown, and Burt Shipley, of Maryland, yesterday were reluctant to commit themselves to a definite pitching choice for the Hoya-Terp battle at the Hilltop tomorrow.

While everyone else is absolutely certain that it'll be Vinnie Powers, the swashbuckling sophomore right-hander for Georgetown, and lean Lefty Springer, the clever curveball ace for Maryland, the coaches are still undecided.

"It may be Powers," Judge was saying yesterday, "and then again it may not. Have a sort of hunch on this kid, Johnny Smith. And you know in this business it doesn't pay to overlook one of those unexplainable urges."

Shipley Indefinite

Mr. Shipley is equally as indefinite. But at least the cherub little Maryland mentor has concrete reasons.

"It's Springer if the day is warm, and Pershing Mondorff otherwise," Shipley stated last night.

Just why Springer's deadly southpaw wing could not be exposed to the chill, Shipley didn't explain. It is thought, however, that he is unwilling to take a chance with the arm of his only real effective pitcher, even if the issue at stake is as important as the traditional game with Georgetown. Once before this season Shipley refused to pitch Springer in an important game because the weather was cold. That was against V. M. I., a leading Southern Conference rival, which beat the Terps, 4-3.

According to Judge it doesn't make a whole lot of difference which Georgetown pitcher starts against Maryland because they might all be in there before the game is finished.

Taking No Chances

"I'm taking no chances with this game," he said, "and as soon as my pitcher shows the slightest sign of weakening, I'm going to yank him. I believe the way to beat this Maryland club is to get the jump on 'em, and that's what I intend to do. Even if I use three pitchers in the first inning."

If a relief man is needed for Georgetown in all probability it will be Long William Wixted, the 6-foot 5-inch righthanded sophomore who is developing into quite a young moundsman.

Should Mondorff start and fail to finish for Maryland his successor likely will be Charlie Weidinger, the chunky righthander, who is well remembered by the Georgetown football team.

Favored by good weather and a dry field for the first time in several days, the Georgetown and Maryland squads tumbled outdoors yesterday to put the last glossy touches on their conditioning. With the diamonds still dangerously soggy, both teams took it easy, concentrating on batting practice and fly shagging by the outfielders.

Terp Athletes Await Busy Sports Week-End

While the baseball team is visiting at Georgetown Saturday two other Maryland athletic squads face opposition at College Park in another of the lacrosse and track doubleheaders.

The undefeated Terrapin lacrosse ten will meet the equally unspanked Rutgers University at 2 o'clock. Starting at 1:30 the Terp cinder artists, who also happen to be unbeaten outdoors this season, run against V. M. I. in a return meet. The Old Liners whipped the Cadets at Lexington recently.

Baltimore Bows, 10-4, Before 6-Run Reluge In Sixth Inning

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Md., April 20.—The Montreal Royals bunched their 11 hits to ruin the Orioles' opener with a 10-4 victory before 9,000 fans today. A six-run sixth inning put the game on ice for the visitors.

The flock rapped Kemp Wicker for 13 hits, Red Howell leading the attack with a homer, double and single, but 13 men were stranded on bases.

Art Parks led the Royal attack with a triple and two singles and Bert Haas was close behind with a homer and a double. The Orioles' Jack Tising was the sixth-inning victim. He was followed to the mound by Randy Gumpert and Ed Vogel.

Bees Sweep Phil Series, Winning, 2-0

Lou Fette Allows 3 Hits to Philadelphia In Finale of Set

By the Associated Press.

Boston, April 20.—The Philadelphia Phillies, playing as if they were in their annual midseason slump, made only three hits off Lou Fette today as the Boston Bees chalked up a 2-to-0 shutout and a sweep of the two-game series that opened the National League campaign here.

Fette, in top form, gave up nothing longer than a single, and only First Baseman Les Powers was able to go as far as third base. He singled in the ninth, went to second on an infield-out and took third on Fette's wild pitch, but he died there as the Bees' big right-hander retired the side.

Meanwhile, the Bees put the game away in the seventh. Eddie Miller's long single off the leftfield bleacher fence scored Al Simmons, who had singled and reached second on Cuccinello's bunt. Sylvester Johnson was pitching for Philadelphia at the time, but was removed at the start of the next inning for a pinch-hitter.

The Brighter Side

By Damon Runyon

Down in Dade County, Florida, us cash customers of the movies have a wonderful friend. He is the doorman at one of the leading cinema emporiums and he always makes it a point to get a peak at the first showing of a new picture.

RUNYON

Then when his cash customers come along later, he gives us the tip-off on the picture in well understood pantomime. If it is a so-so picture, he just purses up his lips. If he spreads his hand, palm upward, that means he is not quite decided in his own mind and that you may possibly fancy the presentation.

If it is an out-and-out bad 'un, he makes a gesture as if holding his nose, and it is a pretty good idea to heed this warning, unless, of course, it is your crooked-faro-bank night. You know the old story, often repeated right here in this column, about the fellow who was entering a joint where a faro bank game was in progress, when a friend halted him and said:

Well, down in Dade County that is what some of us cash customers call a picture that we know is bad, but which is the only one in town we have not seen. The way we feel about the movies is we would rather see a bad picture than none at all.

Big Asset to Theater

To get back to our doorman friend. When we see him all a-gallop along the sidewalk in front of the theater, bawling at the top of his voice, we do not need his reassuring nod and smile to know that they have a great picture. That is the only time he shows any enthusiasm.

His pantomime is a great convenience to us cash customers down in Dade County, because all we have to do, if in a car, is to stop in the middle of the street in front of the theater and give him a hail. He passes the verdict on to us in his pantomime at long distance and saves the bother of parking.

Some might argue that a fellow like that is a knock to business, but on the contrary he is a big asset to the theater. He knows that we have got to come back there anyway on crooked-faro-bank night, so the theater is not going to lose our admission fee, and in the meantime he has created a bond of affection and trust between us cash customers and the theater by his frankness.

He could lure us in any evening with a nod even to a bad picture, but after a couple of deceptions of that nature we would become wary, and perhaps shun the premises entirely as a house of fraud. When we enter against his nose-holding, it is at our own risk, and we cannot charge the management, the picture or anything else with bad faith, or responsibility.

There used to be a fellow like that employed as a doorman in front of one of the New York movie houses, but the trouble with him was he was not as good a judge of pictures as our Dade County friend. He thought they were all swell, and that way he undermined public confidence, not only in himself, but in the theater as well. Then there was another doorman in New York who thought all pictures were bad, so he was not much account to the customers or the theater, either.

We saw Mr. Sam Goldwyn's production of "Wuthering Heights" recently, and we think that is a good picture. We especially liked the production. We also liked the job those boys, Charley MacArthur and Ben Hecht, did on the script. It must have been a tough story to whip into picture shape.

Mr. Olivier, an English actor, and Miss Oberon, who are the stars of "Wuthering Heights," are real good, though Miss Oberon is not the type we like to see die. As a matter of fact, she is not a high-class die-er, and very few actresses are. It takes Miss Garbo to die in a picture. In our opinion Miss Garbo can out-die any other living performer, and take less time about it, too.

Likes the Production

We saw "Dodge City," too, and it is good entertainment, only we are greatly disturbed by the thought of the probable restlessness of the spirits of Mr. William Hickok, called "Wild Bill," and Mr. Bat Masterson, who they learn that a chap with a broad "A" lurking in his accent is playing the part of the Marshal of Dodge. If the Warner boys hear any loose tappings on their window panes o' nights that may be the ghosts of Bill and Bat haunting 'em.

At that, we thought Mr. Erroll Flynn turned in a neat job, everything considered. He is a good movie actor. The only thing is us cash customers are getting a little bilious on those western epics with a railroad train always outrunning a stage coach and all that sort of business. We hope the next one will show a stage coach making a sucker of a railroad train, if only for the sake of novelty.

V.M.I. Frosh Win Over Gobblets, 8-6

Lexington, Va., April 20.—V. M. I. Freshmen ball players opened their season on Alumni Field today by defeating Virginia Tech yearlings, 8 to 6. Ralph Jones, Cadet firstbaseman, with a double and two singles in three times up, led the hitters.

Two-baggers by Wray, Catlett and Dorrier, combined with Tech errors, figured in the scoring. V. M. I. added a pair of runs in the seventh on three errors and Jones' two-base hit.

Alms Comes From Last Place to Take Havre de Grace Race

Stevenson's Mount Wins Going Away

Circles Field After Poor Start; Victor Pays $6.90 Ticket; 8,000 Attend Sport

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Havre De Grace, Md., April 20.—Alms, short on name and long on running ability, came from last to be first in the six furlong race that was the best offering on today's program. In doing so, the daughter of St. Brideaux and Bonus made it three victories on the card for Jockey Charlie Stevenson and Trainer Tony Pelleteri. The New Orleans horseman previously had saddled two Millsdale Stable winners.

Performing in a manner that probably will earn her a place in the lineup for Saturday's Chesapeake Stakes, Alms circled her company to win going away in imposing fashion. Jockey Stevenson rode with uttermost confidence aboard the filly that finished second to Day Off in the Louisiana Derby at New Orleans last winter. He allowed her to settle into her best stride, guided her wide while she gathered momentum. In the early stretch he quickened his riding and Alms disposed of Refreshment to go to the top to stay.

Despite the success of the Pelleteri horses in previous races, Alms paid a healthy $6.90 mutuel. Her time was a dull 1:18 1-5 due to the fact that the track was in the worst condition in years. With the Nats-Macks game a counter attraction in nearby Philadelphia, a good crowd of 8,000 was on hand.

Press Time Wins

With most of the scribes looking out of the window, Press Time, a first-time starter from the Brandywine Stable, outphotographed Pompe Grande, a 47-1 proposition, to win the first race at a $13.50 mutuel. Millchic was a smug third with Sealoch fourth and blocked by the front running horses in the skirmish going into the wire. Jockey Maurice Peters urged Press Time to shake off the well-regarded Satin Rolls on the bend but had to put him to the whip to hold Pompe Grande safe.

A ring went around a $40.90 daily double pay-off when Bold Fay, $4.40 favorite from the Millsdale Stable won the second race by a daylight margin over Barraca, one of the longest shots in the field of nine. Third money went to Bob Junior. Dinamita set the early pace with Bold Fay close. Entering the stretch, Barraca sneaked through on the inside to get to the front and Dinamita stopped. It was not until the closing eighth that Jockey Stevenson applied the whip to the Bull Dog filly and she won drawing out. Her time for the 6 furlongs was an awful 1:19 2-5.

Dog Flower, another representative of the Millsdale Stable, took the third race and again Jockey Stevenson did the pushing. The daughter of Bull Dog, romped along ahead and was put to a drive only in the closing stages. Perlette was second and Brass Bottle was third. Away from the races since last year at Laurel, Dog Flower paid $7.70 in the 6 furlongs test.

Horses to Watch At Havre de Grace

RISSA—Should have won last, was nipped at the wire by DRIFT ALONG. Has since worked three-eighths in 0:37 3-5.

PIMLICO QUEEN—Retains all her Bowie form and should be dangerous first out here.

BUSY K—Has been going great guns in the mornings and will whip some high-class horses before many days.

CHAPS—This one sent out a warning to all handicap horses by working a mile in 1:45 2-5. Will beat the best.

VOLITANT—The Saratoga Stable 3-year-old went a mile in 1:46 2-5 in preparation for the Chesapeake. Will be worth a wager.

PRESS TIME, rushed to front of SATIN ROLLS in opening furlong, took command and came again under intermittent punishment after losing lead between calls in final sixteenth. POMPE GRANDE went to outside for racing room while improving position entering stretch, responded to punishment to take lead and fought it out willingly. MILLCHIC was keen forward contender from break and closed willingly. SEALOCH lacked early speed, moved up sharply entering stretch, but was blocked and lacked racing room in closing test. UPDO made up some ground from slow beginning. SATIN ROLLS was through early. MISS TRIM had early speed.

BOLD FAY, off alertly and steadied along behind the pace of DINAMITA, continued to be rated when BARRACA took command in early stretch, responded when shaken up and won going away. BARRACA, sluggish in opening furlongs, moved up boldly along rail to get to front and continued willingly, but could not resist winner. BOB JUNIOR saved ground and hung in final drive. DINAMITA set pace under hustling tactics and weakened gradually when caught. FLAG ETTA had early speed. WALLI could not keep up.

PERLETTE, off well, was forward factor on outside, but hung when placed to hard drive in final eighth. BRASS BOTTLE slow to begin, saved ground along rail and was held safe. DIZZY DAME had speed in spots. BOSTON MARY moved up approaching stretch and tired. FRENCH BREAD weakened under hustling tactics. LITTLE DRIFT could not keep up.

ALME, not hurried at start and allowed to settle into best stride while a trailer, came far around field to gain steadily and under drive, was up to win opening a gap. REFRESHMENT went up to displace SUZANNE PECK as pacemaker, drew clear and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. AIRACUDA lacked early speed, improved position steadily and closed full of run. SUZANNE PECK took early lead and weakened gradually when caught. MISS HAPPY was hard ridden and weakened in closing test. BLAZEAROUND closed some ground. EVENING LIGHT raced on inside and stopped after moving up menacingly. SPEED SHIP had speed for three furlongs and tired suddenly.

TANGANYIKA, last away and not hurried in opening half, saved ground while improving position steadily swinging for stretch and withstood punishing drive to win going away. MYSTIC ISLE set good pace under rating, but could not resist the winner while punished. CACKLE TIME came with good energy in closing stages. BEACON ROCK weakened in stretch drive. HELEN'S LAD unseated rider and ran away for three quarters, but was forward factor for six furlongs and weakened when placed to punishment. GEODESIAN was pulled up when outclassed.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANN MOWLEE, $11.50, $5.40, $4.00; SCORIA, $7.30, $4.90; MAEWHISK, $4.70.

ANN MOWLEE, rushed to contention going to first turn, moved up to press early pace of WALONDY, took slight lead over MAEWHISK and drew out gradually under pressure in closing 50 yards. SCORIA lacked early speed, improved position readily when placed to drive and closed with good courage. MAEWHISK was keen forward factor from break and weakened slightly in closing test. CHARLES F. was allowed to lag for half, gained sharply between horses and closed with rush. PINE TAG was not a serious factor. NAMACUB went forwardly on outside to stretch and tired. SISTER REIGH stumbled leaving gate.

BALAPIN, well placed from start, worked his way to LADY DEMOCRAT when hard urged, took command inside eighth pole and was opening a gap at the end. LADY DEMOCRAT, sent to front under hustling tactics going to first turn, drew out to long lead, but weakened in stretch run. ROWE'S CRUMP, allowed to settle into stride, began improving position on outside leaving backstretch, and closed gamely. MARIATO had speed in spots and weakened at finish. MAEFLEET tired. CHIMNEY TOP was well placed for half and tired badly. DUNRITA had early foot. ABBOT'S LAST was through early.

Bierman Will Ride Ciencia in Preakness

New York, April 20 (AP).—Jockey Carroll Bierman, the 21-year-old jockey from Centralia, Ill., who rode King Ranch's Ciencia to a five-length victory in the Santa Anita Derby, will have the leg up on the cohort filly again in the Preakness at Pimlico May 13. He wired Trainer Max Hirsch his acceptance of the mount today.

Opelika Will Miss Derby and Preakness

Lexington, Ky., April 20 (AP).—Opelika, J. Cal Milam's Kentucky Derby and Preakness candidate, was declared out of both races today because of an injury suffered before a race at Keeneland Tuesday.

The colt was said to have struck his knee against the starting gate while awaiting the start of a race, broke late and finished sixth in a field of ten.

Selections at Havre de Grace

Dear Al:

This morning's lesson opens with a subject that probably will start a lot of arguments. M. H. writes to ask me the five best sprinters. He lists his as Star Porter, Billy Kelly, Sation, Balko and Airflame. I agree with him in three instances. Billy Kelly, Sation and Balko certainly belong on any sprint line-up—in our day, at least. There will be old-timers who will send me a list a half-mile long without naming these. However, their time, granting that tracks have been improved, is in the record books and their speed as well as weight—carrying ability can not be denied. I can't go for either Star Porter or Airflame. These were and are fair sprinters, but they hardly belong in the top all-time ranking. I talked to track veterans this morning and the consensus is that Roseben was the best. They told me this fellow was in his prime around 1906 and that he once won with 146 pounds. The record book shows he toted 126 and ran 7 furlongs in 1:22, which is traveling. For the fifth position, theres' Clang, world record holder for three quarters of 109 I-5; Snark (also a distance horse), with his mark of 1:15 4-5 for 6½ furlongs; Artful, credited with 1:08 for 6 furlongs on a straightaway. However, I'm going to fake Myrtle Wood. I believe the fair sex needs representation. She could step with any of them and carry weight, too. But despite the fact that they don't belong with the real greats, my favorite sprinters were Care Free and Tippity Witchet—at Bowie. To W. M. H.—That "out" in the Jamaica results means that there was no betting on the horse in that position. To Helen L.—The Racing Form representatives at this track are George Snow and Mickey McGuire. On the early train this morning were Clark Griffith, Charlie O'Connell, Billy Smith, Howard Ortell and Henry Rodier—they went right back by the track, however, and continued on to Philadelphia for the ball game—the sissies. BILL.

First race—Idle Elf dead heated with Goldman in his last outing at Bowie, and after several consistent races this spring is back in top form. Should beat these cheap ones. James Pal couldn't threaten behind Goldman in a later race, but getz a good figure. Exhort had speed in route races in Florida, may get up.

Second race—Mattapony finished fourth to Apprehend Wednesday, but figures to turn the tables on the latter today. The former received much interference in the stretch in that heat and there is a 5-pound weight shift in his favor. Apprehend will be his chief rival. Carnarvon has class; made need this race.

Third race—Part One and Fictitious, the two chief contenders in this heat, finished second and fourth respectively when they met last fall. They are both making their initial start of the season and figure to finish in the above order today Anticosti should take care of the others if he runs his race.

Fourth race—Dark Watch was easily best of high grade platers in his only start of the meeting. He performed well with stake horses last year, is fit and should win. Superstition has shown creditable efforts in sprints and will be the one to catch. Many Flags for show.

Fifth race—Trina was second to White Sand at Bowie after setting most of the pace. She meets cheaper competition in this heat and figures to win. Sun Victor showed stretch running ability when sprinting at Bowie, and will be dangerous. Careful Miss can better her poor recent effort.

Sixth race—Nancy Moe and Albert D. receive an equal rating off their last heat, but the top horse switches from Dupuy to Seabo in this race, which gives him a slight edge over the latter. Albert D. was a winner at Bowie and is in good form. Braving Danger may win, but carries plenty of weight.

Seventh race—Popo displayed speed in recent races and has been consistently in the money. He is beginning to find himself and should have little trouble whipping these cheap ones. Rebel Yell has shown good efforts on muddy tracks; may go well here. Mon Doit was in good form at Bowie; may be trailing off.

Best bet—Trina.

Home Loans In February Hit New Peak

Gain 17 Per Cent Over Corresponding 1938 Month

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Maintaining the year's margin of gain above 1938, savings, building and loan associations in February loaned 17 per cent more dollars to American families than they did 12 months before, members of the D. C. Building and Loan League are informed by the United States Building and Loan League, which indicates that this $58,306,000 of loans not only represented a seasonal rise of 5 per cent over January, but also was above all previous Februaries since the depression began.

Morton Bodfish, Chicago, executive vice president of the league, comments that a larger volume of the total was placed to help people acquire new homes, both by building and purchase, than has characterized other Februaries. The division this year was $35,145,000 to buyers and builders, and $23,163,000 to remodellers and modernizers and to all other borrowers on property already owned.

"Savings and loan associations have been supplying an average of $12,000,000 a month for the refinancing of existing mortgages ever since September, and from $3,500,000 to $5,000,000 for modernization and repairs each of the past five or six months," said the league official.

"Changes in the total volume of loans by associations from month to month are mainly due to the expansion of credit for home purchase and building, and February made its good showing especially because of $1,500,000 increase over January in purchase loans. Construction loans were about the same level for the two months, whereas a year ago there was a $1,000,000 decrease from January to February."

States in which more than $1,000,000 was loaned by the thrift and home financing institutions for home purchase include Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and California, while those in which more than $1,000,000 was advanced for new construction include New York, Ohio and California. The most spectacular gain from January to February in total volume of loans was in the Indiana-Michigan district, and the Minnesota-Iowa-Missouri-Dakota district which together accounted for 11 per cent of the entire country's gain in February loans over January.

Utilities Lead SEC Registrations With 64.4% of Total

During March a total of $86,286,000 of securities registered under the securities act of 1933 became fully effective, bringing effective registrations for the first three months of 1939 to $250,696,000, according to an analysis prepared by the research and statistics section of the trading and exchange division.

Almost two-thirds of securities proposed for sale by issuers in the first three months of 1939 were issued by electric and gas utility companies, the actual amount being $139,031,000, or 64.4 per cent of the total. Second in importance were manufacturing companies, with $44,593,000, or 20.7 per cent of the total, followed by financial and investment companies with $28,193,000, or 13.1 per cent of the total. In the initial quarter of 1938 the distribution by industry groups was quite different, financial and investment companies leading with 53.9 per cent of the total, while utility companies accounted for 39.0 per cent and manufacturing companies for only 3.4 per cent of the total.

Of the securities fully effective in March, $62,280,000 was proposed for sale by issuers, as compared with $16,360,000 in February, 1939, and $63,803,000 in March, 1938. The $215,780,000 of securities proposed for sale by issuers in the first quarter of 1939 compared with $707,089,000 in the final quarter of 1938 and $274,329,000 in the first quarter of 1938.

Wheat Steady With Increased Export Sales

European Buying Totals 6,000,000 Bu. In Past Week

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 20.—Although European importing nations bought even larger quantities of wheat today, world markets remained placid, with prices only slightly higher.

Speculators still were on the sidelines, scanning European political and trade developments, but otherwise exhibiting little or no nervousness over wheat supplies. Purchases of more than 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian, Australian and Argentine wheat by foreign importers, mostly British, increased the week's volume of grain sold by exporters to more than 6,000,000 bushels.

There was evidence that much of this wheat was bought to replenish European emergency stocks with dealers and bakers in Great Britain and Belgium, requested to maintain an increased level of reserves.

Wheat prices here rose as much as ⅝ cent at times, but could not maintain the full advance. Strength in securities and the unsettled Liverpool close, with cable reports indicating Mussolini's speech was favorably received in financial circles, some liquidation.

Wheat, corn and oats closed with prices ranging from unchanged to ¾ cent higher, compared with yesterday's finish. May wheat was 69⅝@69¼; July, 68¼@68⅛; and May corn was 49½, July 50¾. Rye finished ¼ higher, while lard was 9 cents higher.

Anthracite Mines Increase Output

Harrisburg, Pa., April 20 (AP).—Pennsylvania's anthracite production committee decided today to increase hard coal production by operating mines five—and possibly six—days this week. A three-day work week—later increased to four—was adopted for the industry at Gov. Arthur H. James' suggestion several weeks ago. It was designed to move reserve stocks.

John Ira Thomas, secretary of mines and chairman of the committee, said: "It was found that this demand was not brought about to any great extent by the suspension of bituminous mining operations. It was also further anticipated that the five-day schedule could be continued the balance of the month with the probability of full time."

Copper Producer Cuts Price ¼ to 10¼c

New York, April 20 (AP).—A leading custom smelter today lowered the price of domestic copper to 10¼ cents a pound, carrying the quotation back to where it was last September 14.

The new price is ¼-cent reduction from that established late Wednesday when major producers sold metal at 10½ cents after a split price of 10½ to 10¾ cents had been in effect since April 12. At that time smelting interests lowered to 10½ cents, but producers did not follow until yesterday.

20-Month Cotton Supply

Even if no cotton were grown in this country for 20 months, statisticians here estimate, the present surplus of 11,000,000 bales in warehouses of the Commodity Credit Corporation would be sufficient during the period to supply the entire requirements of domestic textile operators at the present rate of consumption.

Prices Edge Higher as War Fears For Europe Diminish; Italian Issues Feature Bond Trading

New York, April 20.—World markets took kindly to Premier Mussolini's speech in which he rejected President Roosevelt's appeal for ten years of peace and to the display surrounding the celebration of Hitler's birthday for in neither event was any mention made of blowing any other nation to bits. In present-day diplomatic circles, such an omission amounts virtually to an oath of undying love and affection.

Consequently those who are hoping to protect their investments from the havoc of war, to say nothing of their lives, took heart and prices edged higher. London and Amsterdam were even more favorably impressed than New York traders and in those two important financial centers the gains were correspondingly greater, amounting to 8 to 12 points in the leading Dutch issues.

Market Dull

Our own stocks market continued dull, only 516,258 shares changing hands on the big board. The composite average closed up 0.41 point with steels, motors and rails in the van and gains of one to more than two points in a number of the speculative favorites. Chrysler led the list in point of activity and closed up two points. General Motors and United States Rubber added good fractions, as did Steel and Bethlehem. Standard of New Jersey, up more than a point, led the petroleum section and Bendix was active, but little changed, in the aviation division. Of the 640 issues dealt in, 417 showed plus signs at the close.

Foreign News Dominates

Foreign rather than domestic news still was the dominating influence and the fact that there was no trouble surrounding either the Mussolini reply or the Nazi celebration spread some welcome relief. The fact that Roosevelt's plea was turned down was no surprise and Mussolini's statement that Italy does not intend to attack anyone, although it follows closely on the heels of the Albanian conquest and rings a bit like our Administration's "be good to business" pledges, was considered to be conciliatory.

Domestic Picture Brighten

In domestic affairs the trend of business continues downward but the last day or two has brought forth items of a more favorable nature. There has been a slight firming in commodity prices. The weekly car loading report today showed 547,816 cars loaded for the week ended last Saturday, a gain of 12,346 cars or 2.3 per cent over the preceding week. A major part of the improvement was in coal loadings, which were off sharply the preceding week on account of the strike. Engineering construction, according to the Engineering News-Record compilation, are 37 per cent ahead of a year ago although the week ended April 20 showed a 33 per cent slump from the previous week. For five consecutive weeks the total, in dollar value, has exceeded the corresponding 1938 week.

Copper Price Cut

Copper prices softened again today, reflecting the increase in supplies and the demand in the domestic market, which is below production. The new price set by custom smelters today is 10¼ cents a pound, off ¼ cent. This is the lowest quotation since last September 17. Securities of the metal companies held firm today, however, and there was good demand for international nickel. This illustrated again the ability of our punch-drunk stock market to take bad news in its stride.

Leaders Up 1 to 2 Points

Gains of 1 to more than 2 points were made by such leaders as Allied Chemical, American Can, Du Pont, Kodak, Manville and Union Pacific. Consolidated Edison was well supported as were General Electric, Socony, Pennsylvania, Goodyear and Greyhound.

Bond Trading Dull

Listed bond price changes again were small in a further dull session today, but the tone was favorable to holders. Small fractional advances were the rule both among high grade investment issues, and the more speculative varieties of senior securities. Foreign dollar issues did better than domestic obligations, on the slow diminution of war fears. Trading totaled only $4,820,000.

Treasury Issues Advance

Long term United States Treasury obligations showed small fractional gains, but they sufficed to produce a few fresh highs. The guaranteed bonds also were in mild request. Fractions likewise were added to the quotations of best grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds, most of which are again virtually at their highs.

Railroad Liens Rise

Speculative railroad bonds disclosed a long list of modest advances, with occasional gains of a point or more also in evidence. Default carrier bonds shared in the upswing. In the local traction group Interborough issues drifted downward, but B. M. T. and Manhattan bonds were steady. Share privilege obligations were marked a little higher, and some demand was noted for communications and other special groups.

Italian Bonds Jump

Italian bonds jumped in the foreign division on the pacific speech by Mussolini, and Germans also improved. Belgian issues did well, but Scandinavians continued to reflect some uncertainity. Buyings of Australians was resumed, probably for London account. Among Latin-Americans the best performances were given by Brazilians and Colombians.

Spot Cotton Drops 1 to 4 Points With Liquidation

New York, April 20 (AP).—The May cotton delivery held the market spotlight again today. Prices dropped 1 to 4 points as liquidation and evening up continued in the spot month but the undertone was steady.

The open interest in May at the close Wednesday was slightly less than 300,000 bales and first notice day is only three days off, but the market absorbed selling in orderly fashion and longs were not anxious sellers. Bombay disposed of limited quantities.

Support came mainly through trade buying, covering by shorts and some New Orleans demand. News that Washington was considering an export subsidy plan and processing taxes contributed to a little uneasiness around the ring during the day.

Copper Producers Meet Cut to 10½c

New York, April 20 (AP).—All leading copper producers today met the new price of 10½ cents a pound for domestic metal which was posted by a prominent smelter a week ago. Late yesterday the first break in the prdoucing ranks occurred when Calumet & Hecla lowered its selling price from the 10¾ cents producers had been asking to 10½ cents.

The uniform 10½ cent quotation of today establishes domestic copper at the same level prevailing last October 5, from which point there was a gradual rise to a high of 11¼

New District Mental Health Plan Sought

Vreeland Will Urge Speedier Procedure to Replace Commission

Legislation designed to abolish the year-old Commission on Mental Health and to substitute a procedure in operation in most Eastern cities is being drafted at the behest of local social welfare workers, it was learned yesterday.

The measure will be introduced by Representative Vreeland (Republican), of New Jersey, a member of the House District Committee.

Gallinger Situation Cited

Complaints were made recently before the House sub-committee on District appropriations that part of the overcrowding at Gallinger Hospital was due to the prolonged incarceration of mental patients waiting to be adjudged insane before being transferred to St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Vreeland's measure provides for examination of suspected insane persons by the chief psychiatrist of Gallinger and two physicians from St. Elizabeths. If found insane, the patient then would be confined for a 30-day period to St. Elizabeths while opportunity is given for a court hearing, with or without a jury, as the patient or his relatives may wish.

This procedure, Vreeland explained, would permit the transfer of mental patients from Gallinger to St. Elizabeths within a few hours after their apprehension.

Seek Shorter Wait

The Mental Health Commission itself has recommended that the waiting period after a hearing, now required by law, be reduced from 10 to 3 days, but Vreeland pointed out that a lapse of time now occurs because the commission cannot act until cases are referred to it by the District Court.

The Vreeland bill, it was explained, does not return the treatment of insane persons to the open court system which was denounced as "barbarous" prior to the establishment of the Mental Health Commission.

W. & L. High Beats Mounts By 9-4 Score

Although outhit and giving up more errors, Washington-Lee High School yesterday scored at will over Mt. Rainer High's nine in Arlington to take an easy victory, 9-4. The Arlington batters were helped along by the visitors' pitchers, who walked five men.

France, Washington-Lee centerfielder, and Senior, Mt. Rainier shortstop, shared hitting honors, each getting three hits for five trips to the plate. The Arlington nine used three pitchers, Robertson, Johnson and Olsen, who gave up 9 hits but no walks. Gardner and Bowman, Mt. Rainier pitchers, gave up eight hits. Washington-Lee scored in all but the second and eighth innings.

Washington-Lee will play Falmouth, Va., High School today at 3 p. m. on the Arlington school's diamond.

Gaithersburg Loses, 7-3, to Charlotte Hall

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leonardtown, Md., April 20.—Charlotte Hall Military Academy diamonders scored their second victory of the season here today, defeating Gaithersburg High, 7 to 3, in a seven-inning contest.

Although each team made seven hits and the hosts erred three times to the losers two, the Military Academy lads came through in the pinches and scored in every inning but one against Glova. Meanwhile Denton scattered the Gaithersburg hits and allowed but one run up to the last inning.

Jack Smith's triple was the longest blow of the day, while Kihn and Rock made two hits apiece for their respective teams.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

IT all got ironed out in conference, but for a time it looked as if Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, had hoist himself, as the saying goes, on his own petard.

The occasion was the Senate debate on the bill providing for Federal and State taxation of Government employes. As used in the bill, "Government employes" meant members of Congress and the judiciary as well, but Connally wasn't sure. In a grandstand play, to make sure that judges and national legislators' salaries were taxable, he offered an amendment to the bill, adding the last two categories to the term "government employes." The amendment passed without opposition.

The hitch was that the second half of the bill provided against retroactive taxation. Without those provisions, the Treasury would be required to collect back taxes for 12 years. Connally's amendment forgot to exempt judges and members of Congress from the retroactive provisions, although other "Government employes were protected. For a few days it looked as if the gentlemen on the Hill were going to be socked 12 years back income.

Before it was straightened out there was to be heard a good bit of bitter discussion about "Congress drafting its own laws."

Letter to The Diary: "The General Malin Craig Post, No. 20, Regular Veterans Association, after a two months' investigation, has learned that there are thousands of Federal employes in Washington who are veterans but are not affiliated with any veteran organization. To overcome any objections which may be presented, our organization proudly points out to veteran Federal employes that there prevails a spirit of good fellowship not to be found elsewhere. Cliques are taboo. Clubrooms are located at 1508 Fourteenth street northwest and are available to the membership every evening. World War, Spanish War and peace-time veterans mingle with regulars who are in the active service in a spirit of real friendliness. Members in the various departments and establishments now are accepting memberships." Signed, Harry G. Ritner, publicity officer.

From the Agriculture Exchange: "Lost: Monday, April 10, old-fashioned brooch with lady's head, draped with white scarf. Notify . . . "Ah, an axe murder, undoubtedly! Let's forget the brooch and concentrate on this head business!

The sixteenth anniversary of the formation of N. F. F. E. Treasury local Union 262 will be celebrated Monday night in Suite 604, 710 Fourteenth street northwest. The reception committee consists of Sue Inge, Mamie Lyddabe, Nellie Flather, Gertrude Chambers, Katherine Tucker, Pearl Field, Margaret Abernethey, Virginia Schaefer, Harry Scheitlein, Fred Rehm and Francis R. Ihrie.

Both the men's and women's sections of the Symphonic Choir (Agriculture Department) will accept applications for membership after the concerts April 24 and 25. Applications for membership in the women's section should be addressed to Miss Charlotte A. Thies, Weather Bureau, and for the men's section to Dr. R. S. Campbell, Forest service.

A guided spring flower walk is sponsored this Sunday, 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., by the National Park Service (National Capital Parks) in upper Rock Creek Park 0.2 mile north of Bingham Drive on Beach Drive. Donald Edward McHenry, park naturalist, will lead the walk. A special bus will leave the terminal at Fourteenth street and Colorado avenue northwest, at 9:10 a. m. for the trail and will return there at the conclusion of the outing.

Bob Burns Says—

There's nothin' like savin' up a little somethin' for the future. That trait seems to be awful strong in our family. We seem to have been born with it. When I was down home the last time, my little Cousin Orthel was in his first year at school.

He hadn't been goin' to school long when the stork brought the family a pair of twins and my uncle said to Orthel, "Son, you tell your teacher you have two new little baby sisters and she'll give you a day off from school."

Next day uncle asked Orthel if it worked, and he says, "Yep, I told the teacher I had a little baby sister and she let me come home."

And Orthel says, "Do I look silly, Paw? I'm savin' the other one for next week!"

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Hank put down the evening paper and spat into the little coal stove on which he toasted his feet. "Those durn city players," he sniffed, "they ain't near so good as they think they be. Why, Tim, you and I could lick the tar out of 'em.

"Say, they're no different from them Pomfret fellas. They's as full of wind as my Nellie cow after she's et a pasture-full of sour hay. They don't bother me none. When did you say that tournament was?"

"Next week, commencing Monday."

Up in the Big Leagues

"Entry slips get your seat assignments, everybody sit down, sit down please ssh"—. Four or five wildly gesticulating assistant tournament directors rushed about issuing commands. Hank and Tim sat down.

A crisp, military-looking figure ushered two players from the lingering group to their table.

"Messrs. Multiple-Squeeze and Backward Coup, your adversaries."

"My name's Hank Bailey." "Mine's Tim Bacus." The two farmers stretched out their hands.

Opening lead: 5 ♠

"We play the Hold-Up and Score system."

"The Hold-Up and Score system, what's that?"

Tim had opened the spade five, low was played from dummy, and Hank put on the nine, refusing to come up with his king. Declarer took with the jack and ran four diamonds. Hank threw off a heart and the spade deuce, blanking his spade king.

Multiple-Squeeze grew reckless, ran the three high clubs. Tim, realizing he should conceal the true spade situation, discarded the spade seven, having already thrown a club on a diamond. Under the club queen, Hank threw the jack, and Multiple-Squeeze let out a chortle.

"Why don't you bid your hands," he called gayly to his partner in anticipation of making the extra trick. "My opponent from the country, here, has made a spectacular discard of the club jack, but I am aware he holds the club four over my three."

Thar She Blows

It was clear from the way Multiple-Squeeze spoke, he thought Tim held the spade king. He now confidently attempted the spade finesse. Hank pounced upon the queen with his lone king and cashed the club four before any of the others realized what had taken place.

"In Windham County we call that 'Crower's Croup,'" cried that wily villain, chuckling evilly.

"What sort of a play was that?" he finally bellowed at the confused and deflated Multiple-Squeeze. "What were you doing on that hand, making mud pies?"

"Nope, he was just making one of his multiple-squeezes," shot in Hank, giving the wink to Tim, and quickly the pair slipped away.

Elizabeth's Husband-to-be Earned Title of 'Ambassador of Industry'

Members of the House of Windsor are shown in their coronation robes. The central figures are Queen Mother Mary, King George, Queen Elizabeth, Princesses Margaret Rose and Elizabeth

By Lady Cynthia Asquith

Chapter XI

It was clear that in marrying the Duke of York the young Scottish girl would find full scope for the many excellent qualities with which she was credited; for, unassuming prince though he was, he had since earliest youth been renowned for the unsparing way in which, without thought of self, he carried out whatever duties he felt called upon to undertake. Known as the "Industrial Prince" or "Our Ambassador of Industry," he had already well deserved this honorable title.

At Cambridge, where he had studied "Civics"—he had become especially interested in public hygiene and the welfare of youth. As the very active president of the Industrial Welfare Society, which has been defined as existing "to put oil instead of grit into the machinery of industry," he had always paid frequent informal visits to factories to inspect and study conditions, especially all arrangements for the welfare of the workers. Realizing that the stopping of work in any busy factory even for a very short time must involve loss to the employers, and if the employed are on piecework a drop in their day's earnings, he always tried to avoid a ceremonial visit.

Studied Labor Problems

An assiduous reader of periodicals and books on all labor questions, he had also always enjoyed talking to leaders of industry, whether employers or employed, and kept a written record of everything important that he either read or heard.

In connection with the Industrial Welfare Society he had for many years run an annual camp of about 400 boys, held in the first week of August, at New Romney, and each year he had spent several days joining in all the sports and games. This he was well qualified to do, being a fine rider, swimmer and shot. He is also excellent at golf and tennis.

There was only one year's difference in age between the then Prince of Wales and the Duke of York, and, both being destined for the navy, the two brothers were brought up side by side.

In 1909 King George VI entered Osborne at the age of 13, and followed the usual routine of a naval cadet. His war record, though well known, may be briefly repeated. At its outbreak he was serving as a midshipman on the Collingwood in the first battle squadron. In this ship he was usually addressed by his messmates as "Dr. Johnson," because he was always reading books of a serious nature.

In spite of having only just recovered from an operation for appendicitis, he took part in the Battle of Jutland, during which the Collingwood engaged a German cruiser, repelled a destroyer attack and was later on involved with another cruiser. The prince was stationed in the fore-turret during the battle and was specially mentioned in dispatches for coolness and courage under fire.

Soon after the Battle of Jutland, to his great regret, a serious operation compelled the prince to retire from the navy. Many men would have considered such prolonged suffering from ill health sufficient to exonerate them from any further active service, but, against his doctor's wishes, he at once joined the Royal Air Force and very soon gained his pilot's certificate, ultimately receiving promotion to the rank of captain.

When he was 23 he was made Duke of York, the historic title that, until the reign of Queen Victoria, had always been conferred on the second son of the British Monarch and which King Edward revived for his son, afterward King George V.

Certainly it is no use to talk to our new King superficially or plausibly. "The Duke of York," a friend once rather ruefully said, "has a habit of weighing words—his own and yours."

Betrothal Hailed

The news of this deservedly popular prince's engagement to a British subject instead of to a foreign princess, was greeted with wide rejoicing.

The wedding was fixed for April 26. In the distant days of the Strathmore ancestors the dowry of the family used to be "half a moonlit night," that is to say, half the booty that the knights could steal on a roistering moonlit night. Apart from the exertions of that "roistering night," no doubt the preparations then made for a family wedding were fairly simple.

It may be imagined that those made for the wedding of the twentieth century descendant of those lawless knights were correspondingly elaborate.

Accompanied by the young prince, the future Queen went up to Scotland to stay at Glamis for a few days. As may be imagined the excitement of the Forfarshire people, who for so many generations had given their affection and respect to the Strathmore family, was very great. Not that they thought their "ain Lassie" was by any means making too good a marriage. No doubt many of them shared the sentiments of the loyal clansmen of Inverary who on hearing of the betrothal of Queen Victoria's daughter, Princess Louise, to the Marquis of Lorne, exclaimed: "The Queen must be a proud woman this day, marrying her daughter to a son of the great Duke of Argyll!"

Plan Urged for Civil Service

Union Leader Asks That Complaints Be Settled at Origin

Senator Ellender's special committee investigating favoritism in the Federal service heard two complaining witnesses from the Social Security Board yesterday along with an appeal for the settlement of grievances at the origin—and promised to grind along through Saturday.

A. A. Daly, fromer Army captain and now an SSB junior liaison officer said he entered the SSB as CAF-9, was promoted to CAF-11, then reduced to CAF-10 while the Board brought in other persons as CAF-12. John J. Corson, jr., Director of the Bureau of Old-Age Insurance, and Benjamin Beecher, Daly's superior, said the arrangements of the grades and assignments to them were on the basis of efficiency and Corson, to a question from Ellender, denied that the Board had catered to Harvard and Yale graduates.

Frederick L. Compton, former Mail Division chief, SSB and now employed in the new Wage and Hour Division, accused the board of favoritism, of discriminating against employes who belonged to the unions and of promoting women "who have pretty faces." Corson categorically denied the charges.

Compton then said his job had been abolished, and Corson answered that many jobs were abolished in line with efficiency and recommendations that followed a survey aimed at co-ordinating the work of the board.

At the morning session, Jacob Baker, president of the United Federal Workers of America, told Ellender an "elaborate machinery and a central appeals board is not the way to get grievances settled in the main." Grievances must be settled as close as possible to the place where they occur, he stated.

"Granted that grievances are normal things, there is a corollary," he said. "The settlement of a grievance must be just as certain, just as sure, and just as normal as the occurrence of the grievance itself."

Speaking for the United Government Employes, Edgar G. Brown recommended a $1,500 minimum wage in the service and that Government records carry fingerprints rather than photographs as means of identification.

The committee will resume hearings at 10 a. m. today.

D.C. to Elevate Teachers on Their Ability

Future promotions of Washington teachers will depend more on official ratings of successful teaching and less on educational attainments under revised rules which the Board of Education was today preparing to install at the end of this school year.

The changes, accepted by the board Wednesday for a year's trial period, eliminated past credits given for holding a master's or doctor's degree.

Meantime, Superintendent of Schools Ballou was giving further study to the problem of overcrowded District schools which gave rise Wednesday to charges that he had favored nonresident pupils at the expense of District children.

Board Member Charles Drayton had accused Ballou at a board meeting of "inaction" on a year-old request of Wesley Heights residents to permit their children to attend the Deal Junior High and Wilson Senior High, crowded by Bethesda and Chevy Chase, Md., pupils. They asked that the suburban students be sent to other institutions to make way for District children. Ballou had ruled that to make the out-of-towners go further into the District for schooling was "unreasonable."

Drayton contended that a ruling of Corporation Counsel Seal declared the law did not give nonresident children the right to attend the school nearest their homes.

Lovette Assails Plan to Split Navy Into Fleets

Our present Navy must be kept a single force to provide sure defense for the United States, Commander Leland P. Lovette, public relations officer of the Navy Department, declared Wednesday.

"It would violate every principle of strategy if the fleet were split into Atlantic and Pacific units," he told the American Business Club at a dinner at the Hay-Adams House.

"The Panama Canal makes it possible for the Navy to get back and forth from the Atlantic to the Pacific and thus remain always at its maximum striking power," he continued.

"A fleet which is unable to perform both missions," he asserted, "would be useless to the United States.

Hawkins Named Trade Education Service Chief

Layton S. Hawkins, supervisor and consultant to the WPA on its educational program in New York City, has been appointed chief of the trade and industrial education service of the Office of Education, Interior Department, Secretary Ickes announced Wednesday.

Hawkins was a staff member of the Federal board for vocational education when it was established in 1917. Other appointments announced yesterday were those of James R. Coxen, as special agent for trade and industrial education; Jerry R. Hawke, trade and industrial agent in the Western region, and N. B. Giles, agent in the central region.

$110,000 More Sought for D.C. Child Welfare

Commissioners Favor Kepecs Plan, but Cut Request $170,000

The commissioners yesterday approved the Kepecs recommendations for reorganization of the local child welfare agencies and said they would ask the Budget Bureau to allow an additional $110,000 to the 1940 supply bill to carry out the program.

Although Jacob Kepecs, Chicago welfare expert, had recommended an additional $280,000, the commissioners felt this sum would be "too much at present."

The child welfare program, as outlined by Kepecs, would require a total expenditure of $636,000, excluding the operating expenses of the institutions. This total is some $280,000 more than was approved recently by the House in the 1940 District supply bill. In event the Budget Bureau approves the commissioners' request, the Senate District sub-committee, which will begin hearings soon on the District bill, would be asked to include the additional figure.

Commissioner Hazen said an item in the report which recommended expenditure of $50,000 for the establishment of a psychiatric and psychological clinic for "problem" children, had been entirely eliminated. He said he hoped the health department would form a clinic for this work.

Most of the $110,000 would be used to enlarge the present system of foster homes, which Kepecs described as inadequate.
